Scores taken in bloody shootout

Nicaragua Reds grab legislators

MANAGUA (AP)—About 20 left-wing guerrillas in military uniforms shot their way past security guards Tuesday, seized the Nicaraguan National Palace and took scores of legislators and government officials hostage—including a nephew and cousin of President Anastasio Somoza.

Archibaldo Arostegui, a presidential spokesman, said he had reports that four persons were killed in a two-hour shootout between the guerrillas and government troops in this Central American city.

The guerrillas issued a statement to news media saying they demanded release of all political prisoners in the country, safe-conduct passes out of Nicaragua for the political prisoners and the attackers, and $10 million in cash.

A Red Cross spokesman reported one hostage telephoned and said at least 15 persons were wounded when the guerrillas burst into the palace firing at guards, and in the gun battle that followed with national guardsmen. The spokesmen expessed fear that several persons had been killed.

A presidential source said a number of aides were urging Somoza to take a tough stance against the guerrillas.

The four dead were believed to be soldiers.

The National Palace houses the Chamber of Deputies, Senate and a number of cabinet ministries, but Somoza does not have offices there.

Only the Chamber of Deputies was in session at the time, but hundreds of government officials and visitors were also in the building.

Military officials said the raiders managed to penetrate the heavy security by wearing uniforms similar to those worn by the national guard.

The Sandinistas have been battling Somoza's strongman rule for years, vowing to replace it with a Marxist government. They take their name from August Cesar Sandino, a rebel officer who fought U.S. Marines when they occupied this Central American country in the early 1930s.

Panic rush as pilots near strike

As the deadline for an Air Canada pilots' strike approached Tuesday, there was a frantic rush in Victoria, as elsewhere, to reroute travellers.

Caught in the squeeze created by a possible shutdown at midnight Wednesday were homebound and outgoing holidayers.

A spokesman for Air Canada said it appeared that a large number of vacationing Vancouver and Victoria people were cutting their holidays short and heading home in advance of the strike deadline.

Like travel agencies in both cities, Air Canada's reservations clerks have been bombarded with calls during the last two days from people cancelling or changing flight plans.

The turmoil comes at a time when last-minute efforts are being made to head off a walkout that would involve 1,700 pilots. Both sides have agreed to meet this morning in Ottawa with federal Labor Minister John Munro.

If the strike materializes, Vancouver and Victoria—because of the three-hour time difference— would be able to complete all of Wednesday's scheduled flights, the Air Canada spokesman said.

He said the airline was being "very flexible" in changing plans for those already holding Air Canada tickets.

As long as seats could be found for them, those changing to earlier flights to get home ahead of time were being accommodated, he said.

"A lot of them have curtailed their holidays, it seems. It means returning home after a week and a half of vacation, instead of two or three weeks."

The switch to other forms of travel is putting pressure on CP Air, various U.S. airlines and bus companies.

Plans are being made to bring stranded travellers home through the U.S.

Hotels in Victoria apparently weren't hit hard by Tuesday with reservations cancellations.

A spokesman for the Empress said there had been no noticeable upswing in cancellations, and that the only effect of the threatened strike involved one American package tour. Those on the tour would still arrive at the hotel, but would apparently be several hours late because of the necessity of changing carriers.

Campbell son dies in mishap

James Campbell Jr., 31, son of Capital Region Board chairman James Campbell, was killed Monday on Saturna Island when a loader he was operating turned over during a logging operation.

Campbell, born in Vancouver and educated on Vancouver Island and Saturna, operated a small sawmill on the family farm.

Date of the funeral had not been set, his father said Tuesday in a telephone interview from Saturna Island.

Boy, 6, killed under bus wheels

Two young boys went for a ride on one bike Tuesday and minutes later one of them was dead.

Victoria police said Jessie Robert Day, 6, of Simcoe Street was fatally injured when he fell beneath the wheels of a Vancouver Island Coach Lines bus in the 100 block Superior Street.

A second six-year-old, whose name was withheld, was not hurt.

The mishap occurred at 1:08 p.m.

The Day boy was pronounced dead on arrival at Victoria General Hospital. His identity reportedly wasn't known until some time after his arrival.

"They doubled on a bike— something they're not supposed to do," a police officer said later.

He said the other boy was pedalling the bike with the Day boy riding on the back.

"The bike ran into the side of the bus and the one boy fell off the back under the wheels of the bus," the officer said.

"The driver didn't have a hope of missing him."

The driver was identified as Donald Norris.

U.S. selling gold to bolster dollar

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government took its second major step to support the U.S. dollar Tuesday by announcing plans to sell three million more ounces of gold from its stockpile.

The sale is intended to bring more money into the U.S. and reduce the country's balance-of-payments deficit, which is a major cause of the dollar's decline. It is also intended to reduce U.S. imports of gold.

The dollar had opened lower on most European money markets Tuesday, reversing Monday's comeback that followed indications the Carter administration would take concrete action to support it.

In Tokyo, it rose for the second day in a row.

The Federal Reserve Board took action Friday to protect the dollar by raising interest rates to make U.S. investments more attractive to foreigners.

At the time, the White House agreed with the action and added: "There will be a series of continuing actions over the next several weeks to deal with these problems."

The dollar has lost more than 30 per cent of its value during the last year against the Japanese yen, 33 per cent against the Swiss franc and 15 per cent against the German mark.

The basic problem with the dollar is there are too many in the hands of foreigners.

The government has already been selling 300,000 ounces of gold each month in a series of auctions which had been scheduled to end in October. The first four auctions have raised about $230 million.

Beer hope surfaces

Unconfirmed reports late Tuesday said union and brewery industry negotiators were "on the verge" of a tentative agreement.

Victoria sources said renewed meetings in Vancouver were "going extremely well," and there were indications that a settlement might be reached within hours. If ratified, it could mean the flow of draft beer again by the weekend, according to informants.

Hard knocks at the zoo

It was head-knocking time for baby rams in Beacon Hill Park children's zoo, as their usual playful antics brought them to a bit of practice for grown-up contests. Their battle stayed cool, though, helped by lukewarm late-August day.

The AHOP Shuffle

By Paul Bennett
Colonist reporter

Second of a series

"Nobody builds a perfect house. We just try to do our best."

Rick Carswell, a partner in Tryon Construction, said this during a Colonist interview at which complaints of some buyers of his Assisted Home Ownership Program houses were discussed.

Carswell, the principal mover in Tryon Construction, shrugged off complaints such as split siding, cracking driveways and faulty downspouts as "only to be expected."

He said he had built 23 AHOP units and had complaints from only four buyers and felt that was a reasonably good record, all things considered.

Carswell felt that some of his buyers were upset because other customers got better deals than they in "fringe benefits" such as major appliances and fixtures.

He added that a few were probably "burned up" because some builders are offering regular single-family dwellings—not duplexes—at the $45,000 maximum AHOP asking price.

A foresighted businessman might be less insensitive to customers' pleas for help.

Carswell's response to a variety of complaints by buyers of four duplexes his company built in the Metchosin-Donovan Road area of the western community appeared to be a little cavalier.

In three cases, he pointed out that the buyers owed him money, and he did not feel obliged to accommodate them until they squared up with him.

Two buyers admit this, but say they have been withholding the money—which amounts to rental for early occupancy—because after repeated attempts, they have been unable to get satisfaction from him on the repairs they want done.

In a third case, he said he had not been told of the buyer's complaints, and in a fourth he indicated there had been some difficulty in getting subcontractors to enter the premises.

The complaints have been detailed in another story, and most of them are relatively minor.

A leaky fireplace in one house could, however, lead to death by carbon monoxide poisoning and in two other houses, problems with plumbing and wiring are potentially hazardous.

Carswell said he had already asked a fireplace subcontractor to fix the leaky fireplace in the home of Sandor and Barbara Csitar, 590B Donovan—the principal hazard in the series of complaints.

He said he intended to have the Csitars' other complaints seen to, although he added that he had sent subcontractors around in the past and they had difficulty in doing the work.

Similarly, he gave his word that problems—none of them hazardous or major—would be looked at in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Gauti, 3072 Metchosin, already the subject of a joint reinspection by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and Carswell—provided a difference over money was settled.

As for the complaints by the Ian Tatehams, at 3074 Metchosin, Carswell said he had already had one cheque for half the outstanding money owed him returned, with payment stopped on it. Tateham indicated he had stopped payment because of dissatisfaction with the way the repairs were being handled.

Carswell vowed he wou'd "quit building

Air strike

Claude Taylor meet Munro at 9 a.m.

Foster said he had received "a very specific request from Mr. Munro to meet in Ottawa."

Pilots, however, were still counting down the hours until the strike deadline, Foster said in Toronto.

"I still expect a strike, but who knows what will happen in Ottawa?"

Foster said pilots would not change their position on the only issue left to be settled in the dispute—the merging of the seniority lists of Air Canada and Nordair.

The crown-owned airline was granted permission in July by the Canadian transport commission to take over Nordair, a Montreal-based airline, on condition that the two airlines operate separately. Air Canada has not acquired Nordair officially.

Taylor has said Air Canada was prepared to deal with that demand only after the airline has acquired Nordair.

Foster said the seniority list issue was important to his members' future. Air Canada pilots and the airline could agree in a new contract that the lists would be merged when, and if, Air Canada took over Nordair, he said.

The union would not agree to delay the proposal until the next contract because a takeover would be completed by then and Air Canada would be in a stronger position to resist merging the lists, Foster said.

Unless seniority lists of the two airlines are merged, Air Canada pilots would likely miss advancement opportunities in the lucrative charter business.

Union officials have said the airline wants to expand into charter flights using Nordair instead of the main airline. The Air Canada pilots say any expansion involving Nordair pilots would be a considerably cheaper venture.

Nordair's 120 pilots are generally less experienced and paid less than their Air Canada counterparts. Union officials said that with a merger of the seniority lists, Nordair pilots could expect an end to their present lower pay rates.

Pilots of both airlines are members of the association.

Palestinians on Maryland agenda

All or nothing—Sadat

CAIRO (Reuter)—President Anwar Sadat, preparing for his summit meeting with the leaders of Israel and the United States, ruled out partial agreements Tuesday and repeated that there would be no permanent peace in the Middle East until the Palestinian problem was solved.

Sadat spoke at a party meeting in his home town, Talaa, in the Nile Delta. The speech was broadcast live by Cairo Radio.

Sadat said that when he met President Carter and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin at Camp David, Md., on Sept. 5 he would strive for permanent peace, based on justice.

"This peace based on justice will not be achieved unless the Palestinian problem is solved," he added.

The summit meeting was called by Carter in an effort to revive the Middle East peace moves which began with Sadat's history-making visit to Israel last year.

Sadat ruled out any prospect of a unilateral agreement with Israel—a suggestion already voiced by Begin.

"There is no room whatsover for partial solutions, unilateral settlements or a third disengagement," Sadat said.

Egypt and Israel have concluded two disengagement agreements separating their armed forces in the Sinai Peninsula following the 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

Egyptian officials have been preparing proposals for Sadat to take with him to the summit.

The semi-official newspaper al-Ahram said Monday that Egypt would present three points at the summit dealing with a declaration of principles governing a comprehensive settlement, measures to implement the principles and the level of the committees to be entrusted with implementing the principles.

Narita balloon tangles jetliner

NARITA, Japan (Reuter)—An airliner landed safely Tuesday after tangling with a rope holding a balloon launched by opponents of Tokyo's new international airport here, police said.

A Japan Asia Airways jet flight from Taipei, Taiwan, carrying 197 passengers and crew, struck the rope and landed with part of the rope dangling from its right wing.

Police said it was the latest sabotage attempt by radicals who support local farmers opposed to the airport.

The radicals, determined to close the $2.6-billion airport, have sent up kites and balloons at the end of the runway in an attempt to obstruct landings and takeoffs.

Mercury high among Inuit

OTTAWA (CP)—Thirty persons in the Arctic Quebec settlement of Sugluk have been found to have dangerously high levels of mercury in their bloodstreams, federal health department figures showed Tuesday.

Some of the levels are 10 times the levels considered normal by health officials.

Sugluk is an Inuit community and the high mercury levels are believed to have resulted from eating mercury-contaminated whales and seals.

Health department figures showed that during May, 58 persons were tested for mercury and all showed readings above normal.

Thirty had readings ranging between 100 and 269 parts per billion. Seven were in the 160-to-269 ppb range.

The health department considers persons with levels above 100 ppb to be at risk, and asks them to undergo clinical examinations.

However, the National Indian Brotherhood, which has a substantial mercury research program, considers continuing levels of 50 ppb or more dangerous, and continuing levels of 100 ppb or more critical.

Twenty-four Sugluk residents had levels between 50 and 100. The other four of the 58 tested were between 20 and 49 ppb.

The health department considers zero to 19 ppb normal.

Mercury in the blood can cause dreaded Minimata disease, irreversible mercury poisoning. Minimata causes horrible crippling and sometimes death.

Mercury has been showing up in the bloodstreams of Inuit for the last year or more. How it gets to the Arctic is a matter of some controversy, because there are no polluting industries that far north.

Meanwhile, testing also found 21 cases of dangerously high levels in other Quebec communities, Fort George, Paint Hills, Matimekosh, Mistassini and Obedjiwan.

Mistassini is a continuing mercury hot spot in Quebec.

The Ontario hot spots have been the Indian reserves of Grassy Narrows and Whitedog in northwestern Ontario, both on the mercury-poisoned English-Wabigoon River system.

However, 147 tests conducted on those reserves during May found only three elevated levels, all below 50 ppb. Indians there have been warned for several years not to eat fish from the river system.

No money, no help

AHOP homes" before he would attend to the Tatehams' complaints unless they agreed to place in trust a cheque for about $170, which, he said, was half the interest owed his company.

CMHC officials earlier indicated Tyron Construction would get no further AHOP funds until the complaints against it were satisfactorily settled.

The Tatehams' complaints range from loose carpeting to faulty wiring, but on the face of it, none appears potentially hazardous.

Obviously, there is a personality conflict between Ian Tateham and Rick Carswell which hasn't made easier a solution of their differences. Carswell believes that satisfying Tateham totally would be impossible.

He denied he had heard of previous complaints from Andre and Sharon Luzon, 3060 Metchosin, but, on receiving an itemized list from the Colonist, said he would look into them.

The final complaint against Carswell's Tryon Construction came from Don and Ronica Cronin, 590A Donovan. They said, among other things, that their toilets rock, the shower leaks and their carpets are loose.

Carswell's response to that was that the couple owed him $500 and he wanted to see some of it before he would initiate repairs.

In other complaints, including "extra" wires at the power supply in the Gauti house, Carswell disclaimed responsibility. He said the wiring problem had to be fixed by B.C. Hydro.

Responding to the Lauzons' complaint of windows that could be removed from outside, laid the blame on the supplier, Alcan.

"That's the first I've heard about it" was the response by Mrs. John Caldwell, partner with her husband in J.C. Enterprises, to complaints about two AHOP houses built by the company.

Linda Hoegi of 592A Donovan and Stan and Susan Hunt, of 592B Donovan, said they wanted smashed and warped gutters repaired at the rear of their duplex, that nails were protruding through the drywall in their ceilings, their communal front yard was "layered with runoff cement" from construction of the dwelling.

Mrs. Caldwell said she was "disappointed to hear" of the complaints "because we took a lot of trouble over this."

She said she would relay the complaints to her husband, "but I can't say he'll go and fix this."

As to complaints about large chunks of concrete in the lawn (see picture), she replied: "That's a crock, because we put the topsoil in and spread it ourselves."

The fact remains that the Hunts' driveway is piled with concrete removed from the front yard—seeded to grass under a local CMHC requirement aimed at preventing hassles between neighbors of duplex lots—yielded about half a ton of rough concrete pieces, and there are bald spots where more chunks have still to be crowbarred out.

Mrs. Hoegi said both she and Mrs. Hunt had spoken to Caldwell about their problems, and the latest response from him was that he wasn't prepared to make good on their complaints.

Both couples bought their houses without inspecting a legal site plan, and were led to believe by the real estate company that their lots ran right up to a communal mesh fence.

It was only after they began erecting fences that both found the rear property line in fact cut across in a diagonal line from the right-hand side of the Hunts' lot.

Officials at CMHC shook their heads sadly when they heard about the complaint over the "misunderstanding" about the lot shape.

They advised all prospective home purchasers to live by the old rule of "caveat emptor" and ensure they were getting what they were told they were getting.

Incidentally, J.C. Enterprises is no longer building AHOP houses, Mrs. Caldwell says, because the experience hasn't been all that satisfying.

Jobs target —50 million

GENEVA (AP) — About 50 million jobs a year will have to be created to provide full world employment by the year 2000, the International Labor Organization predicts. The UN agency said the world population of those able to work will increase to 2.5 billion by the end of the century, compared to 1.6 billion in 1975.

Research walkout in U.K.

LONDON (Reuter)—Britain temporarily closed part of its main atomic weapons research establishment Tuesday because staff members were worried about nuclear contamination, the defence ministry said.

The ministry disclosed last week that 12 staff at the establishment at Aldermaston, about 70 kilometres west of London, were feared to have been poisoned by radioactive plutonium.

The shutdown, which followed talks between management and unions, will last until the staff has been reassured, according to a ministry spokesman.

Several dozen staff from the closed section will be transferred to departments where there is no radioactive material.

BANGKOK (AP) — Two Thai village self-defence volunteers and six others were wounded when a member of their patrol stepped on a mine in Buri Ram Province near the Cambodian border, police said Tuesday.

Illness toll 60 in Burundi

BUJUMBURA, Burundi (AP) — Cholera has killed 60 persons since an epidemic broke out in this central African nation three months ago, and the disease still is out of control, health officials said. They said some 2,000 persons have the disease which originated in Zaire.

Army tanks roll at Heathrow

LONDON (Reuter)—Scores of army tanks and armored cars rolled into London's Heathrow airport Tuesday in a show of strength following Sunday's Arab guerrilla attack on Israeli airline crew outside a hotel in central London.

Troops in full battledress, carrying automatic rifles, patrolled the terminal area. More were deployed along the perimeter roads and carried out spot checks on passing cars.

Security in the British capital and at Heathrow has been sharply stepped up after the machine-gun and grenade ambush on an El Al crew bus in which two persons died.

A defence ministry spokesman said the exercise at the airport was part of police counter-terrorism precautions. He declined to say whether it had been planned before or after Sunday's shooting.

Meanwhile, London Police Chief David McNee and British Home Secretary Merlyn Rees decided to stick to their ban on security guards carrying guns.

Cardinals deny reports

Papal smear rumors fly

Colonist wire services

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Italian newspapers Tuesday said "dirty tricks" campaigns were being waged against leading candidates for pope, but the cardinals gathered to elect a successor to Pope Paul VI dismissed the allegations.

Vatican officials and aides to some of the 111 cardinals expected to take part in the conclave that begins Friday said they were unaware of attempts to discredit some of the leading candidates.

Milan's Corriere della Sera, Italy's largest circulation newspaper, said "poisonous biographies of papabili (possible popes) are circulating under the counter, like the clandestine literature of Soviet dissenters."

It said one such tract reiterated the oft-denied allegation that Italian Cardinal Sebastiano Baggio is a Freemason and another described Cardinal Sergio Pignedoli as a "pomp-loving man."

Old church laws forbidding any Catholic from joining the Freemasons under pain of excommunication have been virtually scrapped, but the European Grand Orient Lodge form of masonry is still considered anti-Catholic and atheistic.

Tuesday's morning meeting of the Congregation of Cardinals, one of the daily preparatory sessions for the conclave, was attended by 105 of the prelates.

There seems to be a "pretty broad consensus" among them, said Father Graham, who is on friendly terms with many of the cardinals. "I haven't seen any signs of in-fighting or struggle."

That could mean a quick decision, perhaps in two or three days, but the wide field of papal possibilities—more than a dozen names are prominently mentioned—and the increased number of cardinals in recent years may slow the process.

Cardinals seemed to be reaching general accord that in choosing a new pope they will aim at maintaining stability of doctrine in an age of ideological turmoil and religious doubt.

Japan's N-rules tighter

TOKYO (AP) — Japan today agreed to tougher Canadian supervision of its nuclear development programs as the two countries signed a revised nuclear co-operation agreement, a foreign ministry official said.

A new protocol to the bilateral agreement was signed by Japanese Foreign Minister Sunao Sonada and Canadian trade Minister Jack Horner after a year of negotiations, the official added.

Under the new agreement Canada, a supplier of uranium to Japan, is entitled to prior consultations whenever Japan moves equipment or information related to nuclear energy to third countries.

The 1960 agreement called for such prior consultations only for nuclear fuel and reactors, the official said.

Japan also will require Canadian agreement before it decides on enrichment of uranium, reprocessing of used fuel or storage of nuclear materials.

Kenyatta: Firm, paternal ruler

Blacks' symbol, Kenyatta dies

NAIROBI (AP)—President Jomo Kenyatta, who ruled the East African country of Kenya with a firm, paternal hand throughout its 15 years of independence from Britain, died peacefully in his sleep Tuesday, the government announced.

Kenyatta, a herdsboy and witch doctor's grandson who eventually became a worldwide symbol of black nationalism—and to many the embodiment of African terrorism—was believed to be in his 80s, though he said he did not know his age.

The announcement said he died at State House in the Indian Ocean resort and shipping city of Mombasa, and that his body was flown to Nairobi, the capital.

Vice-President Daniel Arap Moi, 57, was quickly sworn in as acting president. Political observers said the rapid swearing-in was probably a sign of the government's determination to have a smooth transition.

The constitution requires an election within 90 days. Moi is one of several likely contenders, but he is not a member of Kenyatta's dominant Kikuyu tribe and may face stiff opposition from cabinet members who are.

Shortly after the announcement of Kenyatta's death, two U.S.-made F-5E jet fighter planes circled the capital in an apparent show of strength meant to discourage disturbances.

Kenya's 15 million people were urged to "remain calm at this moment of our national shock."

Kenyatta's moderate policies and his reconciliation with the British, who jailed him on suspicion of leading the bloody Mau Mau uprising of the 1950s, helped make Kenya one of the more stable, prosperous countries in black Africa.

The British tagged the bulky, bearded Kenyan leader, who invariably carried a flywhisk, as "the leader of darkness and death," but his degree of involvement in the uprising, one of the bloodiest in the African liberation movement, was never clear.

Kenyatta, schooled in London and Moscow, preached socialism but leaned toward the West in his foreign relations.

Kenyatta was jailed on terrorist charges in 1953 and served eight years in prison and under house arrest. He was freed to a drum-thumping, dancing welcome in 1961 and led his country to independence 28 months later, on Dec. 12, 1963.

Britons blame jets for soggy summer

MANCHESTER, England (CP) — Screaming jet planes have been blamed for the wettest summer Britain has had in years.

"These 700-mile-an-hour jet planes, constantly rising and descending on British airfields, are breaking up cloud formations so that we get constant heavy rain," said meteorologist Arnold Wilson in a letter to The Evening News.

Commented John Curtis, a retired bank manager living in Birmingham:

"When I was a boy, many people blamed radio for some of the wet summers we had in the early 1920s—particularly 1924, which was the worst ever. One old gentleman complained to the BBC that the radio waves were loosening his teeth and causing them to fall out."

A woman reader, Helen Fortescue of Didsbury, Lancashire, told of an uncle of hers who said he received the Savoy Orpheans dance band in his gold fillings.

"I can't sleep at night for that awful jazz," he wrote.

A younger commentator, Bernard Little, recalled that the atom bomb was blamed for a wet summer Britain had in 1954, when some seaside towns were almost deserted.

"We seem to have blamed everything there is to blame," he said. "Why don't we face up to the fact that Britain has a pretty lousy climate and that really sunny summers are few and far between?"

In actual fact, Britain had warm summers in 1969, 1970, 1972 and 1974, and two very hot summers in 1975 and 1976 accompanied by severe drought and water rationing in many parts of England. Water bombers sprayed farms and orchards and clouds were seeded.

The following summer, 1977, opened in promising fashion with a warm sunny June but degenerated in July, August and September.

Last month rain dealt a cruel blow to the famous Ludlow Castle Open Air Theatre when a series of Shakespeare's plays was presented. One damp chilly evening a great procession of fur-coated, umbrella-carrying, blanket-bearing theatregoers streamed through the castle's massive stone gateway.

A talented company performing The Taming of the Shrew was fairly drenched by rain blown across the footlights, and a chill wind rattled the scenery causing many members of the audience to huddle closer.

Triple bus smash hurts 50 in Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — A multiple bus collision in the express lanes of Interstate 5 in downtown Seattle Tuesday injured more than 50 persons, two of them seriously.

Authorities said more than 50 were taken to three area hospitals. One unidentified person suffered a serious hip injury and another suffered a serious jaw injury.

Police said the accident involved three Metro Transit buses which crashed into each other in a chain reaction.

AIR SLOWDOWN UNLIMITED

PARIS (Reuter)—French air traffic controllers decided Tuesday to launch a work-to-rule slowdown of unlimited duration beginning at noon local time Friday, informed sources said.

The controllers' action is almost certain to create new chaos for air travellers, particularly returning vacationers.

The decision was taken at a meeting of representatives of France's 2,500 controllers, who have staged four slowdowns this summer in support of demands for higher pay and better working conditions.

Those at the meeting drew up a letter to the transport minister suggesting a renewal of negotiations with authorities.

But the government's position has long been that it would not negotiate during, or under threat of, a slowdown.

Saving money that never was

ONCE UPON A TIME — shortly after the war when the economy of the nation was adjusting itself to the problems of peace — there was a young senior provincial civil servant who in common with most others had a few problems in making ends meet.

Not only had he spent most of his savings on a new car but had also purchased a house on which the mortgage payments were fairly high. His wife was not only extremely attractive but very artistic, much given to furnishing their new home in the latest fashion. And it was this bent that hit the young civil servant with his first major post-war economic crisis.

With his pay cheque stretched to its absolute limit and just able to meet their various monthly payments and the family grocery bill, he was horrified to learn that his wife had set her heart on buying one final piece of furniture: a beautiful and costly coffee table.

No matter how much he worked over his income and juggled his budget, there was no way he could find to meet the additional expense without going into debt. "I'm so strapped," he told his colleagues, "that I just can't raise even one extra buck. But somehow I've got to do it. I just can't disappoint her."

For the next week he struggled mightily to find a solution, and visibly aged years in the process. Then one day he came into his office looking his old cheerful self — obviously he had found a way. And, in a way, he had.

"She's decided, without any persuasion from me, that she doesn't like the coffee table after all. So we're not going to buy it," he delightedly told his colleagues.

That night as the civil servants were all leaving for home, he called out to his fellow workers: "How about coming around for dinner and a few drinks tomorrow night; my wife and I are throwing a party."

"Good lord," one of them replied, "how can you afford to throw a big party?"

"Easily," he said. "Look at all the money we saved not buying that coffee table."

Every word of the above story is true.

We don't know what eventually happened to the young senior civil servant — who happened to be an economist by profession — nor do we know his whereabouts today. However, judging by the budgetary antics now being demonstrated by Ottawa, we suspect that he might well be an adviser to the Trudeau government.

Wheels and deals

THE RUSSIANS ARE COMING to Canada, to sell their little Lada model car. But rest assured the average Russian won't tbe reading about this new export venture in his newspaper. It's the sort of story which might touch off another revolution.

The Lada is a four-door sub-compact with front wheel drive. About 10 dealers in southern Ontario are ready to market it, with the first shipment of 480 cars expected to arrive any day now.

The Lada will sell in Canada for $3,495, including a 15 per cent tariff Canada charges on imported cars. That price makes it highly competitive in the small car market. But in the Soviet Union, the same car costs a citizen more than $8,000.

Two possible explanations: either the Soviet government is making an exorbitant profit on Lada sales to its own people or the government (meaning the people) is heavily subsidizing the car's cost to sell it in Canada. Neither possibility would please the average Russian newspaper reader — but then, as we said, they won't be reading about it.

Perhaps Canada is already a republic

OTTAWA — Canada is rapidly emerging as a country of 23 million constitutional experts, including the Canadian Bar Association. The result, of course, has to be 23 million different constitutional proposals.

I've stopped counting, but there must already be close to that many shades of opinion about the monarchy alone, and the debate has scarcely begun. I myself think the emphasis accorded the role of the Crown is misplaced. The sections setting forth the "Character of Rights and Freedoms" is of far greater consequence than anything else in the proposed constitution — including, if it ever comes, a new distribution of powers between the central government and the regional war lords.

As for the question of the monarchy, there may be some truth in the story that Franklin D. Roosevelt was fond of teasingly reminding Mackenzie King that Canada was in fact a republic and had been ever since it first began to appoint its own governors-general, starting with Lord Tweedsmuir, although with the monarch's ritual consent.

Since then, the governor-general has continued to be chosen by the Canadian government, not by Buckingham Palace. Not only that: a few years ago it was Governor-General Michener who represented Canada at a big bash in Iran to which the Shah had invited heads of state; and Governor-General Michener visited Holland and the Caribbean as the Canadian chief.

The sky hasn't collapsed. The governor-general hasn't any more authority than the sovereign, and that's a zero in fact, whatever the law may say. The office has evolved into a purely ceremonial and symbolic post.

The monarchy does command sentiment. Like the Union Jack and the fleur-de-lis, that symbol of medieval French kings, the monarchy is associated with Canada's history. And because, like the fleur-de-lis, support of the monarchy is based on sentiment, it's best to leave it alone. You can't argue with sentiment.

What we can argue about is the human rights charter in the proposed constitution. To begin with, it can be entrenched in the constitution simply by an act of the federal Parliament. There's little doubt of that. The provinces can avoid its provisions by being allowed to "opt in." Until a province does, it can disregard the charter — although once entrenched in the constitution the charter presumably would exert moral force, for what that's worth, with provincial premiers.

A major and unfortunately highly controversial feature of the charter is language rights. In the provincial as well as the federal jurisdictions, in the legislatures, the courts, in communicating with government agencies, a person would be able to use French or English, as when reading a corn flakes label today. That would entrench both tongues as the official Canadian languages; neither would be foreign, anywhere in Canada where a province opts in. The charter makes special reference to Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick, but all are welcome.

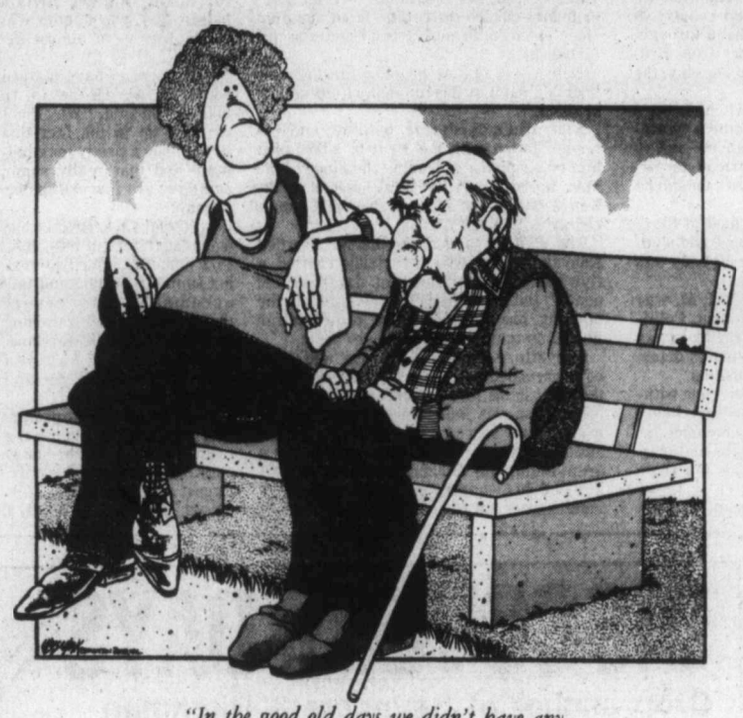
The usual rights of freedom of peaceful assembly, of speech, of the press, of freedom from arbitrary arrest or of unlawful seizure of property, which derive from the common law and from long-standing precedent, would be entrenched in the proposed constitution. That wouldn't bring the millenium. Human rights in a constitution are only as strong as an independent judiciary, free Parliament and an aroused public can make them.

The Stalin constitution of 1936 made the Soviet Union, on paper, one of the world's freest countries. But with a slavish judiciary and a rubber stamp legislature, Stalin sent to a labor camp anyone who tried to apply the constitution.

Not only must an entrenched human rights charter depend on the judiciary and the legislature but, most important, on public opinion. We hear much today about the iniquitous introduction of the War Measures Act by Prime Minister Trudeau in 1970. But where were the critics then? The vast majority of Canadians including Quebecois, approved. Parliament was almost unanimous in its formal approval, even though some members privately had their doubts.

No constitution can prevent dictatorship, if that's what a bemused public wants. And while it's chic to berate the central government at every opportunity, I think Canadian history shows we've been closer to dictatorship at the provincial level far more often than at the federal level.

At the same time, no dictatorship can establish itself against vigorous and unyielding public resistance, regardless of constitutions. However, a human rights charter in the constitution — the idea goes back to Lester Pearson's time — would have its uses as a guideline to official conduct.



"In the good old days we didn't have any of this nostalgia nonsense."

Remember this about Russia: there are thugs at the top

TORONTO — Ironically, one who did a great disservice to Western understanding of the U.S.S.R. was Winston Churchill, when he remarked on Oct. 1, 1939, a month after the start of the Second World War and five weeks after the Soviets and Nazis signed a non-aggression pact: "I cannot forecast the action of Russia. It is a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma."

If the great Churchill was incapable of comprehending Russia — i.e. the Soviet Union — what chance do the rest of us have? And many quit trying while others never bothered. Yet "understanding" the U.S.S.R. is perhaps the most important thing our leaders and policy-makers can do. Without adequate understanding of that superpower, our Western world is in jeopardy and on borrowed time. Not that there is likely to be a world war, because that possibility fades as Soviet influence (and power) grows, as Western illusions continue to bloom and as we continue to suffer from lack of nerve and stamina.

At present throughout the West there is disillusion and disappointment at the Soviet Union's treatment of dissidents, and their violation of all human rights terms of the Helsinki Accords. The high expectations and now disappointment illustrates again the folly of Western leadership. For the Soviet government never had any intention of honoring agreements of this shameful treaty.

The sensible and respected London Spectator put it aptly when it noted: "To expect them to engage in 'peaceful dialogue' with dissidents is to expect a carnivore beast to lose its taste for blood."

It also illustrates what Stalin used to call the "useful idiots" who unwittingly help Soviet aims. These aren't the dedicated Communists, but the soft-hearted and soft-headed who insist on seeing goodwill and hope in tyranny. They are the people (and often they are in leadership positions) who listen to Soviet words and ignore Soviet deeds. They are the reflections of Fabian socialists like Beatrice and Sidney Webb, whose admiration of Stalin increased as his terror expanded and who saw Soviet communism as the "new civilization"; they are the Lincoln Steffens, of journalistic muck-racking fame, who said of Stalin's Russia "I have seen the future — and it works"; they are the Eleanor Roosevelts who can inspect the Soviet Gulag and voice optimism for Soviet penal policies; they are the MPs like Andrew Brewin (NDP-Greenwood) who defiantly believed Hanoi Communists would honor Vietnam cease-fire agreements.

The gravest error we in the West make about the U.S.S.R. is to think that its rulers are dedicated Marxists, following an ideology, a goal for the betterment of humanity. Many virulent anti-Communists make this mistake. The reality is that there is no socialist ideology among the Soviet leadership. There is only power. There are few Marxists or idealists in the Soviet Union. True Believers are mostly in the West, in places like the University of Toronto's sociology department, York University political science, Simon Fraser University, even in the Prime Minister's Office. Or at places like Berkeley.

As the Spectator so succinctly points out: "The Soviet Union is run by cynical and brutal gangsters. To treat them as philosopher kings, (however nasty their philosophy) flatters them and deludes us."

This is perhaps the single most important thing to appreciate about the Soviet Union. There is no point in appealing to idealism, humaneness or the promises of the men who run the Politburo, no more than there is much to be gained from appealing to the decency of gangsters.

All they understand is force and firmness — which doesn't mean sabre-rattling or threats of war. The U.S.S.R. doesn't want war any more than we do, but they don't shrink from threatening it, or using it as blackmail when they know our revulsion is so great that we cringe before its mention.

Those who urge boycotts and sanctions against the U.S.S.R. as a gesture of solidarity for the Shcharanskys, Orlovs, Ginzburgs, Lukyanenkos and other symbols and martyrs, are indulging in more delusion. The reality is that there is no way dissidents inside the U.S.S.R. can be helped. Their noblest function is to serve as a reminder to us in the West of the reality of Soviet leadership: that they are thugs.

American-Soviet tensions threaten climate research

By ROBERT C. COWEN
Christian Science Monitor

Last month, President Carter pointedly cancelled visits of two official scientific delegations to the Soviet Union. He has also let it be known that he is reviewing all agreements for scientific exchange.

At the "working level," however, many U.S. scientists fervently hope that the exchanges will continue.

They may share the president's concern over human rights. But they are equally concerned not to lose fruits of Easy-West collaboration that ultimately could benefit all humanity.

Climate research is a case in point. The cliche that "the Soviets have more to gain from us than we can gain in return" may be true in a few fields such as computer science or oil technology. It is definitely not true in climatic research.

The world is increasingly dependent on the farming of climatically marginal lands. Proper assessment of long-term weather trends is crucial to any serious effort to reduce world hunger. To make such assessments, climatologists must understand what has happened in the past far better than they do today.

They need to reconstruct climatic history for tens of thousands of years. Trying to do this without Soviet data or Soviet co-operation would be very difficult, if not futile, as pointed out by Alan Hecht of the National Science Foundation's Climate Dynamics Program at the recent Symposium/Workshop on Solar-Terrestrial Influences on Weather and Climate (Ohio State University).

American and Soviet scientists have an extensive climate program under way that should give insight as far back as 25,000 years. If all goes well, one of the main fruits of this collaboration will be three national monographs (two American, one Soviet) that would be the most definitive summaries of such globally-important knowledge that can be put together today, according to Dr. Hecht.

This would be a major work from which planners in all countries could benefit. Yet the future of this climatic progam was a topic that would have been discussed by one of the two delegations whose scheduled visit to Moscow was cancelled.

As of this writing, according to Dr. Hecht and other U.S. scientists involved in the program, collaboration at the working level continues to be good. A five-member Soviet working group recently finished a successful visit to the United States. But the future of this program is uncertain.

To emphasize the need for such collaboration, Dr. Hecht explained that whereas North America had mostly ice with little permafrost during the last glaciation, the U.S.S.R. had more permafrost than ice.

Details of such differences and data such as Soviet scientists have recovered from pollen samples across their country will help in reconstructing how the atmosphere circulated while the ice and cold advanced.

Such knowledge is essential to understanding how climate functions. To deny it to humanity to make a political point, important as that point may be, would be foolishly short-sighted.

Today in History

Princess Patricia, daughter of the governor-general, the Duke of Connaught, presented colors to the army's last-raised private regiment, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, 64 years ago today — in 1914.

The PPCLI was raised with $100,000 from Montreal millionaire A. Hamilton Gault, offered within 24 hours of the declaration of war.

Most of the first 1,089 volunteers were veterans of the British Army or Boer War and were the first Canadians to see action.

The PPCLI has won more decorations than any other Canadian unit.

1833 — Slavery was abolished in the British colonies.

1877 — Texas outlaw Wes Hardin was captured near Pensacola, Fla.

1926 — America actor Rudolph Valentino died.

Parents have been under fire a lot lately for not knowing their children. They've been accused of selfishly pursuing their own goals and not giving a tinker's toot who their children are, where they are, or where they've been.

This is quite an indictment, and to make a distinction between parents who take their job seriously and those who don't I offer today a quiz on "HOW WELL DO YOU KNOW YOUR CHILDREN?"

1. Can you name three of their best friends by their first and last names?
2. Do you know when they last changed their underwear?
3. Do you know for a fact that the voice from under the bathroom door belongs to your nine-year-old?
4. Do you know what books are being hidden that they think you don't know that you know they're reading?
5. Do you communicate? Or was the last time they spoke to you when the smoke alarm went off in their room?
6. Do you know where their school is located?
7. Would you recognize your child if the braces were removed?
8. When it's 11 o'clock do they know where their parents are?
9. Can you read their report card without an interpreter?
10. Did they have to flunk biology before you realized they were taking it?
11. How long has it been since they brought their gym shorts home to be laundered?
12. Do you know what they want this week to be when they grow up?
13. What are their allergies besides soap, homework and closing doors?
14. Who are their heroes? Heroines?
15. What do they do with their allowance?
16. What's under their beds?
17. What makes them laugh? Cry?
18. What size are their shoes?
19. Have you ever watched them play anything competitively?
20. Do you understand what was written under their pictures in the yearbook?
21. Who are their favorite relatives? Why?

If you bombed out on the above 21, you can redeem yourself by answering, "How do they feel about themselves?" and still get a pretty good score.

one man's opinion

HIS NAME is Gipp Forster, he's a poet, he's a street-wise young man of 41 years, he's the son of a one time Ottawa football star Clair Forster and he somehow or other keeps body and soul together despite not having a full time job.

But full time job or not, Gipp Forster is trying his level best to do something for young troubled people in our town through a program called The Mustard Seed. Forster founded the operation because as he says, somebody has to care for those young people who are in trouble, who are hooked on drugs, who are lonely and who, without the Forster program, would have nobody to worry about them.

The Mustard Seed is at 552 Pandora Street and I'm here to tell you it needs some help. To start with, it does receive a small grant from Emmanuel Baptist Church, but not nearly enough for it to keep head above water. Forster doesn't get paid, nor do the other workers who toil long hours helping others.

Forster doesn't try to "preach" to the street people — he knows it doesn't work and he knows because he was a pure drifter for 17 years of his own life. He could have, by his own admission, easily wound up in jail for many and varied reasons. But he didn't and he recognizes that God had something to do with his salvation and he is now merely repaying the loan.

His aims are simple and they are indeed, Christian. To respond to need and degradation with action and not just words. To feed the hungry and house the destitute. To be a friend to the friendless without condition. To uplift and encourage all by the use of our own God-given talents and to use our own resources and share our plenty with the less fortunate. There are others, but I think these are the important ones.

FORSTER has goals to reach. He hopes to get a halfway house for the unfortunates, a farm, a rescue van to patrol our streets of Victoria. He wants to eventually have a paid staff of six to enable his hostel to be open 24 hours every day. He would like to set up receiving homes for those looking for another chance. He wants professional people to become involved on a voluntary basis (he would like to have 150 active workers in The Mustard Seed and out on the streets) and he would like to establish crisis lines.

At this time they handle anywhere from 30 to 100 young people every night of the three nights (Thursday through Saturday) they are open. The obvious aim, naturally, is to have it open seven days a week.

Now Forster, while not forcing anything religious down their throats, does have a strong religious message for those who are willing to accept it. They have a church service for the street people at one o'clock every Sunday afternoon and a praise service Sunday nights at seven.

ENDORSEMENTS? They have them from such as the Rev. Norman Archer, the highly regarded pastor of Emmanuel Baptist (if Norman Archer backs them, it's good enough for me,) Russ Flower of the B.C. Corrections Branch, from the Oak Bay Kiwanis group, from Mrs. Sharon Anderson of the Community Services Division. They seem to think the Forster plan is a worthwhile one, hopefully more of our citizens will come to the same line of thinking and offer help.

As for material help, right now they could use blankets and sleeping bags. Some reasonable furniture and cookies, cookies and more cookies. If you can help, give Gipp (he was named after famed Notre Dame football star George Gipp) Forster a call at 385-0512.

I think the last three lines of one of Gipp's poems pretty well sums up the feeling of many of our lost young people today.

"It's my soul that's looking to be found — and it's cold and frightened in the land of a strange people."...

CAN'T PASS UP the opportunity to offer a well done to the Victoria Budgets fastball team on winning the BC championship for an eighth straight year and to wish them nothing but the best of luck in their quest of a fourth straight Canadian championship next week in St. John, New Brunswick. Harv Stevenson and his team must rate as one of the great sport organizations ever formed here in our city and certainly, no fastball team in Canada can hold a candle to the Bate-Budget record. They're the best and they bring credit to Victoria...

CLC Day of Protest motivation genuine or mere political ploy?

I would like to bring two seemingly unrelated events into perspective.

The first is the oft repeated NDP allegation that the Socreds took revenge for electing NDP by increasing ferry rates and car insurance. Not that I don't think there is a considerable element in the Social Discredit that would be crazy enough to do such a thing, but I think the ruling hierarchy are too astute to walk such a political tightrope.

Nevertheless the concept of political punishment is an interesting one and just as the brainwashing term was eventually turned on its inventors perhaps this one should be also.

Which brings in the second event — namely that since the end of wage controls wage increases have been falling. Now it is well known, in trade union circles, that except for a few varieties of lefties, (who render tenuous support) the great majority of union executives as well as the CLC and the BCFL are in the control of NDP members.

During the period of wage controls the CLC with the overwhelming support of these NDP executives called a one day strike in protest against controls. Now, after about three years of loss in real wages union officials who traditionally, at least, threatened to hit the bricks are now recommending acceptance settlements that are inferior to those attained during the period of controls and certainly less than the inflation rate. Admittedly, during depression times it is hard to hold real wages from falling, but somehow the degree of acquiescence doesn't square. And this is where the two events link.

The question that enters my mind is: When NDP unionists are recommending settlement inferior to those gained during controls, was the CLC motivation for the Day of Protest genuine or a mere political ploy? And if it was genuine is accepting inferior settlements now, what they accuse others of, a form of political punishment for NOT having voted NDP and/or an attempt to aggravate living standards in hope of driving the working class into the arms of their NDP pets? (There is a considerable element of lefty wierdos who have something like this in their credo.)

It appears Canada's workers are headed for some variety of the European syndrome — namely restricted living conditions under their political enemies and alternated by acceptance of low conditions for fear of embarassing their so-called political friends — the inevitable stiff price for contracting out their thinking.

Women omitted in vet deal

This letter is directed mainly to the disabled veterans of Canada. I recently had a phone call from one of these gentlemen. I know they have suffered and had a poor deal.

It does appear too, that many people have forgotten their sacrifices and suffering. I for one will never forget. I had six brothers, one in the Anzaks, one in the London Scottish regiment in the First World War. Two of them died younger than they should have, a younger one was sent to Iraq and died through after effects of the Second World War. I myself was a telephone operator in London during the air raids. In a London magazine John Bull there was a paragraph which stated: "There are others who deserved medals as well as the men at the front and they were the few girls who stayed at their post on the top floor of the telephone exchange while the air raids were on."

I do not wish to boast, but it happened I was one of the few.

There were others — what of the brave nurses and other women who worked so hard to bring the war to an end? Have they complained? They had no pensions or any rewards. With all due respect to the veterans I advise them to get in touch with Donald Munro, MP for Esquimalt. He has devoted much time and effort to improve conditions for the veterans. It would be no use appealing to Trudeau as there is nothing he would do about it. The number to call is (Donald Munro, MP) 658-8606 or 479-3200.

Burning over fire ban

The report that the region district having declared the recent rain had lessened the fire hazard to the degree of allowing incinerator burnings with permission from municipal offices, resulted in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt permitting burning.

Except Victoria city.

Their fire hazard is too high, and polluting the environment is paramount in the eyes of the fire chief and city engineer.

Unfortunately, their reassuring does not include the likes of B.C. Forest Products whose tall stacks spew forth more filthy choking smoke and ash in one hour, polluting the atmosphere for miles, than a thousand incinerators in a day. This process continues day and night.

These people, who probably are dislocating their arms patting themselves on the back for the great job they are doing, are not receiving any pats from me.

It's a case of to hell with the citizen and taxpayer who is denied the same opportunity of burning waste as other municipal citizens, while ignoring the biggest pollution factory in the whole lower Island.

Somebody up there should come down and talk with the people.

GORDY HANSEN,
1316 Finlayson St.,

Queen defended

In reply to a letter of August 12, from D. D. Crowe, I would just like to say I agree wholeheartedly.

It's time we Canadians, especially Canadian born, should rise up and defend our Queen and her family from the likes of Pierre Trudeau. If he wants Quebec or Castro — so be it. We do not need him.

K. BARTEL,

Horrified

Thanks for your editorial Aug. 15 And now murder in His name? I thoroughly agree, and am shocked and horrified. If I thought my own church substantially supported this action of the World Council of Churches I would leave it.

I am an Anglican, a widower, 87 years of age, and regularly attend and support my church. I am writing the bishop of the diocese to suggest we publicly express our condemnation of this decision of the World Council of Churches.

SHOCKED

Another side to shoplifting

With regards to the controversy surrounding the apprehensions of shoplifters and the posting of names we wish to state our position.

Enclosed please find a copy of a "letter" which we will be posting in our store instead of our list of apprehensions. Unfortunately nothing has been said for the protection of the rights of the businessman.

A lot has been said for the protection of the rights of individuals who have been apprehended for shoplifting. Our store (business) is owned by myself and two other young men who are just trying to "make a buck." We are all in our mid-twenties, all have young families and all have a lot to lose if our business should fail. Uncontrolled shoplifting could cause our business to fail!

Our only regret is that the court system with regards to shoplifting is not a tough enough deterrent. We have never wanted to catch shoplifters — just stop them.

The letter reads as follows:

"We will no longer be posting the names of apprehended shoplifters in our store.

We have received support for our list and we have received complaints. The list was never intended to punish people for their acts, it was intended to discourage others from "falling" into the temptation of shoplifting. We realize most shoplifters are not habitual criminals. They are everyday people who for various reasons feel it is not wrong to take one small article from one big store.

"There is another side to the shoplifting problem.

"On Friday afternoon (Aug. 18) an individual whose name was on our list came into our store. This individual asked us to please take down the list. This individual obviously had been through "hell" at home as a result of shoplifting. This individual explained the family crisis taking place as a result of shoplifting. This individual freely admitted guilt. "Yes, I stole the article, but I don't know why." We asked the individual one question: "Would you have stolen anything had you known beforehand of our list?" The answer was "no."

"This individual stole something, admitted guilt, and suffered as a result of shoplifting. This individual did not feel angry at our store detective, in fact she expressed thanks that she was handled discreetly and kindly under the circumstances.

"We wonder how many families have been saved such suffering as a result of our list?"

Cowichan plea

Water policy need urged

The Cowichan Estuary Preservation Society is requesting support from residents and associations in acquiring the Cowichan Estuary Task Force's report from the government. We feel that pressure will be needed to ensure its prompt release. Freedom of information should be an automatic right in our province.

The following letter is being sent as an open letter to B.C. newspapers, magazines and politicians. We hope that you, the reader, and/or your organization will endorse it, copy it and send it to as many Environmental Land Use Committee members, other politicians, etc. as possible.

A water management policy for all waters in B.C. is needed now. Pressure from all points in our province is needed to make this a reality.

If ELUC's decision is: "No more industry for the Cowichan estuary," it will be a major victory for all estuaries in B.C.

We appreciate your help.

CAROL SKINNER,
Secretary,
Cowichan Estuary,
Preservation Society.

"We understand that the Cowichan Estuary Task Force has presented its report to the Environmental Land Use Committee and we are requesting a copy of that report before ELUC's final decision on the estuary is made.

When will it be made available?

A public hearing on this report would be beneficial before the final decision is made and we would like to request one to be held in the Cowichan area. How soon could such a meeting be arranged?

We are concerned about lack of freedom of information and feel that such reports should be available to the public as soon as possible after completion but before government policy is set.

The Cowichan Estuary Task Force's report will be setting a policy precedent for all estuaries in B.C.

B.C. needs a water management policy established now for inland water protection as well as protection for our estuaries. Are you formulating such a policy now?

We respectfully await your answers and trust that they will be forthcoming as soon as possible."

To be considered for publication in entirety or in part, letters to the editor should be on subjects of general interest, brief and to the point and, preferably, typed. Pen-names will be used, if requested, but all letters must be signed by the writer whose address also must be included.

Provincial COURT

Two men arrested inside the locked-out Labatts Brewery in Victoria early Tuesday morning were charged in Victoria provincial court with breaking and entering, and theft.

Charged were 23-year-old Vic Allan Cervinskas, 2182 Kerwood, and 37-year-old Barry Grainger, 2850 Richmond.

Both appeared before Judge Blake Allan, who released them on $500 recognizance each and remanded them until next Wednesday for election of their trial method.

Judge Lance Heard of Duncan reserved his decision, until Sept. 8, in a civil suit brought against a Victoria justice of the peace by an Esquimalt man.

Ronald Shingler, 613 Drake, brought the civil action against Earle Allan Berthiaume, who was ordered on Jan. 4 of this year by Supreme Court Judge J.G. Ruttan to rehear Shingler's complaint against an Esquimalt police constable.

Constable James Askew has been charged with assault causing bodily harm in connection with an incident at the Esquimalt police station on Dec. 19, 1976.

Berthiaume had refused to issue a summons on Shingler's first application but did so after reviewing the evidence. Ruttan had ruled in Shingler's favor in a petition filed on Shingler's behalf by lawyer Douglas Christie. The Supreme Court judge said Berthiaume did not exercise his discretion as completely as he should have.

Heard listened to evidence given by Shingler and Berthiaume and to arguments by Christie and Berthiaume's lawyer, Allan Trann, before reserving his decision.

Christie argued that Berthiaume acted in bad faith and unreasonably and asked Heard to consider court costs incurred by his client.

Trann argued that the complainant in the case had not proven bad faith and that legal costs could only be granted in the court in which the expense was incurred.

Judge Fred Giles handed a 21-year-old former Victorian found guilty of criminal negligence a $300 fine and placed him on two years' probation.

William Ernst Leask, now living in Creston, was found guilty following a trial June 28 and Giles ordered a presentence report for Tuesday.

Evidence during the trial was that Leask was driving east on Esquimalt Road in the 800 block at about 8 p.m. Nov. 12, 1977, and was passing a friend on the inside lane at between 97 and 114 kmh when he lost control of his vehicle.

It clipped a camper unit and skidded sideways about 44 metres before slamming broadside into a pole. Leask was apparently the only person hurt in the accident. He was unconscious for about five days before recovering.

The streets were described by Victoria police as extremely treacherous after heavy rains and two pedestrians walking near the pole narrowly escaped serious injuries.

Polio vaccine runs scarce

Supplies of polio vaccine are very limited in the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit region, but at the same time, the risk of contracting the disease is low, the medical health officer for the region says.

Dr. Peter Reynolds said in a news release that as it had been more than three weeks since B.C.'s single case of polio occurred in Chilliwack, and as the normal incubation period for the disease is five to 12 days, "it appears unlikely that there has been any spread of the disease."

The oral vaccine, normally used by the health unit, is in very short supply, and some of the injectable Salk vaccine is mixed with vaccine for diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus, and is therefore only suitable for infants.

As yet, not enough of the regular Salk vaccine was available for all who wanted it, Reynolds said, and priority was being given to children for their basic series of polio vaccinations, and for booster shots.

With 85 per cent of the children in the province vaccinated against polio, there had not been a single case of the crippling disease in the province for 14 years, until the recent case in Chilliwack involving an unvaccinated person, Reynolds said.

Dief ducks Clark query

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—John Diefenbaker continued Tuesday his attack on the Trudeau government's handling of the economy and national unity, but he stopped short of commiting himself to Conservative leader Joe Clark as a man who could do any better.

"I have confidence in my party," he said in an interview here when asked twice about his confidence in Clark.

"Do you have confidence in the leader of the Progressive Conservative party?" Diefenbaker was asked again.

"I have confidence in my party," he repeated. "It did not bring about these conditions.

"It's the strangest thing that he (Trudeau) who has actually disparaged the unity that existed in this country during his period of office now says, having done that, 'I am the only one that can save the nation.'

"God help Canada if that be the case."

Earlier in the day Diefenbaker said the Trudeau government had left Canada in the worst condition he has seen it in his 82-year lifetime.

"I've never seen such a total lack of government," the former Progressive Conservative prime minister said during his Tuesday visit.

"The highest taxation, a million unemployed. Altogether the country has never been at any time in my lifetime, including the days of war, in the serious situation it is today."

He shrugged his shoulders when asked if the budget reductions announced by the Liberal government last week would bolster the faltering economy.

"It's meaningless action," he said. After Canadians paid the highest taxes ever last year, the government still had a deficit of $13 billion.

"That was the deficit, most of which was borrowed and costs from half a million to a million dollars a day in interest. You and I have to pay for it.

"If you and I were in the same position proportionately, we'd have long since declared bankruptcy."

Asbestos-deal talks soon

QUEBEC (CP)—Negotiations between the Quebec government and General Dynamics Corp. of St. Louis for purchase of a majority holding of Asbestos Corp. should begin shortly, Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau said Tuesday.

Parizeau said that Quebec's financial broker in the matter submitted its report on the value of the company three weeks ago.

Mounties harvest pot in Lasqueti crackdown

RCMP officers from the Parksville-Qualicum Beach detachment on Vancouver Island have been engaged in a harvesting operation on Lasqueti Island which has produced about 2,400 pounds of marijuana in the last two weeks.

The pot has been growing on wilderness plots which have gates and fences to keep animals out. The island is east of Vancouver Island close to Texada Island and almost directly across from Qualicum Beach.

Those who have planted the marijuana have been getting over to the island by using their own boats to cross the seven miles of strait or by ferry service which operates five days a week.

RCMP have been sending three-man teams out on helicopters to scour the island for marijuana plots, and one constable at Parksville called it a race between "them and us."

The latest haul was about 1,000 pounds Monday, 600 of it from one plot and about 100 pounds from each of four others.

Last week, about 700 pounds were taken from one garden and two weeks ago, about 600 pounds came from two other plots.

Lesqueti Island is approximately 15 miles long by three miles wide.

SEARCH WIDENS FOR 4 ON FLIGHT

Additional aircraft from the Canadian Armed Forces have been requested by Pacific Rescue Centre officials to aid in the search for a Cessna 185 overdue on a flight Monday from Rivers Inlet to Friday Harbor.

The float plane was last heard from about 12:40 p.m. Monday near the south end of Rivers Inlet, 70 kilometres north of Port Hardy on Vancouver Island.

Four Americans are aboard the missing plane.

Search and rescue officials have called off a search for a Cessna 150 carrying a Sechelt man and his son which disappeared Aug. 14 on a flight from Campbell River to Qualicum. An official at the rescue centre said Tuesday that all possibilities had been exhausted in the search.

Len Guy 'pulls his slip' at Vancouver newspapers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Len Guy, former secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, "pulled his slip" at Pacific Press this week, removing his name from the printers' seniority list at the company which produces the Vancouver Sun and the Province.

Guy had kept his name on the hiring list throughout his 18-year absence from the press composing room while he pursued a union career. Pulling the slip officially severed his 21-year relationship with the company.

Guy cheerfully suggested that the symbolic gesture "seemed to present a certain degree of glee from the production manager.

"But I'm happy too," he said Monday. "I'm going to take life easy and do a lot of fishing."

In 1947, he became a journeyman printer and joined the Province. Pacific Press Ltd. was formed in 1957.

Guy left in 1960 to work full time as president of the International Typographical Union, Local 226. In 1972, he became secretary-treasurer of the federation, a post he held until his retirement last May.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Overcoming early losses, the stock market posted a modest gain Tuesday with strong performance by some favored stocks of institutional investors.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index of more than 1,500 stocks rose .20 to 892.41.

No single news event appeared to prompt the afternoon rally but analysts said traders drew some encouragement from the dollar's firming on the New York foreign exchange market beginning late in the morning. The dollar gained in Europe but slipped in New York the previous day.

John J. Smith, an analyst at Fahnestock and Co., who said he believed much of the selling pressure lately had come from foreign investors, said it appears some buying from institutions is coming back in the market.

Among Canadian issues on the New York stock exchange, Bell Canada was up ¼ to $52⅝, Canadian Pacific ¼ to $20⅛ and Alcan ⅛ to $31⅛.

Coffee nations to soften frost price hike

BOGOTA (AP) — Representatives of the world's main coffee-producing counties said Tuesday they would not take advantage of the freezes last week that destroyed up to 30 per cent of Brazil's crop to promote large price increases.

Delegates to a two-day meeting here said their objective is to obtain an agreement with the consuming countries on a minimum-maximum range of fair prices.

"We learned our lesson after the freezes in Brazil in 1975 when we almost killed the goose that lays the golden eggs with excessive prices," said El Salvador's delegate, Ricardo Falla.

After the 1975 freezes in Brazil, the world's leading producer, wholesale prices soared to $3.37 a pound, but consumption dropped 20 per cent.

Coffee producers in Colombia have said that the range should be from $1.70 to $2.20.

Railways stalling exports—farmers

EDMONTON (CP) — The National Farmers' Union charged Tuesday that western grain producers have been seriously handicapped by an inefficient transportation system.

At news conferences held in centres across the prairies, the union also said Canada's economy has suffered because delivery of grain committed for export sale was behind by 1.5 million tons as of July 31.

In a statement released in Edmonton by Bill Dascavich, regional co-ordinator in Alberta, the union said:

"We have laid the blame at the doorstep of the railway companies who appear to have deliberately chosen this year, when the wheat board achieved a high sales record, to sabotage the grain-hauling system in an earnest effort to destroy the Crow (statutory freight) rates."

A recent union study showed that, among other things, loaded cars waited for weeks at a significant number of points to be picked up; 1,213 box cars were sitting unused with bad order forms, some forms dating as far back as 1974; and some cars had minimal damage.

Flying over the United States, union members had found 3,000 Canadian rail cars, including about 600 box cars. Some of these were not recorded in the wheat board's listings.

The statement said CP Rail had told the union it wanted to haul as much U.S. grain as possible on its line through Canada.

The union has told Otto Lang, federal minister of transportation, a long-term solution calls for a merger of all railway operations in Canada under public ownership and control, with a view to using their infra-structure as a tool for regional and national development.

The union said Tuesday that if the government fails to act quickly, farmers will lose more grain sales in the coming year and pay more demurrage charges.

Indicators edge up

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Bank of Canada's Trendicator, a composite index of leading economic indicators, edged upward at an estimated annual rate of 0.7 per cent during the second quarter of 1978, marking a welcome contrast to poor first quarter results.

"The upturn in trendicator was broadly based," Dr. Robert Baguley, a senior economist with the bank, said Tuesday.

Nine of 11 component indicators strengthened in the second quarter while seven had declined in the first, he noted.

The index increased to 102.66, up slightly from the upward-revised first-quarter level of 102.49.

Of the two declining statistics, urban housing starts dropped at an above-average rate, said Baguley, adding that if the starts "had remained constant at their first-quarter level instead of plummeting in the second quarter, Trendicator would have shown a much stronger jump of 2.1 per cent."

Unit labor costs, the other declining indicator, were estimated to have dropped at a below-average rate.

The investors index of 134 common stocks and the Toronto Stock Exchange price-earning ratio, both of which recorded above-average gains, led increases.

The average length of the work week in manufacturing also posted an above-average gain, but the remainder showed below-average increases.

Bank economist Dr. Steven Chow noted the current Trendicator value is based upon complete data for only five components—the two stock market indices, urban housing starts, the deflated value of the money supply and primary steel production.

'Warriors' hunt financing

TORONTO (CP) — William J. Kurchak, 33-year-old Toronto business consultant and former economics lecturer, has initiated Business Warriors to help struggling small businesses obtain hard-to-get financing.

Kurchak said in an interview he does not want passive members for his Warriors, a non-profit group that will act as a lobby to get the big banks to provide more help to small, independent business.

Membership fee to join the Warriors is $100 a year, but Kurchak said he only wants small businessmen who are willing to exchange ideas and join actively in the organization.

A business consultant for the last 12 years, Kurchak was an economics lecturer at York University. He and a small staff operate from a single office in downtown Clarence Square.

Kurchak said the first task of the Warriors is to improve on banking services for the small business community, and then to generate self-help programs for them.

He called on the banks to begin a program to improve relations with small businessmen. He said banks should establish a classification system to properly identify the branches qualified to deal with the borrowing needs of small businessmen.

Jobless rate jumps in U.K.

LONDON (AP) — British unemployment increased to 6.7 per cent of the labor force this month, up from 6.6 per cent in July, the employment department said.

Shipyard takeover approved

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has approved the takeover of the Halifax shipyards division of Hawker Industries Ltd. of Toronto by a consortium of three companies, it was announced Tuesday.

The Halifax shipyards division operates two yards, the larger one at Halifax and another at Dartmouth, N.S., which in recent years have been involved mainly in building oil-drilling rigs and vessels as well as some repair work.

Approval for the takeover of the yards was given after screening by the foreign investment review agency.

The consortium involved consists of three companies: CN Marine Corp. of Moncton, N.B., which is Canadian-controlled; Hall Corp. Shipping Ltd. of Montreal, a U.S.-controlled company; and by a Dutch company called Rijn-Schelde-Verholme Machinefabrieken en Scheepswerven NV.

'Fair' taxation pressed by teachers

B.C. urged: Carry more school costs

A larger share of school costs should be picked up by the provincial government, the B.C. Teachers' Federation believes.

The federation is urging the provincial government to reduce its uniform provincial education tax, to increase its homeowner grants, and to lift the costs of post-secondary education from local property taxes.

"The citizens of B.C. need and deserve a system of taxation that is fair to students and taxpayers," BCTF president Pat Brady told a conference of presidents of the federation's 79 local associations at Naramata Sunday night.

The BCTF has called for the basic provincial education levy, collected by local authorities, but set by the provincial government, to be reduced next year from 39.75 mills to 39 mills in 1979, Brady said.

The BCTF also wants the provincial homeowner grant raised to $350 from $280 for those under 65, and to $520 from $480 for those 65 and older. It wants the minimum property tax set at $1 a year for all homeowners, down from $50 for those under 65.

Proclamation of the Colleges and Provincial Institutes Act, passed by the Legislature in 1977, would take the operating costs of community colleges from local property taxes.

Taken together, these proposals would shift $110 million in school taxes from local property owners to the provincial treasury in 1979.

It would be more than offset for the government by higher property assessments and anticipated increases in provincial revenues next year, the federation calculates.

"In the past three years the government has raised the provincial school tax by 50 per cent, from 26.5 mills to 39.75, compared to a 1.6-per cent increase during the previous eight years," Brady said. The increase in this levy and a substantial increase in property assessments reduced the government's share of school operating costs from 42 per cent in 1977 to 39 per cent this year.

Brady said the proportion of education costs raised by property taxes is 25 per cent above the national average, but the province's education costs are not out of line with the national average. The cost per pupil in B.C. went up 98 per cent in constant dollars between 1960 and 1975, while the average increase for Canada was 142 per cent.

"In the face of inflation, necessary improvements in the quality and quantity of service, and additional local responsibilities in providing for handicapped children, public school education requires more adequate funding," Brady declared. The additional funds should come from the provincial government, and not local homeowners, he said.

University envoys visiting Victoria

Several hundred delegates attending the 12th Commonwealth Universities Congress at the University of British Columbia will visit Victoria today aboard the Princess Marguerite.

The eight-day conference, the second ever held in North America since the first congress was held in London in 1912, is being attended by delegates from universities in 25 Commonwealth countries, with B.C.'s three universities acting as hosts.

The delegates' Victoria visit includes a tour of the University of Victoria campus and a concert in the auditorium of the new University Centre featuring Paul Kling, Jaroslav Karlovsky, Susan Eddlemon and Linda Hough-land-Daniels of the UVic String Quartet.

The children of delegates will have a picnic in Beacon Hill Park and tour the Provincial Museum while their parents are at the university.

The congress, held every five years except during wartime, met as the Congress of the Universities of the Empire in London in 1912. It is the oldest international association of universities in the world.

Irritated judge throws out case

EDMONTON (CP)—A provincial court judge, angry at delays in a preliminary hearing, discharged a man facing murder charges when he appeared in court Monday.

Judge H.R. Chisholm discharged Bertrand Sirois after Crown prosecutor Arnold Piragoff announced four witnesses in the case were not available.

Another charge of murder was immediately laid against Sirois after Judge Chisholm left the courtroom.

Piragoff had told the judge two expected witnesses had not been directly served with subpoenas, one witness could not be located and a fourth could not appear because he was drunk.

"One of these witnesses is a drunk and we don't know about the others," declared Judge Chisholm, saying there was not ample evidence for an adjournment.

Victorians held in Alberta killing

Two 18-year-olds from Victoria were charged Tuesday with second-degree murder in Edmonton provincial court in connection with the death of another Victoria man.

The name of the 22-year-old victim, who died of stab wounds, has not been released pending notification of next of kin.

Charged were Edgar Roy Graves and Andrew John Carter.

Edmonton police said three persons were involved in a scuffle at about 3 a.m. Tuesday in front of a hotel on Jasper Avenue. When police arrived, the three ran off but one, the victim, collapsed about a block away. He was taken to hospital but died an hour later.

They're rustlin' up low-cost grub steaks

CALGARY (CP) — As beef prices continue to rise, more people will be tempted to rustle cattle, says RCMP Cpl. Randy Mckenzie.

Mckenzie, livestock officer for the Calgary subdivision, said in an interview that he has investigated the disappearance of 53 animals on farms and ranches across southern Alberta since May.

The animals have an approximate value of $25,000.

"There have been one or two instances when 15 to 20 steers were involved," Mckenzie said.

It is impossible to know how many of the missing cattle were rustled because some may have been killed by predators or died naturally while grazing, he said.

The RCMP have made no arrests this year for cattle rustling and Mckenzie said he expects activity to increase with rising beef prices.

Japanese planning economic spurs

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

TOKYO — Japan is likely to adopt pump-priming measures to add a $10.8-billion stimulus to its economic growth, one of Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda's top economic advisers said.

Isamu Miyazaki, director of the co-ordination bureau of the government's economic planning agency, said in an interview that calculations of how much of a spur is needed to guarantee a real growth rate of seven per cent for the economy in fiscal 1978 were still continuing.

"But I believe (the equivalent of) about one per cent of the gross national product—or two trillion yen—will be necessary," Miyazaki said. (At an exchange rate of 185 yen to one U.S. dollar, two trillion yen is $10.8 billion.)

The cabinet is to decide upon a package of new economic measures, including a supplementary budget, on Sept. 2, he added.

In the wide-ranging interview, Miyazaki also:

- Complained that the United States "is not very interested" in monetary reform and "has shown no interest in making practical use of the (present) monetary system."
- Declared that the American share in Japan's increasing imports of finished products has failed to grow, although European and Southeast Asian countries have increased their shares in the Japanese market.
- Predicted that Japan's current-account surplus would remain large in fiscal 1978 but would undergo a "big change" next year.

Miyazaki said the cabinet would act to plug a hole in planned economic growth that declining export volume has created. His opinion that a $10.8-billion package would be needed contrasted with appeals from Keidanren (federation of economic organization), Japan's most powerful business group, for a package of stimulants worth at least 50 per cent more.

Non-smokers offered $6,500

MOSCOW (AP) — A trade union in the mining region of the Soviet Ukraine has instituted a $6,500 prize for any shop or section whose workers all quit smoking, the Soviet news agency Tass said Tuesday. The agency said workers receive anti-smoking lectures before each shift and that management has quit smoking as an example to the workers.

'People place' mall dream for Saanich

A broad open mall designed as a "people place" is the grand dream of the Saanich planning department as a civic core to replace the houses and vacant lots between Vernon and Seymour Avenues.

A 66-page report presented to council's lands, planning and housing committee Tuesday night would see the three-block area developed gradually.

Aldermen, after hearing complaints from residents that they hadn't had an opportunity to see the report, and complaining themselves they needed more time to study it, tabled the report and recommendations to a meeting late next month.

A bid by Ald. Ian Cass for the whole area to be zoned before development was started was shelved along with the tabling motion.

Meanwhile, Mayor Mel Couvelier was instructed at his own request to meet with the owners of the adjoining Town and Country shopping centre to ensure that the new core development was integrated with plans to expand the existing regional shopping centre.

Ald. John Mika said that what was being proposed was "not so much a downtown for Saanich as an uptown for Victoria."

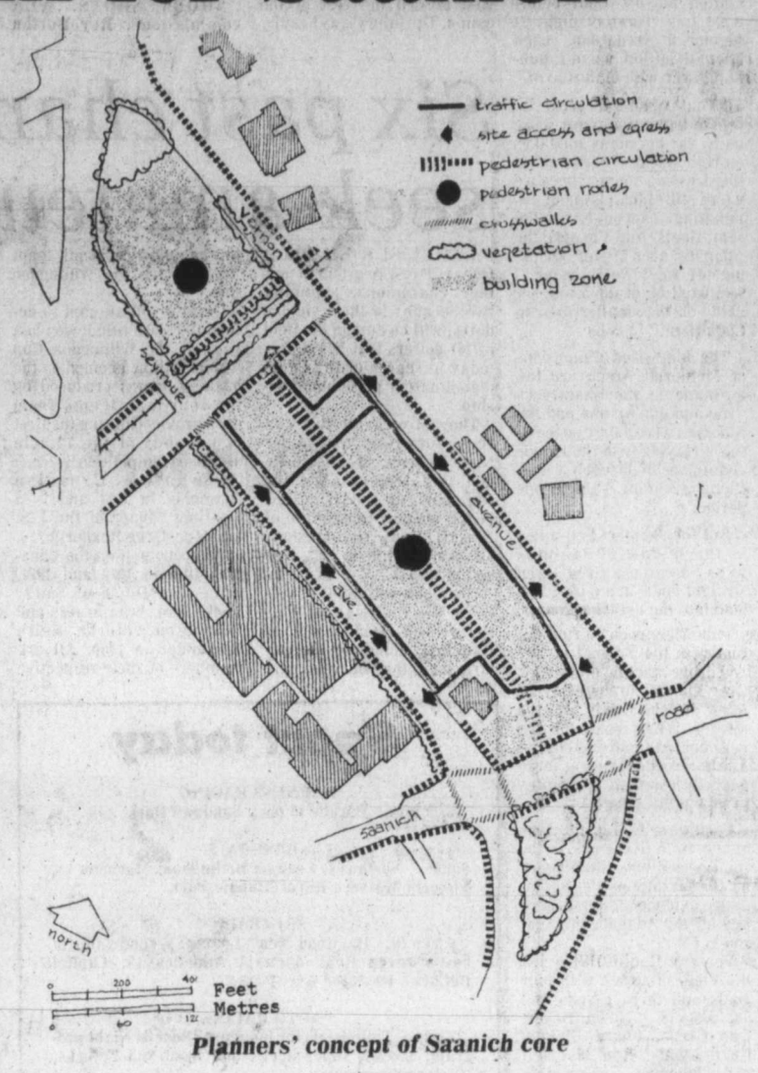
He added that since Saanich was starting 100 years after Victoria, there would be an opportunity to avoid many of the mistakes made there and take advantage of some of the good points as well.

The planning department vision for the 6.9-hectare core area, which is shaped like a cucumber with one end askew, is that it become a civic and commercial core for the "cultural, institutional and social aspirations" of Saanich residents.

The bottom block, south of Saanich Road, would become parkland under the proposal, with the northern block, already consolidated under single ownership, being developed as an entity.

Since ownership of the central block, between Saanich Road and the unused CN railway line, is diversified, the planners feel it should be developed piecemeal under general guidelines that will provide for a continuous pedestrian walkway along its entire length.

The report recommends development of the proposed civic core be related to pedestrian scale, contain mixed land uses and provide for permanent accommodation for adults to prevent the core from "dying" at night.



Planners' concept of Saanich core

Activities to be encouraged, according to recommendations are:

- Indoor and outdoor markets;
- Hotels and theatres;
- A community centre;
- Indoor and outdoor restaurants and cafes;
- Craft and specialty stores and workships such as jewellers;
- Department stores and convenience stores such as bakeries and drugstores.

The report suggests buildings be a maximum of five storeys high to minimize shadow effects on the mall and on surrounding buildings on the north side of Vernon.

It envisages the open-air pedestrian mall to be "a series of spaces, meandering between nodes, always providing a glimpse of what is ahead; always something to see at edges or in mall itself.

Pedestrian accesses recommended include walkways between the Town and Country shopping centre directly south of the core area, a footbridge over and access to the railway cut, which should be left in a natural state, and another bridge to the park south of Saanich Road.

The report proposes the rules regarding provision of parking spaces be relaxed to encourage underground parking and construction of above-grade parking structures off the site.

It suggests a new zone be created under the zoning bylaw for the civic core area and recommends appointment of a landscape architect to co-ordinate the overall design of the mall.

Subdivision drive runs into barrier

Attempts by a long-time Saanich family to subdivide their prime 60-acre parcel of raw land north of Broadmead ran into a barrier Tuesday night.

About 600 houses could be developed on the property.

The application was by Eric Grant, of 809 Towner Park in Sidney, on behalf of his parents and brothers. Grant is the grandson of Ald. William Grant, who was on council shortly after the municipality was incorporated in 1906.

Municipal planner Gil Laurenson said in an accompanying report that the application faced several "constraints."

He said it was outside the urban containment boundary, was zoned rural, was in a five-acre minimum subdivision area and was outside the sewered area.

Laurenson said before development could be considered, council would have to consider whether to adjust the urban containment boundary to include the area.

He said it "would seem to be very discriminatory not to include this land . . . because it is not farmland and it could be serviced if Cordova Bay is serviced."

The chief planner also pointed out that if Saanich's greenbelt policy was to be maintained, the municipality would have to decide whether to buy or lease portion of the 60-acre parcel.

"A study of Cordova Bay is under way as the first local area to be done as part of the community planning process . . . The Grant property is included in the area being investigated."

Laurenson's recommendation that Grant be told of the study and that residents would be invited to contribute to its recommendations before council took a final decision was adopted.

FOUR GENERATIONS and more than a century separate Bridget Morry and Kimberley Davies, 5, but alert 107-year-old had instant rapport with her great-great-granddaughter at Mrs. Morry's birthday party.

To her we're all youngsters

"How are you?"

That standard greeting takes on new meaning when it comes from a 107-year-old to a callow 29-year-old.

Plenty of polite "how are you's" passed back and forth Tuesday at the Richmond Pavilion of Royal Jubilee Hospital. The occasion was the 107th birthday of Bridget Mary Morry, believed to be Victoria's oldest resident.

The years have treated her well. Although she is confined to a wheelchair, her hearing and sight are good, and her success in extinguishing all but a few of the 107 candles that made a small inferno on top of her birthday cake indicated a healthy set of lungs as well.

Born in Newfoundland the year B.C. joined Confederation, Mrs. Morry came to Victoria in 1900 with four children, according to one of the many well-wishers on hand for the birthday party Tuesday, son-in-law Walter Fairfax of Seattle. After coming here, she had another five.

Efforts to find out her secret (for longevity, that is) were not very successful. She doesn't believe in makeup for women, but that isn't the secret. It could well be the warm personality that comes through and touches those around her: the staff at the hospital were taking as many pictures of the occasion as her relatives.

"I've forgotten the number of great-grandchildren she has," Fairfax said. "It was a whole mess of them anyway."

Saanich names personnel boss

Saanich council has named Cleve Tuttle, formerly personnel manager of Eaton's in Victoria, as head of its personnel department.

Mayor Mel Couvelier made the announcement Tuesday night, following an in-camera session of council Monday.

Tuttle will take over Sept. 11, reporting to council through municipal clerk Robert Sharp.

Among other duties, Tuttle will work with Sharp on a reorganization of the municipal clerk's office, Couvelier said.

Tuttle will replace Arthur Wilkes, fired by council early in July after a controversial police job action in which he played a key advisory role.

Tuttle was personnel supervisor for Bapco Paint Ltd. for nine years before joining Eaton's six years ago.

$1,700 gap stalls library move

Bawlf accused of reneging on leasing tab

By PAUL BENNETT
Colonist reporter

In dollar terms, between $1,200 and $1,700 a year is all that separates the Greater Victoria Public Library from its proposed new premises in the provincial government complex on Broughton.

This emerged at Tuesday's meeting of the library board, when pressure was applied on Esquimalt Ald. Larry Mann to have his council reverse its vote against the proposal to lease the premises for 10 years.

However, there is also a philosophical gap, as Mann made clear during an inconclusive discussion that meandered on for almost an hour.

Whether the figure is $1,200 or $1,700 appeared to be immaterial to Mann, who felt that Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf had reneged on a commitment to lease the 50,000 square feet of space at a fixed dollar figure.

Mann viewed the $1,700 as an extra imposition on Esquimalt over the rental originally proposed by Bawlf, and refused to take into consideration the fact the federal government would pay one-third of that amount annually.

Mann also appeared to be holding out for the library board to negotiate with B.C. Buildings Corp., nominal owner of the Broughton complex, for strata-title ownership of the premises.

Library chairman Gordon Hutcheson told Mann he thought it would be impossible to obtain a firm dollar price from BCBC—in the event a strata title was agreed to—in time for Esquimalt council's special meeting Sept. 6 to reconsider its rejection in a 4-3 vote Aug. 9.

Although all other board members view the proposal as merely a stopgap measure until a site and money can be found for a new library building, Mann said he believed that once the library was in the Broughton premises, it would be there indefinitely.

Attempts by library board member Edward Ward-Harris to immediately establish an ad hoc committee to investigate a site and costs for a new library building were headed off by Hutcheson, who said he felt it would be best to await the Esquimalt decision rather than "muddying the waters."

Ward-Harris argued that whether the library moved to Broughton or not "we have to start as soon as possible on getting our own building."

He said it was "disgraceful" that Greater Victoria had any number of "tennis bubbles, birdcages and what-have-you but does not have a central library equivalent to that of many Prairie cities."

Library suggested for Royal Oak area

What may be the first step toward a library branch at Royal Oak was taken Tuesday.

The Greater Victoria Public Library Board moved to ask its library services committee to investigate whether there was a demand for a branch in the Royal Oak shopping centre.

The action came during consideration of a letter from Royal Oak Enterprises, offering the board rental space in the centre, currently under expansion.

Donald Miller, director of the library system, said a bookmobile that used to be sent to Royal Oak on Fridays and Saturdays was so little supported that the stop was no longer on schedules.

However, board members Edward Ward-Harris and Richard Gautier, both of whom live in Saanich, protested that bookmobile usage figures were not a real indicator of demand.

Ward-Harris said the Royal Oak area is a growing community of young families, rather than an area like James Bay, where the bookmobile has many elderly customers who can't readily make it downtown.

The library services committee will be asked to investigate the number of card-holders and books taken out by card-holders in the area to see whether a branch would be warranted.

In other business, the board:

- Voted approval of a 5.4-per-cent pay increase for its three non-union managerial staff members;
- Decided to give preference of up to 10 per cent for qualified local bidders for tenders for library suppliers;
- Received a report indicating the board is now a full member of the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association;

Mediator brings teams together

Mediator Clark Gilmour was reported to have been successful Tuesday in bringing both sides together in his efforts to establish renewed negotiations in the brewery industry dispute.

On Monday he met separately throughout the day with representatives of the breweries and the Canadian Brewery Workers Union.

The principals were remaining silent on what, if any, progress was made Tuesday. But sources said negotiators from both sides had "face-to-face" meetings for the first time in several weeks.

The union struck against Carling O'Keefe in Vancouver May 26 and this was followed June 8 with an industry lockout at Labatt's in Victoria and New Westminster, Molson's in Vancouver, and Columbia Brewery at Creston.

Some 1,400 brewery production and distribution employees have been idled by the dispute, as have an estimated 4,000 hotel and pub employees throughout the province.

ONE WORD, TWO WEAPONS

A holdup man of few words (one) but multiple weapons (two) escaped Tuesday night after robbing a clerk at the Haultain Grocery Store, 1447 Haultain.

Police said the man, wearing a stocking mask and brandishing a knife in one hand and club in the other, fled with about $100 after spending only moments in the store.

A detective said the intruder uttered only one word . . . "money" . . . but the unidentified clerk got his message.

Cabinet asked to restore farmland's reserve status

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist reporter

North Saanich council wants the provincial cabinet to return 16 acres of farmland to the Agricultural Land Reserve.

By a vote of six to one, council approved a resolution late Monday night to "formally apply" to the cabinet to return the land to the ALR and to hold a public hearing on the application.

The resolution was introduced by Ald. Eric Sherwood. North Saanich Mayor George Westwood voted against it.

Sherwood said Tuesday: "There's no machinery for replacing the land except for council to go directly to cabinet."

The parcel has caused some controversy in recent months.

A provincial soils expert, Fred Reid, was fired from the agriculture ministry in June for talking to the press about circumstances surrounding its removal from the ALR.

There is still the political question of why it and surrounding Saanich Peninsula lands were removed from the ALR although they were classed as agricultural.

The 16-acre parcel is rated class 2 and 3 agricultural capability, and is owned by Donald and Jaqueline Wilson, 9299 Canora Road.

The land was removed from the ALR in May this year, following two previous refusals by the B.C. Land Commission.

Land commission chairman Gary Runka said recently that the 16-acre parcel was removed from the ALR because "its capability for agriculture was outweighed by the likely negative impact from surrounding lands which were soon to be developed for residential and other urban uses."

These "surrounding lands" were 63 acres in Sidney.

But how was the surrounding land in Sidney, a 63-acre parcel of farmland, removed from the ALR if the land commission recommended against it?

An answer was given recently by land commission chairman Runka.

Runka said the town of Sidney, at the instigation of the Southwest Sidney Ratepayers Association, an association formed by developer Fred Purvis, applied to the provincial cabinet to remove the 63 acres from the ALR.

Purvis wanted the 63 acres to develop a 33-acre farm into a mobile home development.

Sidney Ald. Jerry Tregaskis, a regional director, led the municipal fight to remove the 63 acres.

Yet the land commission continued to recommend that the 63 acres stay in the ALR. So did the regional planning staff.

Cabinet overruled the land commission's recommendation in January this year and removed the 63 acres from the ALR. No one seems to know why.

This paved the way for Purvis' mobile home development which, according to petitions filed at municipal hall, the townspeople apparently did not want.

Removal of the 63 acres in Sidney in January apparently set the stage four months later for removal of the 16 acres in North Saanich.

It it weren't for the original removal of that Sidney land, Sherwood said Tuesday, North Saanich wouldn't be in the "bind" today of having to ask for the return of 16 acres of farmland.

Handy Shamrock win barely pleases coach

BY STAN COOPER

Some coaches are never satisfied whatever the final outcome.

Victoria Shamrocks had just embarrassed Coquitlam Adanacs 19-10 in the opener of the Western Lacrosse Association playoff final before 2,212 fans Tuesday night at Memorial Arena but coach Nirmal Dillon wasn't bubbling over with enthusiasm.

"That wasn't a great lacrosse game, too many loose balls, far too many mistakes on both sides," Dillon said in the dressing room, "because we're still thinking about eliminating Vancouver in the semi-finals. And I'm sure the Adanacs aren't over knocking off New Westminster. I feel we'll be in for a tougher game on the smaller floor in Coquitlam."

The king-sized dimensions of Memorial Arena are tailor-made to the Shamrocks "run-and-gun" game and the Adanacs were fairly successful in staying with the league champions in the early going, Victoria leading 6-3 after one period.

But the Adanacs fell apart in the middle 20 minutes when Shamrocks fired seven straight goals and took a 15-6 lead into the dressing room.

Ivan Thompson started the rout with the 9-4 goal at 4:07 and drove starting netminder Greg Thomas to the bench in favor of John Lewis. But the former WLA rookie of the year couldn't halt the charge as Shamrocks fired six more goals in less than 12 minutes to take a 15-4 edge.

Coquitlam scored the four of the first five goals in the final period but wilted under a late barrage as the Shamrocks extended their record against the Adanacs this season to 6-0-1.

Veteran Ranjit Dillon led the Victoria attack with four goals and three assists and six players - Norm Baker, Dan Green, Charn Dhillon, Gord Lyons, Ron MacNeil and Thompson - chipped in two goals apiece. Jeevan Dillon, Jerry McKenna, and junior-recruit Doug Angrove finished off the Victoria attack.

Longtime-Adanac Jim Aitchison had three goals, junior-callup Mike Reelie added two and others were contributed by Moe Jodoin, Ray Durante, Gord Quilty, Geordie Dean and Randy Bryan.

The second game will be played Thursday in Coquitlam with the third here on Saturday and the fourth in Coquitlam on Sunday, not Monday as previously announced.

If further games are necessary, they will be played next Tuesday here, Aug. 31 in Coquitlam and Sept. 1 here. The WLA champions leave Sept 2 for Ontario and the Mann Cup final.

Victory may have been costly to the Shamrocks as Baker suffered a sprained ankle in the second period and missed the rest of the game. The injury was heavily taped and he will see a doctor today before a decision on Thursday's game will be made.

Shamrocks will have Gerry Cadwallader (suspended) and Larry Bell (bruised chest) available Thursday.

SHORT SHOTS...WLA commissioner Roy Burton said the best-of-seven Mann Cup series will start with games Sept. 4-5 and Sept. 7-8 with others, if necessary, Sept. 10-11 and either Sept. 12 or Sept 13. At last report, Peterborough had a 2-1 lead in games over Owen Sound in the Ontario Lacrosse Association final.

Six past champions seek amateur title

LAVAL-SUR-LE-LAC, Que. (CP) — A group of former champions, spanning two decades in their victory dates, will be among the field of 161 golfers that begin play today in search of the Canadian amateur golf championship.

They stretch all the way from four-time titleholder Nick Weslock of Mississauga, Ont., who first won the championship in 1957, to last year's winner, Rod Spittle of Niagara Falls, Ont. Weslock also won the title in 1963, 1964 and in 1966.

He, along with Spittle, veteran Gary Cowan of Kitchener and Brent Loutit of Hamilton, comprise the Ontario team that will take part in the interprovincial team matches for the Willingdon Cup.

Ontario will attempt to defend the team title it won last year as the Willingdon Cup winner will be decided on the basis of scores produced by the four-man teams from each province during the first two rounds of the 72-hole amateur competition.

Cowan was Canadian champion in 1961 and is a two-time winner of the U.S. amateur. Doug Roxburgh, 26, of Vancouver, won the Canadian title in 1972 and 1974, while Jim Doyle of Sandy Hook, Man., won in 1968 and Edmonton veteran Keith Alexander in 1960. All are members of their respective provincial teams.

With Roxburgh on the B.C. team are 16-year-old Rick Gibson and veteran Willingdon-Cupper Dr. Dave Mick, both of Victoria, and another veteran Bob Mitchell of Vancouver.

They will be among the golfers who will initially test the par 36-36—72, 6,521-yard course before the field is cut to the low 70 and ties following Thursday's second round.

Although the course is not a long one, it is deceptive. It features some slick, undulating greens and is a layout that stresses good placement of tee shots because, while the fairways appear wide enough from the tee, they are narrow in spots.

Veterans insist that it is a "driver and putter" course, and while it shouldn't happen, a good number of golfers could wind up playing an unwanted number of three-putt greens.

They predict that a score of 280, eight under par, should win it and point to the fact that in 1962,the last time the club was the site of the professional Canadian Open, Ted Kroll won with a 10-under 278, two strokes better than fellow-American Charlie Sifford.

Included in the field of 161 is a 26-man American force, plus four golfers from Mexico. One of the Mexicans, Rafael Alarcon of Mexico City, almost won the title two years ago only to lose in a playoff to Jim Nelford of Burnaby,now on the U.S. pro tour. Nelford, defending champion in 1977, lost the title by two shots to Spittle at the Hamilton Golf and Country Club at Ancaster, Ont.

Dave De Santis of Tucson, Ariz., and Andre Gagne of Quebec City equalled the club record for amateurs as they shot 66s during a qualifying round Tuesday. The record had been set previously by local golfers Pierre Archambault, a member here, Dave Moon and Guy Rolland.

The professional record is 65, held by a number of golfers, including former club pro Jules Huot and Peter Thompson of Australia.

Two other Americans, Gregg Jones of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Paul Marchand of Franklin, Ind., had excellent three-under-par 69s to qualify.

However, Nathaniel Crosby, son of the late Bing Crosby, who in addition to his long and successful career as a singer and actor was an avid golfer and tournament sponsor, had a tough day. The younger Crosby barely managed to qualify with a 76 Tuesday, the cut-off score necessary to avoid elimination.

Leflore cracks record in sparking Tiger win

Ron Leflore is a much more successful thief now that he's stealing bases instead of money.

The ex-convict, who served a penitentiary term for armed robbery, broke the American League record for consecutive thefts when he stole his 27th straight base in a major-league baseball game at Bloomington, Minn. Tuesday.

The 28-year-old Detroit native also drove in a run as the Tigers downed the Minnesota Twins 7-3.

Leflore, six-foot and 195 pounds, led off the third inning with a single, stole second easily on the first pitch by Darrell Jackson and scored on a single by John Wockenfuss. The steal broke the mark of 26 set by Oakland's Mitchell Page last season. The major-league record of 38 was set by Dave Lopes of Los Angeles Dodgers in 1975.

Leflore, who also drove in Detroit's fourth run with a two-out single in the sixth inning, leads the majors with 58 steals this season.

Tim Corcoran added a three-run double in the ninth inning.

Winner Jim Slaton, 13-9, went the distance for the 10th time this season, allowing seven hits while striking out three and walking two. Corcoran's bases-loaded double came off Twins losing reliever Stan Perzanowski, 2-6.

The win enabled the steadily gaining Tigers to move to within eight and a half games of the eastern leading Boston Red Sox.

Glen Abbott pitched a five-hitter and Bruce Bochte cracked a two-run homer as the Seattle Mariners surprised the Red Sox 5-2 at the Kingdome.

Abbott, 6-10, hurled shutout ball until George Scott opened the eighth with an opposite field home run. The homer was Scott's ninth.

Boston starter Louis Tiant didn't allow a hit for the first four innings but Leon Roberts singled to lead off the fifth inning and Bochte followed with his homer. Two outs later, Bill Stein singled up the middle and scored on a double by Bill Plummber.

Dan Meyer added a two-run single in the eighth.

Defeat spoiled the 39th birthday celebrations of Red Sox veteran Carl Yastrzemski.

Milwaukee Brewers closed to within seven games of Boston as they swept a double-header from Cleveland Indians by 3-2 and 5-4 scores at Milwaukee.

Former Red Sox Cecil Cooper hit a bases-loaded single with two out in the ninth inning to give Milwaukee the win in the nightcap while a double by Larry Hisle brought home the winning run in the opener.

New York Yankees also gained on the leaders as Catfish Hunter pitched a six-hitter for his sixth victory in seven decisions as the Yankees downed the California Angels 6-2.

Highlighting play in the National League was the Cincinnati Reds 11th inning 5-4 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

St. Louis tied the game with four runs in the ninth inning and Cardinal reliever Tom Bruno retired Pete Rose and Joe Morgan to start the 11th inning. But Bruno walked Ken Griffey who stole second and scored on a single by George Foster.

Tom Seaver held the Cardinals to two hits for eight innings but a home run by Ted Simmons and singles by Keith Hernandez and Wayne Garrett chased him in the ninth inning.

Seaboard adds to trophy shelf

Pitching and power provided Seaboard Construction with another title Tuesday.

The well-rounded Stuffy McGinnis League champion added playoff honors to its booty with a 7-0 victory over Victoria Athletics before a crowd of about 300 at Central Park.

Randy Jackson provided the pitching with a five-hitter and Brian Grexton came through with the power, a three-run homer in the first inning and sacrifice fly in the fourth inning, as Seaboard took the best-of-seven final four games to one.

Both Seaboard and the Athletics will represent the city in the B.C. senior "B" championships which start Friday at Central and Royal Athletic Parks.

Jackson, who struck out six and walked two, got the support he needed in the first inning when Wayne Forland walked, Scott Sinclair singled and Grexton homered. Seaboard added a run when Paul Morrison walked, took third on a single by Glen Kilduff and scored on a wild pitch.

Victoria starter Ken Fox gave up only three hits, but he had control problems and was relieved in the fourth inning after giving up walks to Jackson and Forland.

Ray Beveridge came on in relief and gave up the final three runs on a single by Sinclair, the sacrifice by Grexton and a single by Morrison.

At Heywood Avenue Park, Capital Builders took a 1-0 lead in their best-of-five Heywood League final with a 5-1 triumph over Victoria Athletics.

Larry McKinnon homered for Athletics but it was the only run off Dave Hughes who gave up four hits. Losing pitcher Russ Minness gave up only three hits but two were run-scoring singles by Kevin Gilbert.

Builders were aided by five walks, a hit batter and three errors that helped score three runs in the sixth inning.

In senior "C" women's playdowns, Mavis Underwood sparked Butler Brothers victory in the opening game of the best-of-three final.

The Butler shortstop hit a single, a double and a triple, walked twice and scored four runs, including the winner, as Butler Bros. triumphed 8-7 over Hygrade Radio at Hyacinth Park.

Gina Olson went the distance to earn the victory and Deanna Daniels and Josephine Dick contributed two hits each.

Shirley Munn, singled, walked, twice reached on errors and scored four runs for Hygrade.

Two Rockies sign

DENVER (AP) — Gary Croteau and Denis Dupere have signed free agent contracts with Colorado Rockies of the National Hockey League, team officials announced Tuesday.

Umps demands draw rejection

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee MacPhail and Chub Feeney, respective presidents of the American and National leagues, sent a joint telegram Tuesday to Philadelphia lawyer Richard Phillips, refusing to reopen negotiations on a contract for baseball umpires.

Phillips, who represents the Umpires Association, had threatened a strike by the 52 major league umps unless the two leagues agree to their demands for improved benefits and working conditions. He also filed a suit with the National Labor Relations Board on Monday, charging the two leagues with unfair labor practices.

The umpires currently are in the first year of an agreement signed last winter which carries through the 1981 season. MacPhail and Feeney cited that agreement in their response to Phillips's telegram of last week which listed the umpires's demands.

"Because of the existence of the current collective bargaining agreement and the scope of negotiations leading thereto, it would be inappropriate at this time to negotiate the matters included in your telegram of August 16," MacPhail and Feeney told Phillips. "As you know, our agreement with the Umpires Association contained a "no-strike" provision which we assume would be honored by the association. Any failure to honor that "no-strike" commitment would be a clear violation of our agreement and could be very damaging both to our sport and to the umpires themselves."

"Of course, we are always willing to meet informally with you to discuss matters of interest to the umpires, without prejudice to the right of the clubs to insist on compliance with our current agreement. If you wish to have such a discussion with us, we would be willing to meet with you at a mutually convenient time."

Phillips said the current umpire demands cover items not included in their contract and that they could be discussed because of clauses in the agreement which permit re-opening negotiations.

Mussels performance belies record

BY TOM KEYSER

According to the latest Northwest League figures, Victoria Mussels can catch the ball and throw it. They're at the bottom of the batting list and well down in pitching but Mussels are among the top three clubs in fielding.

It says so right there on the stat sheet.

Well, the 580 helmet-night fans who sat through Victoria's 8-3 loss to Bellingham Mariners at Royal Athletic Park Tuesday could be excused for demanding a recount.

Playing before the third-largest crowd of the season, the normally sure-handed Mussels committed no less than six errors, all of the crucial variety. It was a bad time to get the shakes.

Actually, the defence assumed a Jekyll-Hyde attitude, sprinkling in a few shining plays among all those bad ones.

As all faithful readers of Classics Comics know, Jekyll and Hyde were one and the same, a kindly doctor named Jekyll who drank weird juice in order to become the murderous Mr. Hyde.

Mussels offered a variation on the theme: Jekyll—left fielder Paul Kirsch makes a perfect throw in the second inning, turning a solid single by Dave Valle into just another out at second; Hyde—shortstop Doug Morganti and third baseman Al Alpaugh boot chances in the first allowing the first two Bellingham runs; Jekyll—centre fielder Bob Potts makes a good catch in the sixth inning and fires an on-target peg to catch a runner in a double-play; Hyde—two plays later, Morganti fields a grounder and tosses well over first base on what should have been the third out.

Three runs score before the inning is out. You get the idea.

Even though Mussels lost their fifth straight game, the biggest loser was starter Don Rogelstad. The part-owner and pitching coach, now 2-5, gave up seven runs, only one earned.

Rogelstad went seven-plus innings before deciding he'd taken enough abuse from his infield for one night. He gave up eight hits, striking out six and walking nobody.

The blow that sent him packing was Bellingham catcher Dave Edler's line-drive homer to centre in the eighth, representing the lone earned run.

Righthander Carl Best, 3-2, earned the victory, with relief help from Rob Pietroburgo.

Mike Carey singled in the first Victoria run in the fifth inning and Mussels mounted their only real threat in the eighth. Steve Kasunic singled, Potts reached on an error and Kirsch collected his second hit for one run. Alpaugh singled in Victoria's third run before Pietroburgo bore down to retire the side.

Victoria, 24-34, lost its ninth game to Mariners, now 37-26, in 13 starts. The Mariners make their final appearance of the season here tonight, 6 p.m. at Royal Athletic.

GANG-TACKLED by a tough Montreal defensive line, Larry Key of B.C. Lions grimaces as he is pulled down after a short gain. Key contributed a touchdown but two early Montreal touchdowns and a controversial call late in the game helped Alouettes emerge with 30-26 win.

Controversial call hurts Lions in bid for comeback victory

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Conference hung on to defeat British Columbia Lions of the Western Conference 30-26 in an interlocking Canadian Football League game on Tuesday night.

Quarterback Joe Barnes threw touchdown passes to Ken Starch and Peter Dalla Riva while Jim Burrow intercepted a B.C. pass for another, Don Sweet kicked three field goals and converted the three Montreal touchdowns.

Jerry Tagge threw to Jim Young for one British Columbia touchdown while Harry Holt and Larry Key ran for the others. Lou Passaglia kicked one field goal, three singles and converted two of the majors.

The Alouettes got some help from the referee with a pass interference call against the Lions in the dying minutes of the game, to the delight of the Olympic Stadium's 65,312 fans.

The Alouettes jumped on the Lions on the first play from scrimmage after Sweet sent the game-opening kickoff to the four-yard line with Leon Bright returning it to the eight.

On the opening play, Tagge faded to his goal line and lofted a pass toward Al Charuk at the 15 but Burrow stepped in front of Charuk and crossed the goal line unmolested.

Sweet converted and kicked off again but, after the Leos made one first down, the Als defence forced Lions into a punting situation at the Montreal 51.

Jerry Friesen blocked the attempted punt by Passaglia and Ty Morris recovered for Montreal on the Lions' 36.

On the first play from scrimmage Barnes sent a 25-yard pass to John O'Leary that left the ball on the 11. On the next play, Barnes tossed to Starch who rambled into the end zone and after the Sweet convert, Montreal was ahead 14-0 with the game only 4:26 old.

The Lions bounced back with Young combining with Tagge for a 44-yard scoring play and Passaglia booting the convert and a 16-yard field goal before the end of the first quarter.

The defending Grey Cup champions drew first blood in the second quarter when a Sweet kicked his first field goal of the game at 4:24 from the 41-yard line.

Passaglia made it 17-10 with a 53-yard single.

Barnes threw his second touchdown pass in the final minute of the first half as Dalla Riva dove across the goal line to take a 22-yard toss. The touchdown was the first of the season for the veteran tight end, who had not played since the first game when be broke his left hand in a game against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Sweet converted and the Als went to the dressing room with a 24-11 halftime lead.

British Columbia moved to within five points in the third quarter with a single and a converted touchdown while holding the Alouettes scoreless.

Passaglia got the single on a 62-yard punt and the touchdown came on a one-yard run by Key after Tagge and Leon Bright had hooked up on a 54-yard pass-and-run play involving Tagge and Leon Bright.

Sweet upped the margin to 27-19 when he hit for his second field goal, from the 16-yard line with seven minutes gone in the final quarter.

The Lions narrowed the gap to two points when Holt ran over from the nine yard line.

Tagge tried to tie the game with a two-point convert, but the attempt failed as several defenders batted the ball away. The Holt major came at 11:43.

Just two seconds later, Passaglia kicked his third single of the night with a booming 71-yarder.

The Alouettes took the ball from their own 35 and after Barnes ran 14 yards for a first down, Montreal got some help from the game officials.

On second and 10 from the Montreal 49, Barnes attempted a pass to Dalla Riva with pass interference called on defensive back John Beaton. When Paul Giroday of the Lions was thrown out for pushing the referee on the call, Montreal gained first down on the B.C. 19.

Two plays later the Lions were assessed a 10-yard penalty for unsportsmanlike conduct and when the Alouettes failed to pierce the B.C. defence, Sweet kicked his third field goal from the 11-yard line at 13:22.

Stamps strike fast to wallop Riders

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders scored touchdowns the first two times they had their hands on the football and went on to defeat Saskatchewan Roughriders 43-22 in a Canadian Football League game before 26,876 onlookers Tuesday night.

The win put Calgary into second spot in the Western Conference standings with a record of 3-2-1. Saskatchewan, under new head coach Walt Posadowski, now are winless in their six regular season starts.

Saskatchewan plays host to Toronto Argonauts in an interlocking game Sunday in Regina.

Calgary jumped into a 15-10 first quarter lead, then increased the margin to 30-10 and added 10 unanswered points in the third quarter.

Tom Forzani led the Calgary scoring attack with two touchdowns on 12- and 19-yard passes from starting quarterback John Hufnagel. Willie Burden scored on a one-yard plunge. James Sykes caught a 62-yard pass from Hufnagel and Willie Armstead grabbed another Hufnagel throw for 23 yards to score the other Calgary touchdowns.

Stampeder kicker Cyril McFall was good on two field goals of 38 and 27 yards, converted all five touchdowns and added singles of 51 and 43 yards to round out the Stampeder scoring.

Brian O'Hara combined with starting Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster for a 73-yard touchdown, and Roughrider relieving quarterback Larry Dick threw a nine-yard pass to Bob Bruer for another Rider touchdown.

Mike Strickland ran over from the one-yard line to give Saskatchewan its third and final touchdown.

Kicker Bob Macoritti booted a 40-yard field goal and converted O'Hara's touchdown. The Riders were unsuccessful on two-point conversion attempts after the Breur and Strickland touchdowns.

Affirmed, Slew race discussed

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Louis Wolfson, owner of 1978 Triple Crown winner Affirmed, has been contacted about a match race between his horse and 1977 Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew, the Louisville Courier-Journal reported in a copyrighted story in Wednesday's editions.

It was suggested the race be held this fall at Churchill Downs, home of the Kentucky Derby, with the winner to receive $1 million, Wolfson was quoted as saying.

There never has been a race between Triple Crown winners.

Most of the money would be put up by NBC with each horse getting $200,000 to start. The distance would be same as the Derby's mile-and-a-quarter, The Courier-Journal reported.

However, the Courier-Journal said a source close to the Slew camp, who declined to be identified, said it was doubtful that the race would be held at Churchill Downs, claiming that "the networks want it in prime time and that means it could be held only one place—the Meadowlands (in New Jersey), where they have night racing.

"The network will put up $500,000 if it can be scheduled in prime time but only $200,000 if it's in the afternoon. And money is a big consideration."

"We'll discuss it with somebody in authority," Wolfson said. "If somebody can come up with it, I'll talk to Laz Barrera (Affirmed's trainer) about it."

The newspaper said the man who mentioned the deal to Wolfson was Brownell Combs of Lexington's Spendthrift Farm. Combs and two partners recently bought a half interest in Slew from Mickey Taylor and Dr. Jim Hill. In addition, Combs announced last week that Affirmed will go to stud at Spendthrift in 1979, after his four-year-season.

Benefit event tonight

Western Speedway and the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association are combining their resources to provide a service for the community.

The two auto-racing outfits are working together on the first "Benefit Night" which will be held tonight at the Millstream Road Oval.

Speedway manager Tony Mortel says every Victoria owner with a car ready to run, including the open super-stocks, has promised to take part in the stock car, super-stock and open super-stock program featuring trophy dashes, heat races and main events for each class.

All VITRA competitors have agreed to donate the entire purse to the fund, Speedway employees are donating their time and the Speedway is donating allof the gate receipts.

"We get tremendous support from the community so we feel we are in a good position to raise money for the less fortunate," says Mortel who plans to make the benefit race an annual event.

Unfortunately the benefit idea has grown out of a sad event. Mike Barteaux, a young and popular driver at the Speedway, has leukemia and most of the money raised tonight will go to help him obtain treatments at a special cancer clinic in Mexico.

Mike is presently in the East visiting relatives.

Gates open at 6, time trials start at 7 and racing begins at 8 p.m.

Because of the nature of the cause, ticket prices have been reduced. Adults and students will be admitted for $2, children 6-12 are 50¢ and children under-12 are free.

Crewman lost in yacht race

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (CP) — The Lake Ontario international yacht race suffered the first fatality in its 30-year history when a crewman of one of the Canadian entries was swept overboard during a violent storm.

Robin Lewis Foley, 34, of Toronto, one of the crew on Mary Popins II went overboard when he was hit by a spinaker during the storm that had winds with gusts to 80 kilometres an hour.

'B' tourney here on weekend

B.C. men's softball

With the provincial senior "A" championships out of the way, Victoria softballers are turning their attention to the B.C. "B" championships.

Seaboard Construction, champion of the Stuffy McGinnis League, is hosting the 12-team, double-knockout tournament which runs Friday through Sunday at Central and Royal Athletic Parks.

The tournament opens Friday evening with three games at Athletic Park. Seaboard plays New Westminster Royal Towers Blues at 6:30 p.m., Victoria Athletics meet Vancouver Night and Day at 8:30 and Port Alberni Athletics take on North Vancouver Big Bird Sound at 10:30.

There will be 10 games at Central Park Saturday with both the upper and lower diamonds in use at 10 a.m., 12 noon, 2, 4 and 6:30 p.m. The night games will be played at 8:30 and 10:30 at Athletic Park.

Besides Seaboard, Port Alberni, Vancouver and New Westminster are considered among the top teams in the tournament.

Port Alberni, which includes former McGinnis League standout Bill Polz on its pitching staff, was so strong this season that many expected the club to vie for the "A" championship. The mid-Island team played provincial "A" champion Victoria Budgets six times and although it lost all six games the scores were generally close, 4-0, 1-0, 2-1, 1-0, 1-0 and 5-2.

Both Vancouver and New Westminster have played regularly against "A" clubs and New Westminster was formerly in the Pacific Coast Fastball League.

The other teams in the tournament are Richmond Army, Navy and Air Force, Nelson McDonald Mason Realty, Terrace, Kelowna, Kamloops and Langley.

All Sunday games will be played at Central Park starting at 9 a.m.

Blues sign Walton

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues said Tuesday they have signed centre Mike Walton for the 1978-79 National Hockey League season.

Emile Francis, the club's president and general manager, said he expects Walton, who led Vancouver Canucks in power-play goals last season, to be a key man on the Blues' power play this season. Walton, who was acquired by the Blues on June 12, was the leading scorer for the Canucks last season with 29 goals and 37 assists.

"We knew we had to improve his club offensively, and Walton's acquisition was one of a number of steps we took to hone up that area," Francis said.

Terms of the pact were not revealed.

SALMON ANGLERS should note a discrepancy in federal fisheries Tidal Water Sport Fishing Guide for 1978, with reference to the use of downriggers.

It is now unlawful to attach any line to a downrigger without an automatic release clip.

That does away with the line commonly called a meat line which is usually fixed to the bottom of a downrigger, near the weight. But any number of lines may be used on a downrigger provided they are attached to the downrigger line by automatic release clips which release the fishing line when a fish takes the lure, allowing the fish to be retrieved by rod and reel.

In the new regulations guide item seven g explains the regulation as it actually is, but guide item 13 under the heading downriggers indicates a meat line is allowed.

But, be warned now, new clarification from federal fisheries definitely outlaws the meat line.

Anglers should also note that the new regulations for daily bag limits read "the first four salmon caught in any one day, 12 inches or more in length, measured from tip of nose to centre of tail." That means that anglers are not supposed to release legal size salmon and if the first fish they catch are legal grilse, or jacks, when they are really fishing for heavyweight chinooks or big coho, they must be content with the smaller fish if they catch their limit of them first. There should be no releasing of fish in the hope of catching bigger, or more desireable, salmon.

ANOTHER NEW REGULATION change passed in June prohibits the removal of heads or tails from salmon grilse before bringing them ashore. A grilse is considered any salmon weighing less than three pounds and purpose of the new regulation is to end a practice that has sometimes been used to conceal the presence of undersized fish.

Not printed in the Guide this year, but still in effect, is the chinook bag limit in Muchalat Inlet. From July 1 to Aug. 31 the daily limit is two, and the season limit is four.

Northern Vancouver Island anglers should note there is now a seasonal closure for the conservation of chinooks and coho on the lower Marble River and in Varney Bay, from Aug. 15 to Dec. 31.

★ ★ ★

A DISGUSTING LOOPHOLE in the new limitations on possession of sports caught canned or bottled salmon, and on the transport of sport caught salmon from the province, to 25 pounds of canned or bottled salmon, really negates the intent of the new regulation.

It amounts to one law for the rich and one law for the poor and special privileges to private industry.

Here it is: The law will NOT apply to sport-caught salmon which is canned by a commercial cannery or a properly licenced sportfish cannery and is shipped by the canner to the fisherman's permanent home.

Now, whatever is the difference between a woman who undertakes the work of canning her own salmon and a commercial cannery used by someone who can afford to pay someone else to do the work? Surely the new regulation was to curtail fish hogs and still allow visiting anglers to take home a reasonable amount of salmon — two days possession, which is eight fish, only 25 pounds of which may be canned.

New size limit in red rock crabs is only 4½ inches across the greatest breadth of the shell, but Dungeness crab size limit remains at 6½ inches. Daily limit is now four crabs, instead of six.

Clam limit has jumped to 75 clams, from 24 clams, only 12 of which may be razor clams and 25 of which may be butter clams. There are no size limits for sportsmen on razor, butter and littleneck clams.

Maximum fines for infractions of sport fishing regulations have been upped this year to $5,000, from $1,000.

ONE OF THE CHARACTERS in this outdoors column for the past 18½ years has gone.

Chow Chow, our 21-year-old Siamese cat travelled with us on all our outdoor adventures throughout Vancouver Island, British Columbia, Alberta and Washington State. She even back-packed with us, sometimes walking, sometimes sitting on top of my packsack, and she cruised the Gulf Islands with us in our little aluminum boat and went fishing in our new mini-cabin cruiser.

She knew just about every mousing ground in Vancouver Island's wilderness camping spots and often stood beside us as we fished the wild rivers. She was a great companion.

Chow Chow went to sleep and just didn't wake up.

Assault on records led by Americans

BERLIN (AP) — Cynthia Woodhead, Jesse Vassallo and the United States men's 400-metre freestyle relay team set world records Tuesday as Americans continued to dominate competition at the world swimming championships.

Yulia Bogdanova of the Soviet Union added a fourth world record, beating U.S. star Tracy Caulkins in the women's 100-metre breaststroke.

Woodhead was timed in one minute 58.53 seconds in capturing the women's 200-metre freestyle. She edged previous world record holder Barbara Krause of East Germany, who finished in 1:59.78. Larissa Tsareva of the Soviet Union was third in 2:01.76. Nancy Garapick of Halifax and Gail Amundrud of Vancouver finished seventh and eighth, both timed in 2:04.14.

Vassallo shattered his own world record in winning the 400-metre men's individual medley with a time 4:20.05. He beat Sergei Fesenko of the Soviet Union, who finished in 4:22.28, also ahead of the record Vassallo set earlier this month of 4:23.39.

Andres Hargitay of Hungary was third in 4:27.04. Bill Sawchuk of Thunder Bay, Ont., finished eighth in 4:33.25.

The relay team of Jack Babashoff, Ambrose Gaines, James Montgomery and David McCag set a world record of 3:19.74, shattering the mark of 3:21.11 set last year by another U.S. team. West Germany finished second in 3:26.65, followed by Sweden in 3:26.95 and Canada 3:27.14.

Bogdanova won the 100-metre breaststroke with a world record time of 1:10.31. Caulkins finished second in 1:10.77, also under the world record of 1:10.86 set at the 1976 Montreal Olympics by Hannelore Anke of East Germany.

Caulkins, at 15 one of the youngest world class swimmers, was leading for much of the race but was overtaken on the last lap. Margaret Kelly of Britain, who was first in the qualifying, won the bronze medal.

Linda Jezek of the U.S. won the women's 100-metre backstroke with a time of 1:02.55. Ulrike Richter of East Germany holds the world record of 1:01.51, set in 1976.

Brigit Treiber of East Germany was second in 1:03.18 and Cheryl Gibson of Edmonton third in 1:03.43.

Gibson provided the Canadian team with only its second medal of the meet. On Sunday, Edmonton's Graham Smith won a silver.

After 10 swimming finals, the U.S. has eight gold medals and four world records.

Earlier Tuesday, law student Phil Boggs won his third straight world championship in men's three-metre springboard diving.

The 28-year-old former Air Force officer from Ann Arbor, Mich., rolled up 913.95 points to 873.33 for East German Falk Hoffmann. Giorgio Canotto of Italy, a once-retired Olympian who has returned to world competition at age 31, took the bronze medal.

Bing Crosby enshrined in golf hall

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Billy Casper and the late Bing Crosby head a group of five who were inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame Tuesday.

The induction of Casper, Crosby, Clifford Roberts, Harold Hilton and Dorothy Campbell Hurd brought to 35 the number of men and women enshrined since the Hall of Fame was opened in 1974.

Casper, 47, is the only living member of this year's class.

Casper, who will compete in the $250,000 Hall of Fame Classic that begins Thursday, has won 51 American tour titles.

Crosby and Clifford Roberts were selected to the Hall's Distinguished Service category. Crosby, of course, was the founder and guiding force behind the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, for four decades a tour strong-point.

Roberts, with his close friend Bobby Jones, established the Masters in Augusta, Ga. and served as the tournament chairman and director for more than 40 years.

Hilton, an Englishman, won the British Amateur four times between 1900 and 1913, took the U.S. Amateur in 1911 and twice won the British Open before the turn of the century.

Hurd, a Scotswoman, won the British women's title in 1909 and 1911, the U.S. women's amateur in 1909, 1910 and 1924 and collected three Canadian and three Scottish crowns.

City swimmers earned medals

Five Victoria swimmers added to Vancouver Island's bag of medals at the B.C. Summer Games, which concluded in Penticton over the weekend.

Lynne Porterfield, Saskia Acton, Brenda Radley and Susan Cox shared a gold medal by winning the 15-and-over team synchronized swimming event and Tricia Looney captured the gold in novice-to-figures out of a field of 34.

Liverpool, Everton post second wins

LONDON (AP) — Kenny Dalglish scored two goals Tuesday night and Liverpool hammered Ipswich 3-0 at Ipswich and set a hot pace in the new English soccer season.

Liverpool's local rival, Everton, came from behind to edge Derby 2-1.

The two Merseyside teams both scored their second win in three days.

Reigning champion Nottingham Forest, after being held to a 1-1 draw at home by Tottenham Hotspur last Saturday, got another draw this time an 0-0 affair at Coventry.

Graeme Souness and Dalglish, both members of Scotland's unsuccessful World Cup team in Argentina, wrecked Ipswich, the English Cup holder. Souness scored the first goal, Dalglish made it 2-0 by half-time and then added another. Dalglish now has three goals in two league games.

David Nish fired in a free-kick in the 24th minute to give Derby a half-time lead, and until the 67th minute Everton appeared heading for defeat. Then Andy King squeezed in an equalizing goal from an acute angle. Nine minutes later, Micky Walsh, Everton's recruit from Blackpool, sent a low cross across the goalmouth and Geoff Nulty hammered home the winner.

Nottingham Forest dominated the game against Coventry but could not score. Steve Elliott, 19, played his first league game for Forest and had several possible scoring chances, but failed to take them.

Malcolm MacDonald gave Arsenal the lead on the stroke of half-time after goalkeeper Joe Corrigan had failed to hold a low shot from Alan Sunderland. Manchester dominated the second half and levelled the scores in the 58th minute. Paul Poers' shot hit the post, and Brian Kidd forced the ball into the net.

NEW FISH LIMIT HAILED WIDELY AS BIG SUCCESS

SOUTH KINGSTOWN, R.I. (AP) — The 200-mile fishing limit was hailed as a success Tuesday by government officials from Canada, the United States and Mexico during a meeting of the American Fisheries Society.

The three countries extended their jurisdiction to 200 miles in 1976 in an attempt to replenish fishing stocks that were being seriously threatened by heavy fishing, particularly by foreign vessels.

While extending their jurisdiction, the three countries established licensing practices and fishery management plans which, the government officials said, were working.

Kenneth Lucas, senior assistant deputy minister for the Canadian Fisheries and Marine Service, painted the most positive picture of the success of the 200-mile zone.

Lucas noted that the Canadian catches of ground fish, which include cod and haddock, were 10 to 15 per cent higher than catches in 1975, the year before the 200-mile zone was established.

"We have for the first time the means to secure this vital resource and to build upon it an industry of value to our nation and to the world," Lucas said. "We're getting on with that job."

Terry Leitzell, assistant administrator of the U.S. National Marine Fisheries Service, said the United States had not experienced the same stock increases as Canada. But he said the decline in stocks had stopped.

Leitnell also said Canada and the United States were a long way from settling their ocean boundary problems.

He said differences between the two countries were too large to hope for a quick solution.

Earlier this summer, the failure of the two countries to reach a compromise resulted in Canada's closing its water to American fishermen with reciprocated action from the United States.

"In addition to our disagreement over where the boundaries should be placed, we are disagreeing on the percentage of fish our fisherman can be allowed to take in Canadian waters," Leitzell said.

After a panel discussion on the effects of the 200-mile limit, Leitzell returned to Washington for more preparations on the next round of negotiations with Canada.

Spray buffer slashed

Canadian Press

The environment ministry has cut back to 800 metres the buffer zone surrounding a 10-acre plot of weeds near Summerland, treated with the controversial herbicide 2,4-D.

Ministry spokesman Steve Phillips said Tuesday the zone was reduced to its original size when no traces of the herbicide were found outside the 800-metre mark.

The ministry expanded the buffer zone to 2,400 metres Aug. 16 as a safety measure because of strong ground currents.

At the time, biologist Dr. Peter Newroth said there was no cause for concern because the amount of 2,4-D residue found was well below the minimum drinking-water standards set by the World Health Organization.

Phillips also said Tuesday that 182,000 kilograms of Eurasian water milfoil were harvested last week in Vaseux Lake, between Penticton and Osoyoos in the Okanagan Valley.

He said the harvesting allowed swimmers to use the beaches for the first time in two months.

Vancouver commuter rail on line

Canadian Press

The financing of a commuter rail link between downtown Vancouver and Coquitlam is included in a transit financing proposal released Monday by Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis.

Curtis said the proposal would forestall the need for a property tax levy in Greater Vancouver to support transit costs until the 1983-84 fiscal year.

The plan includes a surcharge on B.C. Hydro power bills and a special gasoline tax.

Ten $1 million prizes coming for Provincial

EDMONTON (CP) — The Western Canada Lottery Foundation announced Tuedaythe Provincial Lottery will offer 10 $1-million prizes for its next two draws, five for each draw.

Previously, only six such prizes were awarded in two draws.

The foundation also said, in a statement, that each ticket would carry a special feature giving the ticket holder the opportunity to win an "on the spot" instant prize.

A new scratch-off feature has been added to each provincial ticket. With the feature, a ticket holder could win instant prizes of $100, $20, $10 or a free ticket.

The statement follows an announcement last month that Loto Quebec would join the Provincial Lottery. The next draw, Sept. 24, will be Quebec's first with the Provincial.

M. V. Chesnut's Garden Notes

Seems to me the happiest and most peaceful days in the garden are those when you throw away that infernal list of dull jobs that really need doing and take a holiday from routine, just puttering around at the things that interest you the most. An occasional rebellion like this is good for the spirit.

My favorite pastime, when playing hooky from the Joe jobs of garden maintenance, is to go on a plant-hunting expedition around my own garden — mostly on my hands and knees — searching for "waif and strays" — the self-sown seedlings of plants and shrubs. Such a prospecting trip is not only full of interest; it can be profitable as well.

We have a lot of plants in our garden that seed themselves so freely as to become almost a nuisance. Honesty is one of these, along with Montbretias and the various poppies, while the little Johnny-Jump-Up violas have become a weed with me and have even invaded the lawn.

Tiny gladiolus plants are coming up all over the vegetable plot too, these are not from seeds but from "spawn" or bulblets scattered accidentally when the corms were being taken up last fall.

Aubrietias, Michaelmas daisies, snapdragons, hollyhocks, lychnis, nasturtiums, foxgloves and delphiniums are all producers of self-sown seedlings.

In addition to flowers, a recent "crawl" around our garden yielded two tomato plants of unknown parentage, a baby peach tree, three unusually vigorous lavender seedlings and a mystery plant which must either turn out to be a squash, a marrow or a pumpkin.

The adventure in searching out these "volunteers" lies in the fact that any one of these waifs may turn out to be an entirely new breakthrough — a new color, a new shape, a different habit of growth, an improved form.

There is always the long-shot chance, too, that such a plant may turn out to be worth real money. Don't forget that the Burpee seed people paid out $10,000 to Mrs. Alice Vonk, a 67-year-old grandmother of Sully, Iowa (pop. 700) for the first seeds of a pure white marigold, while Stark Bros. nursery paid $51,000 for the mother tree of the Golden Delicious apple.

The lovely Magnolia kewensis came from just such a chance seedling, found in Kew Gardens, London, and it just missed by a hairsbreadth being cut down by a gardener's hoe.

An alert Kew apprentice, however, noticed something a little different about the tiny seedling among the weeds, so it was saved and propagated, and is now grown in gardens the world over.

Mrs. Colin Campbell of Toronto had just such an experience. One day, while weeding a clump of Cleome plants in her West Toronto garden, she spotted a few self-sown seedlings of this plant. Needing some extra plants to fill a gap in her border, she lifted the tiny seedlings on the point of her trowel and transplanted them. One of them turned out to be the world's first pure white Cleome.

This was taken over by a U.S. seed firm and named Cleome Helen Campbell, honoring the sharp-eyed gardener who rescued the baby plant.

Among the shrubs, Cotoneaster horizontalis is a prolific parent, probably because the bees are so fond of the fragrant little blossoms, so there are usually lots of seedlings to be found springing up at the foot of a wall-trained shrub.

The Brooms, Potentilla, Pyracantha and Lavender all produce enough seedling shrubs to stock a nursery, and so does the blue-flowered aryopteris clandonensis, although this one is extremely difficult to transplant successfully.

I have never had any luck at all with the seeds or berries of Daphne sown in pots or boxes and given loving care. Strangely enough, though, seeds dropped naturally from established Daphnes in our garden seem to come up as readily as radishes.

Jack Smith

We went down to the sea the other evening for my first outing on Calafia, the family sailboat, and since it was my launching, so to speak, the entire family went along, including our three grandchildren.

It wasn't altogether idyllic, but I think it would be an exaggeration to call it a disaster. There wasn't a breath of wind; our granddaughter, Alison, and her mother both threw up, possibly out of sympathy for each other; and there was one distressing act of sabotage, as we found out later. But on the other hand we all arrived safely back at our slip in the Baja Marina, content that at least we had had an adventure.

Even without wind it was a lovely summer evening. We moved down the channel toward the breakwater under power, one of our sons at the wheel, the other on deck to set the mainsail and the jib. There was still a touch of late sun in the sky, and the marina seemed covered by a transparent film of gold.

Once we were out on the open sea, we cut the motor and surrendered ourselves to the wind, but the wind wasn't in the mood to play. In half an hour we seemed hardly to have moved. The breakwater loomed perilously on our port quarter. Though the air was still, the sea was restless. We pitched and rolled and watched the shoreline rise and fall and tilt this way and that, lighted in the dusk by a thousand windows, behind which, it occurred to me, the marina people were engaged in ther sybaritic pastimes.

It was more of a picnic than a cruise. My wife had picked up a tub of Colonel Sanders chicken, and I had brought a six-pack of beer for the working crew and their father.

"Actually," the captain said, "we'd be more stable if we had some wind."

"We live in the doldrums," I pointed out. "Francis Drake had the same problem."

Because we were becalmed, everyone seemed worried that I wasn't having a good time. Actually, I have always been happy at sea in any weather. I have never been ill, though once in my youth I sailed the Tasman Sea from Auckland to Sydney in a 60 mph gale. Of course, we were on an ocean liner and not a 32-foot boat. But I was tainted by John Masefield as a boy, and all I ask is a tall ship and a star to steer her by.

"There's the North Star," I said, thinking a demonstration of seamanship on my part would put everyone at ease.

"Where?" someone asked.

"There," I said, pointing toward the mountains beyond Santa Monica. A pale but clear and steady light had emerged in the darkening sky. I don't know much about the heavens, but every schoolboy knows the North Star when he sees it.

"That's an airplane, pa," the captain said.

"It's the North Star," I said. "I've seen it a million times."

"We might as well eat," someone said. We divided the chicken among all hands and set to.

We had put the children in safety harnesses to ease our anxiety about losing one of them overboard, and their tethers rather confined them to the cockpit, which gave them an opportunity to harass the helmsman. Alison especially turned out to be a menace. She hasn't been walking long and is into that exploratory stage. Once or twice she had to be untangled from the captain's legs.

When the chicken was gone, we decided to give up on the wind and go in. Even the North Star had deserted us, having moved southeast and lost itself in the lights of Westwood. But the return was pleasant enough, and our granddaughter Andy practiced the camaraderie of the sea by shouting "ship ahoy!" at passing boats.

It wasn't until we were almost home and were turning into our narrow slip that we had our brush with disaster. I myself sensed that we weren't turning sharp enough to starboard. Time seemed to freeze as our momentum carried us closer to a collision.

"Turn it!" shouted our man on the bow.

It was too late. We crunched into the slip, and the bow was lifted a foot or two and then slid down. No damage done, we learned a minute later, but the captain was embarrassed and alarmed. "There must be something wrong with the wheel," he said. "It stopped on me and I thought I had it all the way over."

He was so concerned he took the Calafia out the next night to look for the trouble. When he got back in he phoned. "It was Alison," he said. "There is a knob you turn to set the wheel so it won't turn. I saw her playing with it, but I thought, 'Oh, she can't turn it.' She turned it."

It was a lesson that I already knew, but sometimes forget to my peril: Never underestimate the power of a woman.

Sydney Harris

Whenever there is grave unrest in a neighborhood, a city, or a country, the establishments first public reaction is to blame it on "conspirators" or "outside agitators." They are the favorite whipping-boys of authority that feels threatened.

Yet in almost every case, the establishment is wrong, and knows it, or is self-deceived. Insurrections motivated from the outside are relatively easy to resist and repel; it is the ones that come from the inside that make the real trouble.

More than a century ago, Wendell Phillips observed, "Revolutions are not made; they come. A revolution is as natural a growth as an oak. It comes out of the past. Its foundations are laid far back."

The American Revolution could never have been successful if a handful of hotheads had gone from town to town trying to create dissatisfaction with the British government. Discontent had been growing for years within each community, and people like Sam Adams and the Sons of Liberty only translated the popular temper into militant action.

"Outsiders" can have little influence on a neighborhood that is justly treated. Most people would rather suffer small inconveniences than protest, and can be deceived repeatedly before they become mutinous.

It is only when the spark is waiting to be lit that "agitators" of any sort are effective. The Russian Revolution of 1905 was abortive because the workers and farmers and soldiers had not yet been disaffected by the Czarist government; a dozen years later, it took only a tiny minority of Bolsheviks to set the whole mighty nation aflame.

The patience of most peoples is equaled only by the stupidity and blindness of those who dominate them. They see only what they want to see, and believe what is most comfortable, even when all the facts contradict them. The honorable Brutus should have been the first man Caesar suspected; instead, he was the last.

The irony of history is that almost all rebellions and revolutions could have been averted without serious conflict, if early rumbles of discontent had been attended to. Nobody in the colonies at first wanted independence from Britain; it was only when legitimate greivances were refused, and again refused, that separation became an issue.

Extremes prevail when moderation is not tried. The tree breaks that cannot bend. Those who will give nothing end up relinquishing everything. And they who blame "outside agitators" for stirring up the good citizens invariably fail to realize that it is their own arrogance or neglect that has turned the good citizens into bad ones.

James Bacon's Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Hear that the Russian government is so mad at Jimmy Carter for some of the things he has been saying lately that they just threw out the $20 million coproduction deal they had made with producer Howard Minsky to make Martin Caidin's The Aquarius Mission.

Minsky, who had produced the ultrasuccessful Love Story for Paramount, heard the bad news in Moscow. He is enroute home from there now.

Caidin, who also wrote Marooned, the hit movie about Russians rescuing a marooned U.S. space mission, is considered one of the top writers on outer space. His books are very popular in Russia, which you can't say for many American authors.

At least, he is more popular than Carter at the moment. The Russian government, I hear, was putting up the money for the picture.

Speaking of great comedians, Milton Berle is still celebrating his 70th birthday up at the Riviera in Las Vegas.

It's a wonderful celebration for Milton because it means his age has finally caught up with his jokes.

Henny Youngman, who took time off from a major engagement in Perth Amboy, got onstage with Berle the other night.

Milton said that while everybody else is trying to become a hit on TV, Henny is still trying to make it in radio.

"When Joe E. Lewis was drinking Haig and Haig, I was eating corn flakes at Horn and Hardart. Little did we know that Bob Hope owned stock in both companies," Milton reminisces.

When Hope learned that Milton was working on this 70th birthday, Bob said: "When are these old guys going to retire?"

Queen's letter kept secret

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal-Provincial Relations Minister Marc Lalonde refused Tuesday, despite pressure from MPs and senators, to make public a letter in which the queen assured Prime Minister Trudeau she approved of the federal government's proposed changes in the constitution.

Lalonde told angry members of a joint Senate-Commons committee on the constitution it would be improper to release a private communication between the queen and a minister of the crown.

The existence of the royal letter was first made known last week when Lalonde released to committee members and the press a prepared statement in which he said: "The prime minister received from the private secretary to the queen, dated June 20, a letter indicating that Her Majesty was content with proposed change in the royal style and titles and was satisfied that the (constitutional) proposals would not alter the essential relationship of the crown to Canada."

The letter followed a meeting June 15 between then Justice Minister Ron Basford and the queen at Buckingham Palace, during which Basford explained the aims of the proposed constitutional reforms.

"The queen obviously decided to send a letter to the prime minister expressing her views on the subject and her appreciation of Mr. Basford's visit," Lalonde said.

But Conservative MP Ray Hnatyshyn said this appeared to be a misinterpretation of the message from the palace.

He said the queen had no choice under the parliamentary system but to respect the wishes expressed in any government bill touching on royal prerogative.

"She has no veto power," Hnatyshyn said. "She would have to sign her own death warrant if it came as a unanimous request from the two Houses of Parliament."

Hnatyshyn urged Lalonde to let Canadians see the letter for themselves to allow them to determine whether it was a true expression of the queen's feelings or a meaningless formality.

Lalonde refused not only to table the letter before the committee, but also to offer any interpretation of its signficance.

Ontario paper workers fuming

Garnishee ploy killed

FORT FRANCES, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario-Minnesota Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd. has stopped signing affidavits to garnishee the bank accounts of its illegally striking loggers.

Jack Boitson, company communications officer, said Tuesday that the company was trying to pacify the situation.

The 110 employees, members of Local 2693, Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union, went on strike in July over the company's hiring of piece workers.

The Ontario Labor Relations Board declared the strike illegal and made its ruling an order of the Ontario Supreme Court.

When the men refused to return to work, they were found in contempt of court and fined $50 each plus $25 a day for each day they remained on strike after July 31.

After the company filed affidavits with the court, indicating the men had refused to return to work, the local sheriff seized $150, plus $9 costs, from the bank accounts of 50 workers.

Law students receive $3,500 scholarships

Renewable Law Foundation Entrance scholarships of $3,500 each have been awarded to Garry Mancell of Burnaby, Alexander Stuart of Victoria and Sheridan Scott of Ottawa, the University of Victoria announced Tuesday.

A second-year scholarship in the same amount has also been awarded to Claudia Hebert of Winnipeg.

Mancell is a University of British Columbia forestry graduate with four years experience as a forest engineer, who won several prizes and scholarships as an undergraduate, including the MacMillan Bloedel forestry prize, the Association of B.C. Professional Foresters prize, and the Canadian Institute of Forestry gold medal.

Ms. Scott, a Vancouver native, lived in Toronto before attending College Marie de France and McGill University in Montreal, where she received a bachelor of arts in psychology, and prizes for outstanding scholarship in that field and German. Fluent in five languages, she has worked with the Canada Council for the last five years as a research officer.

Stuart is a Vic High and UVic graduate who won several academic prizes while working for a B.A. in philosophy. He completed his master's degree on a scholarship from Dalhousie University, and most recently worked as a research assistant for Howard Johnston, MP for Okanagan-Kootenay.

Ms. Hebert, an English graduate of Simon Fraser University, has retained her law foundation scholarship of $3,500 for a second year on the basis of her first-class standing in the 1977-78 academic year.

Rail handicap rubbish—CNR

EDMONTON (CP) — A spokesman for Canadian National Railways Monday angrily rejected arguments made by the National Farmers' Union that the railways were handicapping the shipment of grain to export points.

The NFU released a union-sponsored study in several Prairie centres Monday showing deliveries of grain committed for export were behind 1.5 million tons as of July 31.

Bill Dascavich, NFU regional co-ordinator accused the railways of deliberately sabotaging the grain-hauling system in a year of record sales to destroy the Crow's Nest statutory freight rates.

Bill Dewan, public affairs chief for Canadian National Railways' mountain region, called the study "a concerted effort to blacken the reputation of the railways."

He questioned the conclusions of the NFU study, saying figures compiled by the Canadian grain commission and released earlier this month showed record wheat exports.

D. H. Pound, chief of the grain commission, reported Aug. 4 that shipments in the 1977-78 shipping year had increased 20 per cent over the previous season.

The CNR spokesman also said the NFU's figures of the number of cars in service in the United States were misleading.

"The U.S. is our biggest customer and we're their biggest customer," Dewan said. "There's bound to be a lot of cars down there."

Troops called to stop strike

LIMA (AP) — Peru's military government declared a state of emergency, suspended civil rights and sent troops into the country's major mining regions Tuesday in an attempt to end a crippling 18-day-old strike.

The emergency measures, which affect only the mining regions, allow military arrests and house searches without warrants. They also give the military the power to prohibit citizens from entering or leaving the country, and to order deportations.

Union and company sources said soldiers entered the mining regions before dawn and armored vehicles patrolled the areas.

The move is aimed at returning to normal the production of copper, iron, lead, silver and zinc in five major mining areas. Troops were not operating the mines, but were sent to maintain order.

The government estimated the strike by about 45,000 miners was costing $2.5 million a day in lost production.

The strike was called Aug. 4 by the National Federation of Miners and Metallurgical Workers, which has demanded higher pay, amnesty for labor leaders arrested in previous strikes and the rehiring of 70 miners fired for participating in illegal strikes.

A two-year-old government decree bans strikes in the mining industry. Metal exports account for 70 per cent of the country's earnings abroad.

Communications were difficult with the mining regions, but a spokesman for the Southern Peru Copper Corp. headquarters in Lima said everything was calm at the company's installations.

Iceland communists back off NATO

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI) — The communists have reached agreement with two other parties to form a majority government but will abandon their efforts to oust Americans from Iceland's strategic NATO base, political sources said Tuesday.

The sources said the communists, Social Democrats and the middle-of-the road Progressive Party have agreed on economic policies with the Communists agreeing not to disturb Iceland's standing in NATO or ask the 3,000 American servicemen to get out of Keflavik Air Base.

Ludvik Josepsson, leader of the Communist People's Alliance, will become prime minister and the foreign ministry portfolio will go to the Social Democrats, the sources said.

Diplomatic bag facing scrutiny

LONDON (CP) — The sanctity of the diplomatic bag may be one more casualty resulting from the recent terrorist attack in central London.

Britain is one of the countries which signed the Vienna convention 17 years ago, guaranteeing absolute immunity from search to the diplomatic pouch—that container used to carry confidential reports between embassies and their home capitals.

Now, there is growing suspicion that diplomats have been abusing that immunity and using the bag to smuggle guns and explosives into the country.

The cry has gone up—"Search the diplomats."

The Daily Express, commenting on the Sunday attack on an Israeli air crew 150 yards from the Canadian high commission here, says, "The immunity of the Arab diplomatic bag should be seriously reconsidered."

The Daily Telegraph supports that view, saying, "The diplomatic privileges of such countries—like the diplomatic bag which is abused to import guns—should be sharply curtailed by Western nations."

The Times, contending that "circumstances have changed" since the convention was signed, says:

"There is a strong case . . . for removing the immunity from inspection . . . granted to the baggage of individual diplomats and for considering whether all the other forms of immunity are still necessary to serve their original purpose."

The Sunday shooting, in which more British bystanders were hit than Israeli nationals, has brought stern criticism of British security measures from Israel.

Prime Minister James Callaghan, however, is standing by the British pronouncement that foreign security guards may not bring their guns to town.

In this, Callaghan finds himself in the middle of that classic Western movie cliche, where the marshal is disarming the vigilantes while the bad guys are shooting up the bank.

Israel wants its security men to be able to carry their weapons off El Al passenger planes to protect crews en route from Heathrow Airport to their downtown hotels.

The British government is strongly opposed to such moves.

The Daily Express says, "There can be no question of allowing Israeli security men to carry guns" in Britain. The responsibility for security in our capital belongs to the British authorities and nobody else."

One newspaper, editorializing that "London is now firmly on the map as the new world capital of terror," traces how the city became "a centre of Middle East terror" in 1972 when an Israeli diplomat was killed by a letter bomb.

Civilians killed by mine

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — The military command Tuesday reported another 14 deaths in the guerrilla war, including five black civilians whose wagon detonated a landmine in southeastern Rhodesia.

A communique said the dead included a man, two women and two children, the communique said a 65-year-old white man was killed when his vehicle detonated a landmine planted by insurgents on his farm in eastern Rhodesia's Mayo district.

It said Rhodesian troops have killed two guerrillas along with "two terrorist recruits and a terrorist collaborator."

The communique said two black paramilitary employees of the internal affairs ministry were killed in action and a black civilian was "murdered by terrorist gang" in southwestern Rhodesia.

The communique came on the 11th anniversary of the death of Lieut. Nicholas Smith, the first white casualty of the war. The conflict however, started in earnest only in December 1972.

Prisoners on the run in 'playful' Millhaven

MILLHAVEN, Ont. (CP) — There have been nights when the floodlit playing fields of Millhaven penitentiary have been the scene of armed searches as staff sought to head off escape attempts in the swirling fog.

But the normal atmosphere is more peaceful on the two baseball diamonds, the outdoor ice surface and the handball courts of the prison's big backyard.

Weightlifting is the big participant activity, with at least 130 men active, but a big softball game can draw up to 200 of the prison's 260 convicts.

Hockey, tennis, volleyball, jogging and a fitness program for older prisoners all fit into the prison's recreation program.

Recreation supervisor Norman Staples breaks Millhaven's leisure activities into four sections: free-time recreation, training clinics, credit courses and community involvement.

Prisoners organize their own recreation or it doesn't happen, he said. Staff help to set up meetings and provide equipment.

Clinics offer sports training that varies from tennis to umpiring with prisoners acting as instructors. A Grade 9 course in physical education has been completed with another scheduled for September and courses may be extended to higher grades.

Prisoners play against outsiders in the Ernestown Men's Softball League—home games only, in case an outfielder shows excessive zeal in chasing a well-hit fly ball and neglects to return.

Millhaven lies to the west of Kingston like a small country isolated by its armed-guard towers and double-perimeter fence. Athletics are only one part of its organized life.

About 150 prisoners are involved in a craft program that allows them one hobby at a time. Their choice ranges through oil painting, leather work, copper working, jewelry and the fine stitching of petit-point.

The prison school teaches such subjects as chemistry, mathematics, English and conversational French. The prisoners' school committee wants a course in typing but there is a problem finding a male teacher.

There are also training shops offering such courses as barbering, upholstery and metal and wood working.

Bob Munro, assistant director of the penitentiary's industrial production shops, said with some pride: "We can make any type of furniture in the wood-working shop."

Its output, and that of the tailor, sheet-metal, canvas-manufacturing and repair and paint finishing shops goes to government or non-profit organizations. Pay ranges from 90 cents to $1.40 a day and the prisoners work five hours a day and a 4½-day week.

The prison is moving toward a system of group bonuses based on productivity.

Social groups ranging from Alcoholics Anonymous through native brotherhood, black culture and French culture meet once a week but the prison's past reputation for violence keeps down the number of volunteers.

Tom Goodall, secretary-treasurer of the prisoners' committee, says prisoners have expressed interest in activities like Jaycees, industrial first aid and management and business courses but facilities are unavailable.

Selective viewing touted

TV a family affair

TORONTO (CP) — Evelyn Crandell wants parents to have a look at what their children are watching on television.

Ms. Crandell, of the Children's Broadcast Institute, is co-ordinator of a campaign to make September known as Parents Viewing Month.

The institute, which since 1974 has been dedicated to encouraging more and better programming for Canadian children, believes that television has become an important family link.

"When the family watches TV together, the programs provide a natural avenue for discussions on current social concerns, concerns that already arouse the child's curiosity," Ms. Crandell said in an interview.

The concerns can arouse fears that might not surface during other daily activities, she said.

Ms. Crandell said a recent study financed by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission "supports the observation of many psychologists that communication and shared activity are the most sought-after experience of youth with their parents."

"When there is a lack of communication and shared activities adolescents in particular interpret this as a lack of love," she said.

Ms. Crandell said the study found that television emerges as a reinforcing medium, strengthening the social and moral value structure already accepted within the family circle.

"Parental viewing fare exerts a strong influence upon program selection by children and one of the aims of Parents Viewing Month is to encourage selective viewing on a family basis," she said.

"Between 4 and 5 p.m. on any average weekday more than two-fifths of all Canadian children are watching television," she said. "Adult reruns get the highest ratings in most areas."

She said the survey revealed that on Saturday mornings, 42 per cent of all Canadian children are watching the TV set and that most of the children were unsupervised."

Ms. Crandell said that "most children are tuned in to U.S. programs, although CTV and the CBC are providing high quality, alternative programming."

She said that almost one million children watch the $6 Million Man weekly and almost half a million children watch Sesame Street daily.

She said research has shown that there are two direct benefits to parents watching and discussing television programs with their children.

"It increases the effectiveness of an instructional program and it can substantially reduce or allay any fear or trauma caused by programming of a more general or violent nature."

To get its message across to Canadian parents in the coming weeks, the institute is running public service announcements on television featuring the message: "TV is reaching your child. Where are you?"

It's heady learning

TORONTO (CP) — Tony Buzan is bringing to Canada his method of increasing the mind's potential.

It's a method he developed and introduced in England in 1972 and outlined in his book, Use Your Head. It's also the subject of a BBC television series and workshops in more than 12 countries.

Buzan, 36, said he makes the most of his own mind, although he still wants to study languages, astronomy, microbiology, art and music.

His Use Your Head course, to begin in Toronto and Vancouver in 1979, is intended to improve memory, reading habits, note-taking and organization of time.

Buzan, in Toronto during the weekend, said the course is based on three premises — a feeling of self-esteem, support from those around you and good teaching methods.

Buzan said he can double or even triple a person's creativity and ability to achieve.

"Learning is a skill," he said. "It can be taught, developed and refined."

A graduate of the University of British Columbia, Buzan has published six books, written three BBC television series, lectured at universities and companies and consulted with governments.

He attended University of British Columbia after his parents moved to Vancouver from England.

Buzan said most adults are functionally semi-literate. By learning to develop their memory and by using all their senses, persons can extend the limits of their imagination, he said.

Disastrous saving

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Rising fuel prices will tempt elderly people on fixed incomes to reduce their winter heating costs, but the saving can have disastrous consequences, a Kingston doctor said.

Dr. George Merry told delegates to a convention of the United Senior Citizens of Ontario that hypothermia, a lowering of body temperature, is a common cause of death in Britain where central heating is often not provided in houses.

"It's not uncommon in Great Britain to find elderly people dead in bed in the morning with the thermostat turned down or no heat at all," he said.

"As we grow older our bodies are less able to adapt to lower temperatures."

He advised elderly persons to keep their heat on and disregard the cost.

ann landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am hiding out in my own house. (I am writing this letter in an almost dark room. I hope that you can read it!) About six weeks ago I ran into an old high school friend. I was very happy to see her. We greeted each other with hugs and kisses, had several cups of coffee, talked a lot about the old times, and I invited her to come over anytime.

Well—she took me up on it. "Anytime" is now all the time! She has made an effort to spend every evening with us since our "re-discovery."

The first few evenings were fun. We got out old pictures, talked about old boyfriends and old times. My husband was very gracious but he soon became bored. After all, they are not HIS old times. (I'm beginning to wish they weren't mine either.)

Lately we've been turning the lights out and living in the dark so my friend will think we aren't at home. (The next day she calls me at work and asks, "Where were you last night?")

I've already said things like, "Please call before you come, we may have other plans!" "I'm not in the mood to discuss old times again!" "I'm tired after a long day at work. Can't you visit someone else?" She doesn't get the message.

What now?—Jane O.

Dear Jane: You've got yourself a real mustard plaster. The only way to get rid of it is to tell the woman in plain language, "It was lovely to see you again but your frequent calls and visits are threatening my marriage. Please—don't call me. I'll call you."

If, after this speech, Mustard Plaster phones again, tell her, "Sorry, I can't talk now," then hang up. If she shows up at your door, say, "I can't invite you in. We have other plans."

I realize this takes a lot of guts but the situation can be resolved only if you have more guts than she has—and she has PLENTY.

Fresh blueberry pie — a summer treat for the whole family

Blueberries tasty delight with endless possibilities

By PHYLLIS HANES
Colonist-Monitor News Service

"Going blueberrying" is one of the delights of childhood, but it is fun at any age. It not only means getting out in the fresh air but there's also a feeling of accomplishment with very little energy output — not to speak of the satisfaction of contributing to the family larder.

Not everyone has time for blueberry picking, of course, but today's enormous supply of cultivated blueberries keeps them available from May through September.

When you take your blueberries home, do not wash them, but spread them loosely in a shallow container so that air can circulate around them and the weight of the berries on top doesn't crush the lower ones. Refrigerate at once. They are very perishable. If possible, don't keep them more than a day or two after you bring them home. Ten days should be the absolute limit.

If washing seems necessary, wash just before using with ice cold water. Handle as little as possible; drain immediately.

This advice comes from an excellent book about blueberries, The Complete Blueberry Cookbook by Elizabeth W. Barton. Here are some recipes from the book:

BEA'S BLUEBERRY GINGERBREAD TREAT

- ¾ cup fresh or frozen blueberries
- 2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1½ teaspoon ginger
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅓ cup butter or margarine
- 1 egg
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 1 cup molasses
- ½ cup sour cream

Preheat oven to 350°F. Butter a 9-inch square baking pan. Wash, drain, and dry berries or defrost frozen ones enough to separate. Toss in small amount of flour with blueberries and set aside.

Cream butter, then add sugar and mix well. Add egg and beat until light-colored. Combine molasses and sour cream and add to butter mixture. Sift flour, soda, ginger, and salt together and add alternately with molasses-sour cream to sugar mixture.

Mix only enough to blend ingredients. Add blueberries, folding them in lightly. Spoon batter into pan. Bake for 40 minutes or until cake pulls away from sides of pan. Serve warm with or without butter.

BLUEBERRY SLUMP

- 3 cups washed, stemmed blueberries
- ⅓ cup sugar
- ½ cup boiling water
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- 1 cup flour
- 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 tablespoons sweet butter
- 1 egg, beaten
- ½ cup milk

In a large skillet place blueberries, sugar, boiling water, and lemon juice. Cover and cook over low heat until berries begin to lose their juices, about 5 minutes.

Meanwhile, sift dry ingredients; work in butter with fingers and add beaten egg and milk, then mix well. Drop batter by tablespoons onto bubbling blueberries. Cover pan tightly. Cook 10 to 15 minutes until dumplings are puffed and cooked through.

Place dumplings in individual serving dishes and spoon blueberry sauce over the top. Top with vanilla ice cream, cream, milk, or sour cream if desired. Serves 6 to 8.

QUICK BLUEBERRY PIE

- 2 quarts blueberries
- ¼ cup flour
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 cup light brown sugar
- 1 10-inch baked pie shell
- ½ pint heavy cream
- 1 teaspoon superfine sugar
- ½ teaspoon vanilla

In heavy saucepan mix together 1 quart of the blueberries, the flour, butter, salt, lemon juice, and sugars. Cook at low heat, stirring until the mixture thickens, about 5 minutes after it comes to a boil. Cool, then add the other quart of berries. Stir to combine.

Fill baked pie shell with berry mixture. Whip the cream until it is very stiff, then add the sugar and vanilla and spread cream over the berries. Chill.

This recipe comes originally from a woman of Lapeer, Mich., by way of an old cookbook, The Blueberry Hill Cookbook by Elsie Masterson.

It is not a cake, though it is sweeter than a bread. It does, however, have a cake-like crust. It can be served with butter.

BLUEBERRY HOT BREAD

- 2 eggs
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 cup milk
- ¼ cup melted butter
- 3 cups sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 2 cups blueberries (fresh or frozen without syrup)

Beat together eggs and sugar, until mixture loses its granular consistency. Add milk and melted butter. Sift together flour, salt, and baking powder; add to the liquid ingredients. Mix until just combined. Do not try to get it smooth.

Toss blueberries in a little flour to keep them from sinking to the bottom of the bread. Pour into 2 small, very well greased bread tins.

Bake in moderate over preheated to 350°F. from 30 to 40 minutes or until a skewer, inserted, comes out dry. Serve directly from pans at the table. Freezes perfectly.

Shocking cure

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Israeli scientists believe they have found a cure for bed-wetting — electronic underpants.

The underpants contain moisture-sensitive electrodes and a buzzer. At the first drop of urine, the electrodes cause the muscles to contract and stop the flow. The buzzer then sounds to waken the child.

The device has been tested successfully on dozens of children and is to be produced commercially, a team of scientists from Tel Aviv's Ichilov Hospital said this week.

Abortion spinoffs examined

ALBANY (AP) — Women who have had abortions experience a higher rate of miscarriage and other problems in subsequent pregnancies, researchers say. But it isn't clear whether the problems are directly connected to abortion.

A study of case histories of 65,000 women in New York and Hawaii, funded by the National Institutes of Health and conducted in part by the New York State health department, compared the experiences of women who did and did not have abortions.

It found that the women who had had abortions experienced miscarriages at a rate 35 per cent higher than those who had not had pregnancies terminated.

Other pregnancy problems, including low birth weight and premature births, ranged from 25 per cent to 50 per cent higher for the women who had had abortions.

The researchers have not finished collating their results with such factors as heavy smoking or poverty-level incomes, which have been associated with pregnancy difficulties, to determine whether the high problem-pregnancy rates might be attributable to factors other than abortions.

Dr. Bruce Stabel, who is supervising the study, said, "It could be another two or three years before we have a firm ground to comment on the long-term effects of abortion."

Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My oldest grandson's wife is expecting her first male offspring, and he asked me if I thought his new son should be circumcised when he is about eight days old, and I told him I'd ask you.-S.L.

The timing of circumcision varies according to the desires of the family and their doctor. There is nowadays a tendency to perform circumcision less on a routine basis. It is best done within the first few weeks. Some prefer to perform it immediately after delivery. I'm curious. How has the sex been determined?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell me about vagotomy and how effective it is in treating peptic ulcer? Mrs. R.I.

This is cutting of a portion of the vagus nerve, a major nerve with many branches. It extends from the brain to serve various abdominal structures (including the stomach and duodenum). Stimulation of the stomach, to produce substances in response to smells, tastes, odors, even the sight of food, comes through this nerve. Thus, severing certain branches can reduce the stomach activity and aid in puptic ulcer healing. However, vagotomy is not a simple operation and is reserved for special cases, as in ulcer that does not respond to conservative treatment.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I get chronic infections due to a narrow urethra. The doctor dilates my urethra every few weeks to stretch it. Will this procedure in time correct the condition and eliminate my infection? —Mrs. H.K.

You do not mention taking medicine for your infection. That plus the dilation (stretching) of the urinary outlet (urethra) should eventually clear matters up. Your urine needs to be examined to identify the organism causing the infection and to pinpoint where it originates. Then the proper antibiotic can be selected. This may have to be continued for some time.

An abnormally narrow urethra, especially in women, can be an indirect cause of serious kidney infection.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the treatment for swelling and redness at the base of the fingernails? Sometimes there is pus oozing out around or at the base of the nails, and there is soreness. — Mrs. L.J.L.

This should be checked. There is a likelihood of infection of the cuticle by either a fungus or a germ. It's important to find out which, because treatment will depend on that. Hot soaks should help.

Vesco loses Costa Rican hideout hope

SAN JOSE (AP) — The Supreme Tribunal of Elections denied Robert Vesco's application for Costa Rican citizenship Monday, dashing the fugitive U.S. financier's last hope for refuge in the Central American country from embezzlement charges in the United States.

Francisco Saenz Meza, the tribunal president, said the three members voted unanimously to confirm the Civil Registry's earlier rejection of the application.

Vesco, wanted in the United States on embezzlement charges, left Costa Rica May 3 and has been reported in the Bahamas.

PRESIDENT RODRIGO Carazo, who took office May 8 after an election campaign in which he vowed to kick Vesco out, had said repeatedly he would not allow him to return. The Election Tribunal is the final court of appeal on citizenship matters, and the president in a note last week asked it to reflect the will of the people and "once and for all end Vesco's attempt to win citizenship."

Vesco is wanted in the United States on charges of embezzling $224 million from Investors Overseas Servics, the mutual fund he once controlled, and illegally contributing $200,000 to Richard Nixon's re-election campaign.

Vesco came to Costa Rica from the Bahamas in 1972 and lived here in high style in a $500,000 home. He invested heavily in the country and became a close associate of then-President Jose Figueres, the country's leading politician for more than a quarter of a century.

FIGURES PUT through a law exempting Vesco from extradition after the financier lent him $2.15 million, but when Vesco's influence on him and his National Liberation party became a liability, his successor, President Daniel Oduber, had the law repealed.

Vesco then tried to escape extradition by obtaining citizenship. The Civil Registry recommended on July 17 that his application be denied because it said he was unable to prove he had sufficient economic resources.

The Denver gals couldn't bear it

DENVER (UPI) — City park police say because of the questionable constitutionality of an ordinance prohibiting topless women in public, they will have to let women continue to sunbathe and frolick in the parks barechested.

Richard Fischer, a parks police supervisor, said he had received instructions from the city attorney's office not to enforce the law until a case testing its legality was settled through the state's appellate court system. He said he expected an increased number of young women basking in the parks.

"Last summer when we had a workable ordinance, we had fewer violations," he said.

At Cheeseman Park Sunday, three of the topless women walked about 50 feet to the roadway where they displayed their bodies and chided gawking motorists passing by.

"It's an illusion," one said.

The women, who claimed they were lesbians, said they doffed their tops to protest what they consider unfair laws governing public dress.

"If men can do it all their lives, why can't we?" one topless sunbather asked.

Flood soaks missile range

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (UPI) — A weekend flash flood that roared out of the Organ Mountains and claimed five lives on the White Sands Missile Range also destroyed millions of dollars worth of technical equipment on the military installation, officials said.

Northerners want more

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians living north of the 60th parallel are being denied basic rights enjoyed by their southern cousins, two northern legislators complained Tuesday.

The two, one from the Northwest Territories, the other from the Yukon, told the special Commons-Senate committee on constitutional reform that northerners had to be given more self-government.

"In our opinion it is no longer acceptable for us to remain a ward of a federal government department maintained by a bureaucracy either unaware of our beliefs or deaf to our words," said Arnold McCallum, a member of the N.W.T. legislative assembly.

His Yukon counterpart, Walt Lengerke, said the renewal of Confederation sought by Canadians could not in the Yukon until Yukoners had their own responsible government.

The governments in both territories are still controlled by the federal Indian affairs and northern development department, although both have been given powers over some local matters.

Both want more powers and a roadmap to guide them into eventual provincehood.

McCallum said the Northwest Territories were constantly excluded from opportunities to discuss constitutional reform and review.

The Trudeau government's plans for planned constitutional reforms would make the situation even worse, he added.

The Trudeau bill makes no provision for the two territories to be represented at federal-provincial consultations, he said. The new House of the Federation, the proposed Senate replacement, would have only one seat for each territory and even those would be filled by Ottawa.

"We see no reason why our member or members should not be selected by the same means as provincial members, namely, by the legislative assembly."

McCallum said the constitutional changes affecting the courts also ignored the North. The territories were not even defined as a region of Canada for selection of Supreme Court of Canada justices.

Other parts of the constitutional reform bill placed no limitations on federal authority over the North.

"We find this totally repugnant," said McCallum.

Pinto recalls in high gear

DETROIT (Reuter) — The Ford Motor Co. said Tuesday it was moving ahead as quickly as possible with the recall of 1.5 million cars at the centre of a controversy over fiery rear-end crashes.

A company spokesman has estimated the repairs could cost Ford between $30 million and $45 million.

The way was cleared for recall by an announcement from the U.S. government's road safety watchdog body that it had reached tentative agreement with Ford on a modification to Ford Pinto and Mercury Bobcat cars produced from 1971 to 1976.

A National Highway Traffic Safety Administration spokesman said in Washington that Ford had agreed to install two plastic shields to protect the fuel tank on Pintos and Bobcats made from 1971 to 1976.

Ford had announced its willingness in June to call in affected models after the safety agency found in an eight-month investigation that the cars' fuel tanks were easily crushed or ruptured during crashes.

Earlier, the agency had cited reports of 27 deaths in 38 accidents that resulted in 29 lawsuits or claims for liability against Ford.

In Toronto, a Ford official said the company would send out recall orders in two to three weeks to about 111,000 Ford Pinto and Mercury Bobcat owners.

King Fisherman

Wharf casters nab big tyees

Drift fishermen casting from the Argonaut wharf at the foot of Campbell River's Tyee Pool and in some other favorite Campbell River fishing spots are getting more action than the Tyee Pool trollers these days.

Gary Mack of Nanaimo caught a 48½-pounder casting a 40-gram Pirken in the Orange Point area, but Chong Yang Kim of Campbell River nearly matched him with a 43-pounder taken from the wharf on Stingsilda. Kenny Snowdon of Campbell River got a 37-pounder from the wharf on Stingsilda and Andrea Wesloski got a 34½-pounder on Buzz Bomb off the Big Rock ramp.

Fishing in the Tyee Pool with plug, Larry Nelson got a 33.14-pounder.

Chinook fishing has been fairly good in San Juan Bay for the first time in several years and the reason might be the severe curtailment of the net fishery in Juan de Fuca Strait this year. The net fishery pretty well blocks passage of fish into San Juan Bay at Port Renfrew and salmon and steelhead heading for the San Juan river have been steadily declining for the past few years.

'Benign' ill turns killer

HAMILTON (CP) — Five Hamilton-area people have died in the last five months of a normally benign strain of meningitis, says the regional medical health officer.

Dr. Joseph Chamberlain said that for unknown reasons, the disease has become virulent and proved lethal to five persons ranging in age from 3 to 59.

Hospital studies to combat the disease have been under way in the Hamilton area for four months, he said in an interview Monday.

An official of the communicable disease section of the Ontario health ministry said 12 of 70 meningitis cases reported in Ontario this year were fatal.

The situation was not an epidemic or an outbreak because the cases were over a period of months and spread across Ontario, he said.

The Ontario government plans no action at present, Chamberlain said. Other southern Ontario health units have had no increase in reported cases of the disease.

Meningitis, an inflammation of membranes of the brain or spinal cord, normally affects only children. The strain that has claimed the lives, meningococcal meningitis, also can affect adults, he said.

Fifteen meningitis cases, none of them fatal, were reported last year in the Hamilton area, Chamberlain said.

There have been 12 reported cases this year.

He said the people who died, aged three, four, five, 13 and 59, did not live in one particular area. He would not disclose their names.

Symptoms of severe cases include high fever and "a very different kind of skin rash—it's actually bleeding under the skin," he said.

Mild cases feel like the flu.

Teen captor shot after seizing girl

TORONTO (UPI) — Police shot and killed a 16-year-old boy who seized a 13-year-old girl Tuesday and held her hostage for seven hours with a butcher knife at her throat, demanding a plane to fly him to Scotland.

Officials said police shot the boy, identified as Ken Reid of Toronto, after they became convinced that he was capable of killing his hostage, whose name was not immediately released.

The drama began after the boy escaped from a juvenile detention house and tried to rob a Toronto home.

Neighbors alerted police, who surprised the youth while he was still inside the house.

As officers surrounded the three-story brick house, Reid sought refuge on the second floor, where he apparently found the girl, police said.

He took the girl hostage at knife point, bound her hand and foot with a scarf and a necktie, and held her on his lap with a butcher knife at her throat during seven hours of tense negotiations with police, officials said.

Finally, Staff Sgt. Frank Barbetta of the Toronto Emergency Task Force managed to distract Reid long enough for the girl to wriggle free. As she did, Barbetta fired two shots. They caught Reid in "the upper body," police said.

Popping panes still a puzzle

CALGARY (CP) — Construction officials still do not know why glass panes have fallen from the 33-storey Toronto Dominion Square in the city's downtown core, but 6,000 panes may be tested and weak ones replaced.

Since construction of the twin-tower development ended two years ago, 12 panes have failed and some have come crashing down from the building between 7th and 8th avenues and 1st and 2nd streets southwest.

In an interview, Bob Stollery, president of Poole Construction Ltd., said experts are studying tests on three buildings in the United States that have problems with similar glass.

Depending on the results of that analysis, each of the panes between the floors of the project may be tested for stress, he said.

Panes which break during the stress test would be replaced.

Wire mesh shielding the Devonian Gardens and sidewalks will be in place until Poole Construction is satisfied no more glass will fall, Stollery said.

The results of the U.S. tests will probably be available in about two weeks, he said.

Birth defects 'double' in 25 years

MOSCOW (AP) — A leading Soviet geneticist said Monday the percentage of children born with congenital defects has doubled during the last 25 years, largely due to an increase of mutation-causing substances in the environment.

"This shows that the human race and human heredity are entering a dangerous phase," said Nikolai Dubinin, head of the Soviet Institute of General Genetics, speaking on the opening day of the first International Congress of Genetics ever held in the Soviet Union.

More than 2,000 geneticists from around the world are participating in the congress.

SEVERAL U.S. scientists, along with a group of 31 Israelis, decided to stay away to protest the recent trials of Soviet dissidents and the failure of Soviet officials to grant visas to all Israelis wanting to attend.

Dubinin, who after the death of Stalin criticized heavy-handed government control over Soviet biology, noted that "among environmental pollutants, there are many mutagens—chemical and physical agents capable of penetrating cells and damaging DNA molecules."

Dubinin said scientists currently know of more than 2,000 mutagens in the environment capable of causing defects in offspring.

"In each generation of the population, there is a certain number of mutations—this is the so-called genetic load," he said.

IN 1956, Dubinin said, it was estimated about four per cent of the children born in industrialized countries had mutations resulting in congenital defects. A survey conducted by the World Health Organization during 1968-69 found the over-all genetic load—the proportion of children with defects—at that time was about six per cent. In 1977, Dubinin said, a study by the UN Council for Radiation reported that the genetic load had reached 10.8 per cent.

"How can one interpret these facts? They testify to a rapid growth of genetic load, which has doubled within a period of 25 years," the Soviet scientist said.

"Any further advancing along the path of uncontrolled damage to the biological basis of mankind's existence could bring about great losses in the biological quality of the human population," Dubinin said.

Hua exchanges toast with Tito in Belgrade —AP

Hua and Tito talk as Soviets lash out

BELGRADE (AP) — Chinese leader Hua Kuo-feng on Tuesday moved from the pomp and ceremony that marked his arrival here to solid talks with his Yugoslav hosts on international issues, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported.

In Moscow, meanwhile, the Soviet Union continued to denounce Hua's visit to Eastern Europe as a threat to socialist unity.

The Soviet news agency Tass described an anti-Soviet address by Hua here Monday as having "a demagogic and hypocritical character" aimed at "undermining the unity of socialist countries."

Tanjug said President Tito and Hua discussed international topics Tuesday after covering bilateral issues Monday, the start of Hua's nine-day visit.

Hua "informed Tito in greater detail about basic preoccupations and foreign policy orientations of China at this moment, and about certain current aspects of China's relations with a number of countries," the agency said.

It did not specify which countries were discussed, but it was assumed the animosity between China and the Soviet Union, as well as Yugoslav relations with Moscow, figured prominently.

Tanjug said aides were also discussing trade and the possible signing of a long-term economic agreement at the end of the visit.

At the beginning of the day, Tito and Hua got a rousing welcome as they drove in an open car from Hua's residence, a former royal palace, to the government palace for the talks. A flag-waving crowd officially estimated at 400,000, chanted "Tito-Hua!" and lined the 10-kilometre route.

Moslem-leftists confess to Iran theatre inferno

TEHRAN (AP) — Unofficial reports said Tuesday the death toll from the firebombing at the Cinema Rex Theatre in Abadan, Iran, has risen to 422 and five persons described as Islamic Marxists have admitted setting off the bombs.

Radio Abadan quoted Brig.-Gen. Rezi Razmi, police chief of that southwestern city, as saying the five were among 10 suspects arrested in the case so far. A government spokesman in Tehran, the capital, declined to comment on the radio report.

Razmi told the government radio and television service the fire in the crowded theatre began when bombs were set off simultaneously at the corners of the building. Previous reports said arsonists poured gasoline around the outside of the building and then set it afire.

Sources said four or five persons left the theatre between shows and the explosion occurred immediately after they left.

Razmi had told reporters earlier that several of the 10 suspects admitted having been assigned to set off bombs in other parts of Abadan. He did not say what the targets were.

The Islamic Marxists, the government said, are a 15-year-old terrorist organization that mixes a fanatic devotion to Islam with Marxist ideology. The government claims the group is responsible for 30 political murders, including the assassinations of six U.S. military officers working for Iran.

Maclean-Hunter buys Stirling papers

TORONTO (CP) — Maclean-Hunter Ltd. has agreed in principle to purchase all shares of Sterling Newspapers Ltd. from Conrad M. Black, David Radler and Peter White.

Sterling publishes nine daily, nine weekly and two twice-weekly newspapers. The printing facilities of Sterling are included in the purchase.

The cash purchase price was not disclosed.

A news release from Donald G. Campbell, chairman of Maclean-Hunter, said Monday the move represents the first entry by the company into the daily and weekly community newspaper field.

All of the papers and printing facilities are in British Columbia, with the exception of the Summerside (P.E.I.) Journal-Pioneer and two printing plants in Prince Edward Island.

The B. C. daily papers are: Cranbrook Townsman, Fort St. John Alaska Highway News, Kimberley Daily Bulletin, Nelson News, Port Alberni Alberni Valley Times, Prince Rupert News, Terrace Herald and Trail Times.

The newspapers will continue to be published by the Sterling group, with headquarters in Vancouver.

Radler said in an interview in Vancouver he has agreed to remain with the company to oversee operation of the papers.

The sale agreement will also transfer to Maclean-Hunter the Sterling share of a new wire service scheduled to begin operation Jan. 1.

It was announced July 26 that the new service, absorbing and expanding present news and picture operations of UPI of Canada, would be controlled by Toronto Sun Publishing Corp., Sterling and UPI Canada, which will hold 20 per cent of the new company.

Game 15 marked by sitting protest

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — Champion Anatoly Karpov and challenger Viktor Korchnoi played to a draw Tuesday in the 15th game of their world chess championship match, a game marked by a dispute over the way Karpov sits in his chair.

It was the 11th draw in 15 games thus far. The 27-year-old Soviet champion holds a 3-1 lead over Korchnoi, a 47-year-old Russian defector. The first man to win six games gets the world title and $350,000. The loser receives $200,000.

The draw was offered by Korchnoi, playing white, after he made his 25th move, and Karpov, fresh from two quick victories Sunday, accepted the offer.

Early in the game, Korchnoi complained about what he called Karpov's unnecessary movement while seated in his chair.

"Viktor complained to the chief arbiter that he is being disturbed by Karpov's movement," said grandmaster Raymond Keene of England, chief second to the challenger.

Korchnoi finally decided to use a chair farther away from the game table. From time to time, he would stand up after making a move and drop into his extra chair in the corner of the stage while waiting for his opponent's next move.

The challenger elected to use a Catalan system for the first time in this competition.

With the objective of controlling the white diagonal squares, he sent his king's bishop to knight two. But Karpov thwarted Korchnoi's attempt by putting his knight at queen's bishop three on the seventh move.

The use of the Catalan system, developed in the Catalonian city of Barcelona, Spain, recalled the two players' encounter in the candidates' finals in 1974 in Moscow, when Karpov scored his third victory in that series playing a variation of it.

Harry Golombek, British international master and chess author, said the idea of the Catalan opening was "to intensify the attack of the white pieces."

But a slight sacrifice by the champion on the 13th move, when he allowed Korchnoi to take a pawn, helped the champion.

Legacy left to nobility

The late Gertrude Vanderbilt, one of the wealthiest U.S. women, has left a major part of her multi-million-dollar fortune to members of British nobility related to her husband, including the present-day Duke of Marlborough. Mrs. Vanderbilt was the widow of Harold Vanderbilt, the great-grandson of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt. Harold's sister, Consuelo, married the Duke of Marlborough in 1895. The present Duke of Marlborough, John George Henry Spencer-Churchill receives $100,000 outright and the income for life from a $400,000 trust fund.

A taped conversation—played in court Tuesday—between T. Cullen Davis of Fort Worth, Tex., and an employee ordered to buy the murders of 15 people indicated the quicker the millionaire's enemies could be killed the happier he would be. Davis faces charges related to the death plots. He was acquitted last August in the shooting death of his 12-year-old stepdaughter.

Prince Charles will visit Yugoslavia in late October as guest of the Yugoslav government. President Tito last visited Britain briefly in March, and had lunch with the queen at Buckingham Palace.

Former University of Iowa linebacker Andre Jackson has filed a $5 million lawsuit against the school in Des Moines charging false comments by the team's trainer ruined his chances for a professional football career. The suit says trainer Edward Crowley told a National Football League scout that Jackson, a linebacker for the Hawkeyes from 1971 through 1974, suffered from arthritis.

An Argentine federal judge hearing two cases brought against former president Isabel Peron rejected her plea of double jeopardy.The five cases brought against her in federal courts in Buenos Aires on charges of corruption and misuse of public funds constitute trying her twice for the crimes already judged by the military junta, the lawyer said.

Sen. Patrick Leahy said in Washington that Ernest Fitzgerald, who caused a furor in 1968 by disclosing billions of dollars in cost overruns in the C-5A jet transport program, will be given the chance of a top level post by the administration. As a result of his testimony to a Senate committee, Fitzgerald, an air force employee, was reassigned to a low level job.

Frank McDonald, president of the Canadian Police Association and Calgary Police Association, has resigned from both positions because of the failure of the Calgary association to promote big-name entertainment. The resignations came after 300 local association members demanded to know how much money was lost in running a series of Las Vegas-style dinner shows. Some association members say the loss could be as high as $250,000. A Tom Jones concert was the only show that made a profit. Shows starring Bob Newhart, Crystal Gayle, Connie Stevens, J. J. Walker and Neil Sedaka lost money.

Port Angeles decision awaited

Return our boat, says fishing firm

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver fishing company has begun legal proceedings to retrieve a $30,000 fishing boat being held following the arrest of a Vancouver fisherman charged with illegally fishing in United States waters.

Terry Olson, a spokesman for Canadian Fishing Co. Ltd., said Tuesday that the company rented the 10-metre boat to Joseph Herioshi Negero for the season.

Olson said his company, a subsidiary of New England Fish Co. of Seattle, had no control over where its boats were used.

Negero, who appeared before a federal magistrate in Port Angeles, Wash., Monday, was released without bond. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Aug. 30 in Seattle.

A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said Negero was the first Canadian fisherman taken into custody in the Pacific region since the reciprocal fishing agreement between Canada and the U.S. broke down June 4.

The maximum penalty for fishing in U.S. waters is a $100,000 fine and six months in jail, the coast guard spokesman said. If Negero is convicted, the U.S. government has the option of keeping the vessel or returning it to the owner.

The coast guard cutter Point Countess seized the boat Sunday night after cutter personnel spotted it fishing about 900 metres inside U.S. territorial waters, 28 kilometres west of Port Angeles in the Strait of Juan de Fuca. Negero was the only person on the boat.

The boat was towed to Port Angeles and would remain in U.S. custody until the courts decided what to do with it, said the spokesman.

Several U.S. fishermen had been cited by Canadian authorities since June 4, he said, but no boats had been seized.

TRS-80 microcomputer

A small plug-in computer for everyday use... and it's expandable to meet your needs

For everyday use

If you are looking for an efficient and reliable way to manage your personal finances, to keep a running inventory of your groceries, to learn mathematics and music theory or if you simply want to relax by playing challenging games... The TRS-80 is the answer! And if you don't know a thing about computers... don't worry; our 300-page manual will teach you, step by step, all you need to know.

The Basic TRS-80 System
Computer with power supply and built in keyboard 26-1001 ... 575.95
12" video display 26-1201 ... 299.95
Realistic CTR-41 cassette recorder 14-841 69.95

Buy the complete basic system for 879.95

Meet the BASIC TRS-80

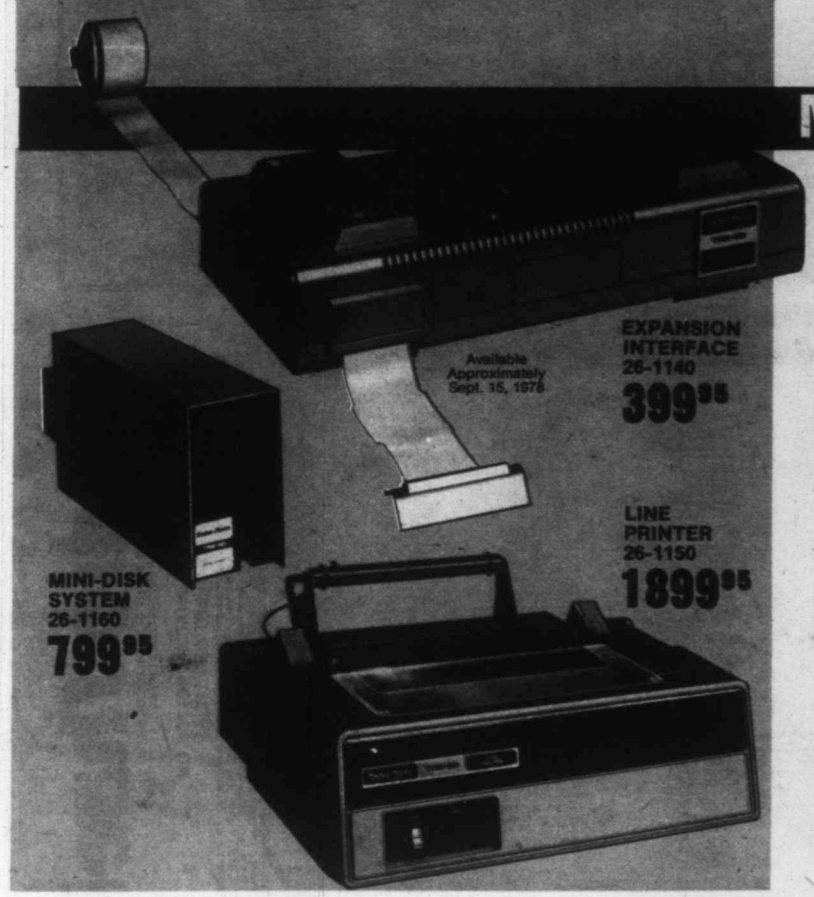
The 'brain' of the TRS-80 is a Z-80 micro-processor chip that serves as the central processing unit. The basic computer memory includes a 4K ROM (read-only memory, i.e. unalterable) where Level I BASIC (the computer language) is stored; it is also comprised of 4K RAM (read/write memory, i.e. alterable) where you can store your programs or data and change them at will. The computer is offered to you completely assembled with a power supply and a built-in keyboard (26-1001). To complete this basic system, a 12" video display terminal (26-1201) and a CTR-41 Realistic cassette recorder (14-841) are available at the system price above or sold separately (see top right of this page).

Need low-cost print-outs?

If you wish to have a low-cost permanent record of what appears on your video screen - whether it be data or graphics—simply link our electro-static printer to the basic TRS-80 opposite. It will print 2200 characters per second on electrostatic 4"-wide paper. 26-1151 ..... $899.95

Expandable to meet growing needs

Small businesses can now afford to computerize their financial accounting systems, payroll, inventory control and tax records. A TRS-80 can also be an extremely versatile educational tool: programmed teaching methods can be used to ask students questions on virtually any subject or give certain students repetitive instruction. In the case of laboratories, the TRS-80 can be programmed to handle mathematical calculations and can also serve for mass data storage.



Meet the Expansion Interface

Upgrading your TRS-80 to meet growing needs can be done by means of the expansion interface. This device contains sockets for an additional 16K or 32K RAM and a disk controller for up to four mini-disks (therefore more storage memory according to the need). Software-selectable dual cassettes can be used. The expansion interface, which provides a real-time clock, attaches to (and continues) the TRS-80 bus. However, it requires a more powerful language and therefore, Level II of BASIC is needed for the expansion.

LEVELL II BASIC Language in 12K ROM. 26-1120 ..... $159.95

NEED BETTER PRINT-OUT CAPABILITY?

With your existing 4K of RAM memory, plus Level II BASIC and the expansion interface above, you can use our line printer and achieve true small-business capability (i.e. better looking hard copy, larger paper format etc.) It will print from 60 to 110 characters per second using 5 x 7 impact dot matrix on rolls of paper up to 9.8" wide. The line printer is available under number 26-1150 for only 1,899.95

The TRS-80 microcomputer and its accessoires are available by special order through your nearby Radio Shack store. Ask for a list of our available pre-programmed cassette tapes, too!

NEED MORE STORAGE SPACE AND GREATER SPEED?

To literally transform your TRS-80 into a new system capable of processing business applications, there is the TRS-80 Mini-Disk System. Instead of 4K of RAM however, you will require 16K (also available) plus Level II BASIC and the expansion interface above. The Mini-Disk system gives you a transfer rate of 125K bits per second and an average access time of 1/2 second. It has storage capability of 80K bytes per disk (a total of 4 disk units may be added) and includes the required TRS-80 DOS software (i.e. the programs needed in the case of a Disk Operating System). So, for greater operating speed and more storage capability, get our Mini-Disk System 26-1160 for only ..... $799.95 each.

Radio Shack The TRS-80 with Level I BASIC is available at most Radio Shack stores. All other peripherals must be ordered from our warehouse stock and will require extra time for delivery.

Scores taken in bloody shootout

Nicaragua Reds grab legislators

MANAGUA (AP)—About 20 left-wing guerrillas in military uniforms shot their way past security guards Tuesday, seized the Nicaraguan National Palace and took scores of legislators and government officials hostage—including a nephew and cousin of President Anastasio Somoza.

Archibaldo Arostegui, a presidential spokesman, said he had reports that four persons were killed in a two-hour shootout between the guerrillas and government troops in this Central American city.

The guerrillas issued a statement to news media saying they demanded release of all political prisoners in the country, safe-conduct passes out of Nicaragua for the political prisoners and the attackers, and $10 million in cash.

A Red Cross spokesman reported one hostage telephoned and said at least 15 persons were wounded when the guerrillas burst into the palace firing at guards, and in the gun battle that followed with national guardsmen. The spokesmen expessed fear that several persons had been killed.

A presidential source said a number of aides were urging Somoza to take a tough stance against the guerrillas.

The four dead were believed to be soldiers.

The National Palace houses the Chamber of Deputies, Senate and a number of cabinet ministries, but Somoza does not have offices there.

Only the Chamber of Deputies was in session at the time, but hundreds of government officials and visitors were also in the building.

Military officials said the raiders managed to penetrate the heavy security by wearing uniforms similar to those worn by the national guard.

Opposition sources said there were 120 to 150 political prisoners in the country.

A congressional spokesman in the National Palace told reporters by telephone that among the hostages were legislators of both the ruling Nationalist Liberal party and opposition Conservative party.

The Sandinistas have been battling Somoza's strongman rule for years, vowing to replace it with a Marxist government. They take their name from August Cesar Sandino, a rebel officer who fought U.S. Marines when they occupied this Central American country in the early 1930s.

Government figures show that more than 130 persons have been killed and 700 wounded in gunfights, bombings and riots since January.

Anti-government strikes and riots have increased since the Jan. 10 ambush-assassination in Managua of opposition leader Pedro Joaquin.

There have been repeated calls by some church leaders, union officials and business organizations for Somoza to resign, but he has said he will not step down until his six-year term expires in 1980.

Panic rush as pilots near strike

As the deadline for an Air Canada pilots' strike approached Tuesday, there was a frantic rush in Victoria, as elsewhere, to reroute travellers.

Caught in the squeeze created by a possible shutdown at midnight Wednesday were homebound and outgoing holidayers.

A spokesman for Air Canada said it appeared that a large number of vacationing Vancouver and Victoria people were cutting their holidays short and heading home in advance of the strike deadline.

Like travel agencies in both cities, Air Canada's reservations clerks have been bombarded with calls during the last two days from people cancelling or changing flight plans.

The turmoil comes at a time when last-minute efforts are being made to head off a walkout that would involve 1,700 pilots. Both sides have agreed to meet this morning in Ottawa with federal Labor Minister John Munro.

If the strike materializes, Vancouver and Victoria—because of the three-hour time difference— would be able to complete all of Wednesday's scheduled flights, the Air Canada spokesman said.

He said the airline was being "very flexible" in changing plans for those already holding Air Canada tickets.

As long as seats could be found for them, those changing to earlier flights to get home ahead of time were being accommodated, he said.

"A lot of them have curtailed their holidays, it seems. It means returning home after a week and a half of vacation, instead of two or three weeks."

The switch to other forms of travel is putting pressure on CP Air, various U.S. airlines and bus companies.

Plans are being made to bring stranded travellers home through the U.S.

Hotels in Victoria apparently weren't hit hard by Tuesday with reservations cancellations.

A spokesman for the Empress said there had been no noticeable upswing in cancellations, and that the only effect of the threatened strike involved one American package tour. Those on the tour would still arrive at the hotel, but would apparently be several hours late because of the necessity of changing carriers.

Campbell son killed in mishap

James Campbell Jr., 31, son of Capital Region Board chairman James Campbell, was killed Monday on Saturna Island when a loader he was operating turned over during a logging operation.

Campbell, born in Vancouver and educated on Vancouver Island and Saturna, operated a small sawmill on the family farm.

Date of the funeral had not been set, his father said Tuesday in a telephone interview from Saturna Island.

U.S. selling gold to bolster dollar

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government took its second major step to support the U.S. dollar Tuesday by announcing plans to sell three million more ounces of gold from its stockpile.

The sale is intended to bring more money into the U.S. and reduce the country's balance-of-payments deficit, which is a major cause of the dollar's decline. It is also intended to reduce U.S. imports of gold.

The dollar had opened lower on most European money markets Tuesday, reversing Monday's comeback that followed indications the Carter administration would take concrete action to support it.

In Tokyo, it rose for the second day in a row.

The Federal Reserve Board took action Friday to protect the dollar by raising interest rates to make U.S. investments more attractive to foreigners.

At the time, the White House agreed with the action and added: "There will be a series of continuing actions over the next several weeks to deal with these problems."

The dollar has lost more than 30 per cent of its value during the last year against the Japanese yen, 33 per cent against the Swiss franc and 15 per cent against the German mark.

The basic problem with the dollar is there are too many in the hands of foreigners.

The government has already been selling 300,000 ounces of gold each month in a series of auctions which had been scheduled to end in October. The first four auctions have raised about $230 million.

Beer hope surfaces

Unconfirmed reports late Tuesday said union and brewery industry negotiators were "on the verge" of a tentative agreement.

Victoria sources said renewed meetings in Vancouver were "going extremely well," and there were indications that a settlement might be reached within hours. If ratified, it could mean the flow of draft beer again by the weekend, according to informants.

It was head-knocking time for baby rams in Beacon Hill Park children's zoo, as their usual playful antics brought them to a bit of practice for grown-up contests. Their battle stayed cool, though, helped by lukewarm late-August day.

A developer responds to complaints:

'Pay me first, then repairs'

The AHOP Shuffle

By Paul Bennett
Colonist reporter

Second of a series

"Nobody builds a perfect house. We just try to do our best."

Rick Carswell, a partner in Tryon Construction, said this during a Colonist interview at which complaints of some buyers of his Assisted Home Ownership Program houses were discussed.

Carswell, the principal mover in Tyron Construction, shrugged off complaints such as split siding, cracking driveways and faulty downspouts as "only to be expected."

He said he had built 23 AHOP units and had complaints from only four buyers and felt that was a reasonably good record, all things considered.

Carswell felt that some of his buyers were upset because other customers got better deals than they in "fringe benefits" such as major appliances and fixtures.

He added that a few were probably "burned up" because some builders are offering regular single-family dwellings—not duplexes—at the $45,000 maximum AHOP asking price.

A foresighted businessman might be less insensitive to customers' pleas for help.

Carswell's response to a variety of complaints by buyers of four duplexes his company built in the Metchosin-Donovan Road area of the western community appeared to be a little cavalier.

In three cases, he pointed out that the buyers owed him money, and he did not feel obliged to accommodate them until they squared up with him.

Two buyers admit this, but say they have been withholding the money—which amounts to rental for early occupancy—because after repeated attempts, they have been unable to get satisfaction from him on the repairs they want done.

In a third case, he said he had not been told of the buyer's complaints, and in a fourth he indicated there had been some difficulty in getting subcontractors to enter the premises.

The complaints have been detailed in another story, and most of them are relatively minor.

A leaky fireplace in one house could, however, lead to death by carbon monoxide poisoning and in two other houses, problems with plumbing and wiring are potentially hazardous.

Carswell said he had already asked a fireplace subcontractor to fix the leaky fireplace in the home of Sandor and Barbara Csitar, 590B Donovan—the principal hazard in the series of complaints.

He said he intended to have the Csitars' other complaints seen to, although he added that he had sent subcontractors around in the past and they had difficulty in doing the work.

Similarly, he gave his word that problems—none of them hazardous or major—would be looked at in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Gauti, 3072 Metchosin, already the subject of a joint reinspection by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and Carswell—provided a difference over money was settled.

As for the complaints by the Ian Tatehams, at 3074 Metchosin, Carswell said he had already had one cheque for half the outstanding money owed him returned, with payment stopped on it. Tateham indicated he had stopped payment because of dissatisfaction with the way the repairs were being handled.

Carswell vowed he would "quit building

Sophisticated equipment probes Island shoreline

By PAUL DE GROOT
Colonist reporter

To Harry Dosso, the world sometimes seems a complex mass of electrical currents and magnetic bodies interacting with one another.

There is the magnetic field of the earth, whose fluctuations induce currents on the surface, in the same way that passing a wire through a magnetic field generates a current in the wire.

There are the charged particles high in the earth's ionosphere, which generate powerful currents and magnetic fields when disturbed by streams of charged particles from the sun.

There is even the current generated by an ocean wave as it passes through the earth's magnetic field.

This complex network of currents generating magnetic fields, which in turn set up electrical currents in other bodies, is Dosso's field of study, and, in working on it, he and his research associates have put together some of the most sophisticated models in the world to study electrical induction and magnetic fields along coastlines.

"The ocean conducts current much better than the land," Dosso explains. What the current does when it encounters the land is his specialty, and the complicated sea-land boundary of Vancouver Island has proven to be a fascinating object of study.

To study this boundary under controlled conditions, Dosso has "reconstructed" Vancouver Island in his special laboratory in the Elliott Building on the UVic campus. It might not be immediately recognizable as Vancouver Island, however, because land, in the 750-gallon tank which is Dosso's main tool, is water with a ton of salt dissolved in it, while the sea is a 100 square centimetre sheet of graphite carefully suspended on the surface of the water.

The reason for using these two materials is that they closely approximate the relative conductance of land and sea, Dosso said. The outline of the Island is cut out of the graphite, and the edge of the graphite is carefully contoured to approximate the shallower depth of water near the coastline.

A grid of wires suspended over the tank with a high-voltage current running through it approximates the effect of the ionosphere on the "earth" below.

With the model under study suspended in the tank, various electrical probes, most of them extremely small and sensitive, such as a hand-wound coil only a millimetre long, and made of wire finer than human hair, track across the surface on a special pulley. The record of the minute variations in voltage and magnetic field which the probes pick up as they cross the boundary between "ocean" and "land" are amplified and recorded on graph paper.

The laboratory model, developed in stages from a simple square cut in a sheet of graphite, has proven to be amazingly accurate, Dosso said in an interview, "so much so that we really don't know where to go to from here to improve it."

Mathematical calculations of what should happen with the simple models accorded very closely with the actual experimental results. Its theoretical accuracy verified, Dosso and his colleagues turned to the complicated shapes of real land forms, such as Vancouver Island.

Actual field measurements were taken at William Head, Port Angeles, Powell River and Miracle Beach, and they, too, closely matched the results obtained by the model.

Among other things, it appears that major electrical currents flow around the Island in a north-south configuration, avoiding the land because of its low conductivity. Contrary to expectations, however, the current does not make the corner into Juan de Fuca Strait from Georgia Strait, but continues down into Puget Sound and dissipates into the land in several streams there, for reasons that are still unclear.

At locations where the current is forced to deviate from its north-south orientation, as through the narrow channel of Johnstone Strait, north of Campbell River, the electrical inductance is highest.

It seems clear by now that the actual shape of the boundary between land and ocean has a very large bearing on the currents induced in them, probably more so than the influence of underlying geological formations, such as faults, strata, or pockets of minerals, Dosso said.

Nevertheless, the data gained from Dosso's study will aid scientists attempting to understand what lies beneath the surface of the earth, since the electrical variations caused by the sea-land boundary will have to be subtracted from measurements aimed at discerning ore bodies or oil deposits.

Dosso's laboratory has also been used by scientists attempting to gain a better understanding of how mineral exploration techniques work. A grant from Shell Oil was used to simulate exploration techniques using electromagnetic tools. When geologists understand how these techniques work in the laboratory, under carefully controlled conditions which remove many of the variables, they can use their instruments in the field more precisely.

A visiting Nigerian scientist used the laboratory to determine how different shapes beneath the earth affect the electromagnetic readings on the surface.

Other nations have also shown considerable interest in Dosso's techniques and their applications. His current project is a study of the British Isles, and Newfoundland is in the planning for the future.

Huge pot grab at Parksville

PARKSVILLE (CP) — RCMP officers using helicopters have seized more than one ton of marijuana plants in the last two weeks from plots in remote areas on Lasqueti Island in the Strait of Georgia.

RCMP from Parksville said Tuesday the seizures include 460 kilograms seized Monday after a police helicopter pilot discovered five marijuana gardens growing in small clearings.

Police said one plant was 12 feet tall.

No charges had been laid.

A TASTE FOR WORK

In search of elusive geoduck

By JOHN LANGTON
Colonist Correspondent

QUALICUM BEACH—It was dark and murky 60 feet down in the Georgia Strait. We had to work hard against the current to keep our position. Rob Frost handed me a high pressure water hose and I pushed it down into the sandy bottom. I could not see a thing and I wondered why I had talked myself into this position as I reached down into the hole and groped for a geoduck.

Frost is one of the few commercial geoduck divers on Vancouver Island. It is hard work and he said few divers have the strength and stamina for the job. He said the ducks are considered a delicacy in Japan and the United States and most of his catch is exported.

There has been an intensive geoduck industry in Washington for seven years. Frost hopes Canadians will soon develop a taste for this member of the clam family which has a delicious slightly sweet flavor.

Too big for shells

Geoducks, or ducks as they are often called, have bodies which are too big for their shells, so they bulge out between the two halves. A duck has a long neck which is a bit like an elephant's trunk and stretches vertically up through the sand with just the tip showing in a small depression in the sandy ocean bottom. Water is sucked down through the orifices at the end and filtered through the stomach to remove nutrients. The neck of a large duck may be as much as three feet in length, and it is good eating.

When a duck gets alarmed it contracts its neck down making it hard for a diver to grab it, so the clam has to be dug out. Frost and his partner use one and a half inch diameter fire hoses connected to a pump on their skiff. Jets on the ends of the hoses clear the sand rapidly.

The partners have converted a herring skiff and hire a deck hand to stay topside. He is surrounded by noise. A 10 horsepower gas engine in the bow drives the compressor which supplies air through 175-foot-long hoses to the two divers. Another gas engine in the stern works the water pump and a third engine drives a winch used to haul up the net bags into which the divers place the ducks.

Difficult footing

If the sea is choppy the deck hand has to work harder to keep his footing in the pitching skiff. Things are made unpleasant if the weather is cold and wet and he has to work for five hours at a stretch.

The divers go down for two hour stretches, digging ducks, putting them into the net bags they have attached to their weight belts. When a bag is full, the diver swims along the bottom back to the line which is hanging over the side of the skiff. He hooks the full bag on, takes the empty one and gives a sharp tug to let the deck hand know it is time to winch up another load of ducks.

After a couple of hours the divers come up to rest, then go down for another two hours. They have to work in a current or the sand they blow up with the water jets would form a great stationary cloud and they would not be able to find the depressions in the sea floor that indicate more ducks.

Gulp down air

The divers use basically the same equipment as scuba divers except they have hoses connecting them to the air compressor on the skiff instead of using tanks on their backs. They work hard and gulp down great quantities of air and the tanks would not last long so they would have to waste time frequently returning to the skiff to exchange tanks.

Frost said a businessman would not dream of spending $700 to $800 or more on a new suit every six months, but he has to buy a new dry suit a couple of times a year. Even good quality suits wear out quickly. First the seams start leaking and letting frigid water soak into the heavy woollen underwear the divers have. It is essential for them to guard against hypothermia which is a potentially fatal condition.

When Frost and his partner find a good geoduck location, the profits are high, but it may take them weeks to find that location.

Make spot dives

They study charts and talk to local fishermen to discover likely places. If an area looks promising they make spot dives, then one of them is towed along the bottom on a sledge to make a reconnaisance.

Commercial geoduck diving would come close to the top of a list of the most physically demanding jobs in the province. Frost does the work because he likes to have his own business, and he is a very enthusiastic diver. When he has a few days off from duck diving, he will take his spear gun and catch a few cod of dive for fishing tackle and motors and other things boaters have lost overboard.

Cowichan weighing deer hunt

By DEREK RHIND
Colonist Correspondent

DUNCAN—To hunt or not to hunt on Maple Mountain was again the question concerning North Cowichan council members at their recent meeting.

Crofton and southend ratepayers' groups will be asked to hold public meetings mid-September to receive public input on the various pros and cons of hunting deer on the mountain.

Maple Bay Ratepayers Association president Bruce Mackenzie said the ratepayers had held meetings previously to assess the feelings of residents concerning the effects of hunting on Maple Mountain.

Last year was the first time that hunting with shotguns had been allowed. This move was the result of several meetings between ratepayers and council, with a consensus that this would be the safest way to reduce the deer population that some said was eating their vegetables and rose gardens.

The area was originally closed to all hunting after many residents complained that bullets and pellets had narrowly missed them when out walking their dogs or puttering about the garden.

Mackenzie reported that only three deer had been shot last season. He suggested that shotgun slugs be allowed rather than pellets.

"Its really an aesthetic decision, whether you want roses or deer," he said.

Mayor George Whittaker said the deer that get shot or hunted are the ones at the top of the mountain. These are not the deer that are eating the roses from people's gardens at the bottom of the mountain.

"The deer that eat from the gardens stay in that vicinity all the year round, so hunting solves nothing," he said.

Ald. Margaret Robertson was in favor of banning hunting. She said she would rather have the deer than the roses.

It was agreed that public meetings on the subject should be held with ratepayers associations sometime in mid-September.

Meanwhile, council reaffirmed its decision to maintain police and ambulance dispatching locally, rather than at Nanaimo, as suggested by the B.C. Police Commission.

Dispatching will be controlled from the new police communications building to be constructed on Canada Avenue.

Commercial establishments currently having their private alarm systems monitored through the present RCMP building in Duncan will have to make their own arrangements when the new police building is constructed.

Ald. Birgitte Meagher said as the police would have to answer these calls anyway, the businesses should be allowed to have them monitored at the new police building, but should pay an extra charge for the service.

Robertson replied it was "not customary" to have all these alarms in a police building. There were private security police that could channel these calls.

Council then moved that commercial businesses with private alarm reporting systems be required to provide their own arrangements when the new police communications building is constructed.

Ald. Rex Hollett said: "While on the subject of police buildings, I want it made clear that this council will not accept any proposals to change the status quo concerning Chemainus police station."

A B.C. Police Commission report had recently suggested that Chemainus police station amalgamate with the Duncan RCMP detatchment.

Ald. Meagher suggested that North Cowichan become a pilot project study for ground water legislation by the provincial government.

She made the suggestion following a report from Whittaker that insufficient water had been found in Crofton by the water diviner commissioned by council to find a new water supply for the area.

Whittaker said: "It appears that we are going to have to go for the water from the Westhome well."

Ald. Graham Bruce suggested a public meeting be held soon at Crofton informing the residents of the water situation.

Council agreed to hire urban project planner R. E. Mann at a cost of $16,930 to prepare a northend community plan not later than Feb. 28.

OTTAWA (CP)— The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission has given permission for L. and C.-Cablevision Ltd. in Ladysmith to build a new antenna site, raise installation fees to $25 from $15 and increase monthly fees to $6 from $5 and to receive and distribute radio services from 12 Victoria, Lower Mainland and Washington state FM radio stations.

UVic searching out new vice-president

The search for a new University of Victoria vice-president will probably be set in motion next week, UVic president Dr. Howard Petch said Monday.

If a strong candidate is found within the university, a new vice-president may be installed by the time incumbent Dr. George Pedersen, 47, leaves to become president of Simon Fraser University on Jan. 1. If the university decides to seek someone from outside the UVic, July 1, 1979 is a more realistic date, Petch said.

Under new search procedures approved by the university's board of governors only last year, the first step in the process is selection of the committee itself. Several members of that committee are elected, requiring nominations and elections before the committee can hold its first meeting.

The committee will first determine if there are any obvious internal candidates, Petch said. If there are none, the search will be broadened to include advertising nationally for suitable candidates. Screening applications, interviewing, and negotiating the final terms of the appointment will take up additional time, and since the candidate finally selected will probably have major responsibilities in his or her present position, a sixth-month delay between the appointment and the assumption of vice-presidential responsibilities will be likely, Petch said.

Scores taken in bloody shootout

Nicaragua Reds grab legislators

MANAGUA (AP)—About 20 left-wing guerrillas in military uniforms shot their way past security guards Tuesday, seized the Nicaraguan National Palace and took scores of legislators and government officials hostage—including a nephew and cousin of President Anastasio Somoza.

Archibaldo Arostegui, a presidential spokesman, said he had reports that four persons were killed in a two-hour shootout between the guerrillas and government troops in this Central American city.

The guerrillas issued a statement to news media saying they demanded release of all political prisoners in the country, safe-conduct passes out of Nicaragua for the political prisoners and the attackers, and $10 million in cash.

A Red Cross spokesman reported one hostage telephoned and said at least 15 persons were wounded when the guerrillas burst into the palace firing at guards, and in the gun battle that followed with national guardsmen. The spokesmen expessed fear that several persons had been killed.

A presidential source said a number of aides were urging Somoza to take a tough stance against the guerrillas.

The four dead were believed to be soldiers.

The National Palace houses the Chamber of Deputies, Senate and a number of cabinet ministries, but Somoza does not have offices there.

Only the Chamber of Deputies was in session at the time, but hundreds of government officials and visitors were also in the building.

Military officials said the raiders managed to penetrate the heavy security by wearing uniforms similar to those worn by the national guard.

The Sandinistas have been battling Somoza's strongman rule for years, vowing to replace it with a Marxist government. They take their name from August Cesar Sandino, a rebel officer who fought U.S. Marines when they occupied this Central American country in the early 1930s.

Panic rush as pilots near strike

As the deadline for an Air Canada pilots' strike approached Tuesday, there was a frantic rush in Victoria, as elsewhere, to reroute travellers.

Caught in the squeeze created by a possible shutdown at midnight Wednesday were homebound and outgoing holidayers.

A spokesman for Air Canada said it appeared that a large number of vacationing Vancouver and Victoria people were cutting their holidays short and heading home in advance of the strike deadline.

Like travel agencies in both cities, Air Canada's reservations clerks have been bombarded with calls during the last two days from people cancelling or changing flight plans.

The turmoil comes at a time when last-minute efforts are being made to head off a walkout that would involve 1,700 pilots. Both sides have agreed to meet this morning in Ottawa with federal Labor Minister John Munro.

If the strike materializes, Vancouver and Victoria—because of the three-hour time difference— would be able to complete all of Wednesday's scheduled flights, the Air Canada spokesman said.

He said the airline was being "very flexible" in changing plans for those already holding Air Canada tickets.

As long as seats could be found for them, those changing to earlier flights to get home ahead of time were being accommodated, he said.

"A lot of them have curtailed their holidays, it seems. It means returning home after a week and a half of vacation, instead of two or three weeks."

The switch to other forms of travel is putting pressure on CP Air, various U.S. airlines and bus companies.

Plans are being made to bring stranded travellers home through the U.S.

Hotels in Victoria apparently weren't hit hard by Tuesday with reservations cancellations.

A spokesman for the Empress said there had been no noticeable upswing in cancellations, and that the only effect of the threatened strike involved one American package tour. Those on the tour would still arrive at the hotel, but would apparently be several hours late because of the necessity of changing carriers.

Campbell son dies in mishap

James Campbell Jr., 31, son of Capital Region Board chairman James Campbell, was killed Monday on Saturna Island when a loader he was operating turned over during a logging operation.

Campbell, born in Vancouver and educated on Vancouver Island and Saturna, operated a small sawmill on the family farm.

Date of the funeral had not been set, his father said Tuesday in a telephone interview from Saturna Island.

Boy, 6, killed under bus wheels

Two young boys went for a ride on one bike Tuesday and minutes later one of them was dead.

Victoria police said Jessie Robert Day, 6, of Simcoe Street was fatally injured when he fell beneath the wheels of a Vancouver Island Coach Lines bus in the 100 block Superior Street.

A second six-year-old, whose name was withheld, was not hurt.

The mishap occurred at 1:08 p.m.

The Day boy was pronounced dead on arrival at Victoria General Hospital. His identity reportedly wasn't known until some time after his arrival.

"They doubled on a bike— something they're not supposed to do," a police officer said later.

He said the other boy was pedalling the bike with the Day boy riding on the back.

"The bike ran into the side of the bus and the one boy fell off the back under the wheels of the bus," the officer said.

"The driver didn't have a hope of missing him."

The driver was identified as Donald Norris.

U.S. selling gold to bolster dollar

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government took its second major step to support the U.S. dollar Tuesday by announcing plans to sell three million more ounces of gold from its stockpile.

The sale is intended to bring more money into the U.S. and reduce the country's balance-of-payments deficit, which is a major cause of the dollar's decline. It is also intended to reduce U.S. imports of gold.

The dollar had opened lower on most European money markets Tuesday, reversing Monday's comeback that followed indications the Carter administration would take concrete action to support it.

In Tokyo, it rose for the second day in a row.

The Federal Reserve Board took action Friday to protect the dollar by raising interest rates to make U.S. investments more attractive to foreigners.

At the time, the White House agreed with the action and added: "There will be a series of continuing actions over the next several weeks to deal with these problems."

The dollar has lost more than 30 per cent of its value during the last year against the Japanese yen, 33 per cent against the Swiss franc and 15 per cent against the German mark.

The basic problem with the dollar is there are too many in the hands of foreigners.

The government has already been selling 300,000 ounces of gold each month in a series of auctions which had been scheduled to end in October. The first four auctions have raised about $230 million.

Beer hope surfaces

Unconfirmed reports late Tuesday said union and brewery industry negotiators were "on the verge" of a tentative agreement.

Victoria sources said renewed meetings in Vancouver were "going extremely well," and there were indications that a settlement might be reached within hours. If ratified, it could mean the flow of draft beer again by the weekend, according to informants.

Hard knocks at the zoo

It was head-knocking time for baby rams in Beacon Hill Park children's zoo, as their usual playful antics brought them to a bit of practice for grown-up contests. Their battle stayed cool, though, helped by lukewarm late-August day.

A developer responds to complaints:

'Pay me first, then repairs'

The AHOP Shuffle

By Paul Bennett
Colonist reporter

Second of a series

"Nobody builds a perfect house. We just try to do our best."

Rick Carswell, a partner in Tryon Construction, said this during a Colonist interview at which complaints of some buyers of his Assisted Home Ownership Program houses were discussed.

Carswell, the principal mover in Tryon Construction, shrugged off complaints such as split siding, cracking driveways and faulty downspouts as "only to be expected."

He said he had built 23 AHOP units and had complaints from only four buyers and felt that was a reasonably good record, all things considered.

Carswell felt that some of his buyers were upset because other customers got better deals than they in "fringe benefits" such as major appliances and fixtures.

He added that a few were probably "burned up" because some builders are offering regular single-family dwellings—not duplexes—at the $45,000 maximum AHOP asking price.

A foresighted businessman might be less insensitive to customers' pleas for help.

Carswell's response to a variety of complaints by buyers of four duplexes his company built in the Metchosin-Donovan Road area of the western community appeared to be a little cavalier.

In three cases, he pointed out that the buyers owed him money, and he did not feel obliged to accommodate them until they squared up with him.

Two buyers admit this, but say they have been withholding the money—which amounts to rental for early occupancy—because after repeated attempts, they have been unable to get satisfaction from him on the repairs they want done.

In a third case, he said he had not been told of the buyer's complaints, and in a fourth he indicated there had been some difficulty in getting subcontractors to enter the premises.

The complaints have been detailed in another story, and most of them are relatively minor.

A leaky fireplace in one house could, however, lead to death by carbon monoxide poisoning and in two other houses, problems with plumbing and wiring are potentially hazardous.

Carswell said he had already asked a fireplace subcontractor to fix the leaky fireplace in the home of Sandor and Barbara Csitar, 590B Donovan—the principal hazard in the series of complaints.

He said he intended to have the Csitars' other complaints seen to, although he added that he had sent subcontractors around in the past and they had difficulty in doing the work.

Similarly, he gave his word that problems—none of them hazardous or major—would be looked at in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Gauti, 3072 Metchosin, already the subject of a joint reinspection by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and Carswell—provided a difference over money was settled.

As for the complaints by the Ian Tatehams, at 3074 Metchosin, Carswell said he had already had one cheque for half the outstanding money owed him returned, with payment stopped on it. Tateham indicated he had stopped payment because of dissatisfaction with the way the repairs were being handled.

Carswell vowed he wou'd "quit building

'People place' mall dream for Saanich

A broad open mall designed as a "people place" is the grand dream of the Saanich planning department as a civic core to replace the houses and vacant lots between Vernon and Seymour Avenues.

A 66-page report presented to council's lands, planning and housing committee Tuesday night would see the three-block area developed gradually.

Aldermen, after hearing complaints from residents that they hadn't had an opportunity to see the report, and complaining themselves they needed more time to study it, tabled the report and recommendations to a meeting late next month.

A bid by Ald. Ian Cass for the whole area to be zoned before development was started was shelved along with the tabling motion.

Meanwhile, Mayor Mel Couvelier was instructed at his own request to meet with the owners of the adjoining Town and Country shopping centre to ensure that the new core development was integrated with plans to expand the existing regional shopping centre.

Ald. John Mika said that what was being proposed was "not so much a downtown for Saanich as an uptown for Victoria."

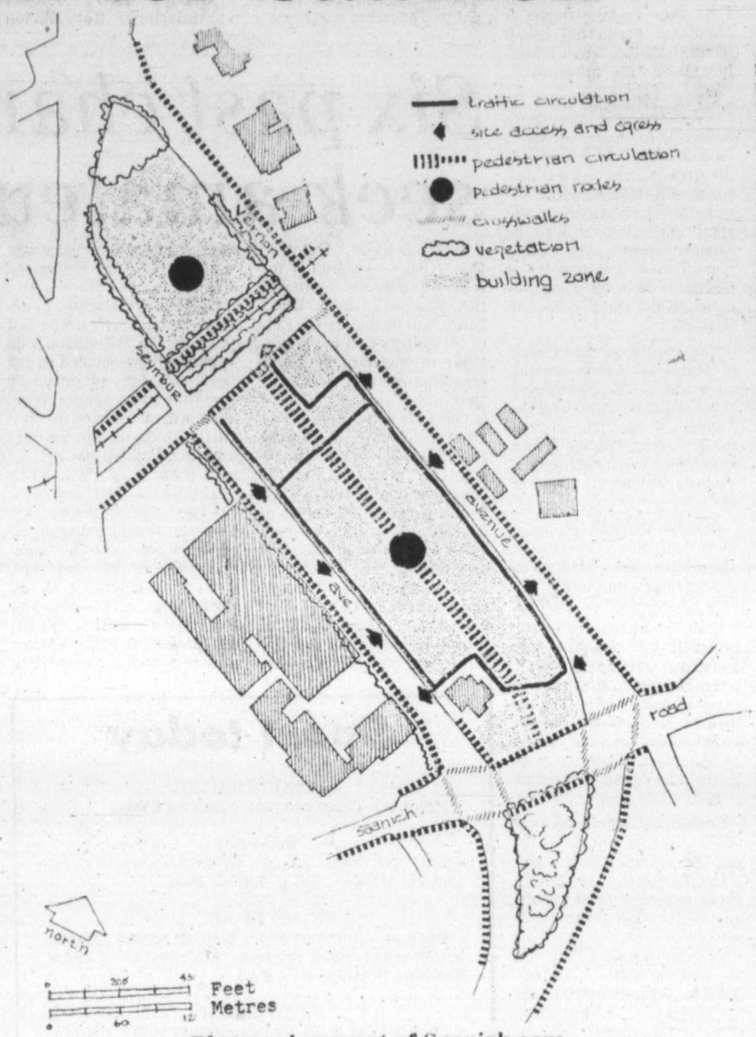
He added that since Saanich was starting 100 years after Victoria, there would be an opportunity to avoid many of the mistakes made there and take advantage of some of the good points as well.

The planning department vision for the 6.9-hectare core area, which is shaped like a cucumber with one end askew, is that it become a civic and commercial core for the "cultural, institutional and social aspirations" of Saanich residents.

The bottom block, south of Saanich Road, would become parkland under the proposal, with the northern block, already consolidated under single ownership, being developed as an entity.

Since ownership of the central block, between Saanich Road and the unused CN railway line, is diversified, the planners feel it should be developed piecemeal under general guidelines that will provide for a continuous pedestrian walkway along its entire length.

The report recommends development of the proposed civic core be related to pedestrian scale, contain mixed land uses and provide for permanent accommodation for adults to prevent the core from "dying" at night.



Planners' concept of Saanich core

Activities to be encouraged, according to recommendations are:

- Indoor and outdoor markets;
- Hotels and theatres;
- A community centre;
- Indoor and outdoor restaurants and cafes;
- Craft and specialty stores and workships such as jewellers;
- Department stores and convenience stores such as bakeries and drugstores.

The report suggests buildings be a maximum of five storeys high to minimize shadow effects on the mall and on surrounding buildings on the north side of Vernon.

It envisages the open-air pedestrian mall to be "a series of spaces, meandering between nodes, always providing a glimpse of what is ahead; always something to see at edges or in mall itself.

Pedestrian accesses recommended include walkways between the Town and Country shopping centre directly south of the core area, a footbridge over and access to the railway cut, which should be left in a natural state, and another bridge to the park south of Saanich Road.

The report proposes the rules regarding provision of parking spaces be relaxed to encourage underground parking and construction of above-grade parking structures off the site.

It suggests a new zone be created under the zoning bylaw for the civic core area and recommends appointment of a landscape architect to co-ordinate the overall design of the mall.

Subdivision drive runs into barrier

Attempts by a long-time Saanich family to subdivide their prime 60-acre parcel of raw land north of Broadmead ran into a barrier Tuesday night.

About 600 houses could be developed on the property.

The application was by Eric Grant, of 809 Towner Park in Sidney, on behalf of his parents and brothers. Grant is the grandson of Ald. William Grant, who was on council shortly after the municipality was incorporated in 1906.

Municipal planner Gil Laurenson said in an accompanying report that the application faced several "constraints."

He said it was outside the urban containment boundary, was zoned rural, was in a five-acre minimum subdivision area and was outside the sewered area.

Laurenson said before development could be considered, council would have to consider whether to adjust the urban containment boundary to include the area.

He said it "would seem to be very discriminatory not to include this land . . . because it is not farmland and it could be serviced if Cordova Bay is serviced."

The chief planner also pointed out that if Saanich's greenbelt policy was to be maintained, the municipality would have to decide whether to buy or lease portion of the 60-acre parcel.

"A study of Cordova Bay is under way as the first local area to be done as part of the community planning process . . . The Grant property is included in the area being investigated."

Laurenson's recommendation that Grant be told of the study and that residents would be invited to contribute to its recommendations before council took a final decision was adopted.

FOUR GENERATIONS and more than a century separate Bridget Morry and Kimberley Davies, 5, but alert 107-year-old had instant rapport with her great-great-granddaughter at Mrs. Morry's birthday party.

To her we're all youngsters

"How are you?"

That standard greeting takes on new meaning when it comes from a 107-year-old to a callow 29-year-old.

Plenty of polite "how are you's" passed back and forth Tuesday at the Richmond Pavilion of Royal Jubilee Hospital. The occasion was the 107th birthday of Bridget Mary Morry, believed to be Victoria's oldest resident.

The years have treated her well. Although she is confined to a wheelchair, her hearing and sight are good, and her success in extinguishing all but a few of the 107 candles that made a small inferno on top of her birthday cake indicated a healthy set of lungs as well.

Born in Newfoundland the year B.C. joined Confederation, Mrs. Morry came to Victoria in 1900 with four children, according to one of the many well-wishers on hand for the birthday party Tuesday, son-in-law Walter Fairfax of Seattle. After coming here, she had another five.

Efforts to find out her secret (for longevity, that is) were not very successful. She doesn't believe in makeup for women, but that isn't the secret. It could well be the warm personality that comes through and touches those around her: the staff at the hospital were taking as many pictures of the occasion as her relatives.

"I've forgotten the number of great-grandchildren she has," Fairfax said. "It was a whole mess of them anyway."

Saanich names personnel boss

Saanich council has named Cleve Tuttle, formerly personnel manager of Eaton's in Victoria, as head of its personnel department.

Mayor Mel Couvelier made the announcement Tuesday night, following an in-camera session of council Monday.

Tuttle will take over Sept. 11, reporting to council through municipal clerk Robert Sharp.

Among other duties, Tuttle will work with Sharp on a reorganization of the municipal clerk's office, Couvelier said.

Tuttle will replace Arthur Wilkes, fired by council early in July after a controversial police job action in which he played a key advisory role.

Tuttle was personnel supervisor for Bapco Paint Ltd. for nine years before joining Eaton's six years ago.

$1,700 gap stalls library move

Bawlf accused of reneging on leasing tab

By PAUL BENNETT
Colonist reporter

In dollar terms, between $1,200 and $1,700 a year is all that separates the Greater Victoria Public Library from its proposed new premises in the provincial government complex on Broughton.

This emerged at Tuesday's meeting of the library board, when pressure was applied on Esquimalt Ald. Larry Mann to have his council reverse its vote against the proposal to lease the premises for 10 years.

However, there is also a philosophical gap, as Mann made clear during an inconclusive discussion that meandered on for almost an hour.

Whether the figure is $1,200 or $1,700 appeared to be immaterial to Mann, who felt that Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf had reneged on a commitment to lease the 50,000 square feet of space at a fixed dollar figure.

Mann viewed the $1,700 as an extra imposition on Esquimalt over the rental originally proposed by Bawlf, and refused to take into consideration the fact the federal government would pay one-third of that amount annually.

Mann also appeared to be holding out for the library board to negotiate with B.C. Buildings Corp., nominal owner of the Broughton complex, for strata-title ownership of the premises.

Library chairman Gordon Hutcheson told Mann he thought it would be impossible to obtain a firm dollar price from BCBC—in the event a strata title was agreed to—in time for Esquimalt council's special meeting Sept. 6 to reconsider its rejection in a 4-3 vote Aug. 9.

Although all other board members view the proposal as merely a stopgap measure until a site and money can be found for a new library building, Mann said he believed that once the library was in the Broughton premises, it would be there indefinitely.

Attempts by library board member Edward Ward-Harris to immediately establish an ad hoc committee to investigate a site and costs for a new library building were headed off by Hutcheson, who said he felt it would be best to await the Esquimalt decision rather than "muddying the waters."

Ward-Harris argued that whether the library moved to Broughton or not "we have to start as soon as possible on getting our own building."

He said it was "disgraceful" that Greater Victoria had any number of "tennis bubbles, birdcages and what-have-you but does not have a central library equivalent to that of many Prairie cities."

Library suggested for Royal Oak area

What may be the first step toward a library branch at Royal Oak was taken Tuesday.

The Greater Victoria Public Library Board moved to ask its library services committee to investigate whether there was a demand for a branch in the Royal Oak Shopping centre.

The action came during consideration of a letter from Royal Oak Enterprises, offering the board rental space in the centre, currently under expansion.

Donald Miller, director of the library system, said a bookmobile that used to be sent to Royal Oak on Fridays and Saturdays was so little supported that the stop was no longer on schedules.

However, board members Edward Ward-Harris and Richard Gautier, both of whom live in Saanich, protested that bookmobile usage figures were not a real indicator of demand.

Ward-Harris said the Royal Oak area is a growing community of young families, rather than an area like James Bay, where the bookmobile has many elderly customers who can't readily make it downtown.

The library services committee will be asked to investigate the number of card-holders and books taken out by card-holders in the area to see whether a branch would be warranted.

In other business, the board:

- Voted approval of a 5.4-per-cent pay increase for its three non-union managerial staff members;
- Decided to give preference of up to 10 per cent for qualified local bidders for tenders for library suppliers;
- Received a report indicating the board is now a full member of the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association;

Mediator brings teams together

Mediator Clark Gilmour was reported to have been successful Tuesday in bringing both sides together in his efforts to establish renewed negotiations in the brewery industry dispute.

On Monday he met separately throughout the day with representatives of the breweries and the Canadian Brewery Workers Union.

The principals were remaining silent on what, if any, progress was made Tuesday. But sources said negotiators from both sides had "face-to-face" meetings for the first time in several weeks.

The union struck against Carling O'Keefe in Vancouver May 26 and this was followed June 8 with an industry lockout at Labatt's in Victoria and New Westminster, Molson's in Vancouver, and Columbia Brewery at Creston.

Some 1,400 brewery production and distribution employees have been idled by the dispute, as have an estimated 4,000 hotel and pub employees throughout the province.

ONE WORD, TWO WEAPONS

A holdup man of few words (one) but multiple weapons (two) escaped Tuesday night after robbing a clerk at the Haultain Grocery Store, 1447 Haultain.

Police said the man, wearing a stocking mask and brandishing a knife in one hand and club in the other, fled with about $100 after spending only moments in the store.

A detective said the intruder uttered only one word . . . "money" . . . but the unidentified clerk got his message.

Cabinet asked to restore farmland's reserve status

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist reporter

North Saanich council wants the provincial cabinet to return 16 acres of farmland to the Agricultural Land Reserve.

By a vote of six to one, council approved a resolution late Monday night to "formally apply" to the cabinet to return the land to the ALR and to hold a public hearing on the application.

The resolution was introduced by Ald. Eric Sherwood. North Saanich Mayor George Westwood voted against it.

Sherwood said Tuesday: "There's no machinery for replacing the land except for council to go directly to cabinet."

The parcel has caused some controversy in recent months.

A provincial soils expert, Fred Reid, was fired from the agriculture ministry in June for talking to the press about circumstances surrounding its removal from the ALR.

There is still the political question of why it and surrounding Saanich Peninsula lands were removed from the ALR although they were classed as agricultural.

The 16-acre parcel is rated class 2 and 3 agricultural capability, and is owned by Donald and Jaqueline Wilson, 9299 Canora Road.

The land was removed from the ALR in May this year, following two previous refusals by the B.C. Land Commission.

Land commission chairman Gary Runka said recently that the 16-acre parcel was removed from the ALR because "its capability for agriculture was outweighed by the likely negative impact from surrounding lands which were soon to be developed for residential and other urban uses."

These "surrounding lands" were 63 acres in Sidney.

But how was the surrounding land in Sidney, a 63-acre parcel of farmland, removed from the ALR if the land commission recommended against it?

An answer was given recently by land commission chairman Runka.

Runka said the town of Sidney, at the instigation of the Southwest Sidney Ratepayers Association, an association formed by developer Fred Purvis, applied to the provincial cabinet to remove the 63 acres from the ALR.

Purvis wanted the 63 acres to develop a 33-acre farm into a mobile home development.

Sidney Ald. Jerry Tregaskis, a regional director, led the municipal fight to remove the 63 acres.

Yet the land commission continued to recommend that the 63 acres stay in the ALR. So did the regional planning staff.

Cabinet overruled the land commission's recommendation in January this year and removed the 63 acres from the ALR. No one seems to know why.

This paved the way for Purvis' mobile home development which, according to petitions filed at municipal hall, the townspeople apparently did not want.

Removal of the 63 acres in Sidney in January apparently set the stage four months later for removal of the 16 acres in North Saanich.

It it weren't for the original removal of that Sidney land, Sherwood said Tuesday, North Saanich wouldn't be in the "bind" today of having to ask for the return of 16 acres of farmland.
